PETERSBURG.

At a mass meeting of the citizens of our town on April 3d, $222 in cash and seventy-five dollars in work was raised for the improvement of our town. The Commercial Club has now over $300 in cash as a basis to start with. The first work will be done upon the river bank, which we use as a landing place for cargos. We propose to grade that and make a road to the river. The ground we will have to move will be used in improving our streets. The possibilities of Petersburg are brighter today than ever before. It has been clearly demonstrated within the last ten days that Petersburg is the only town on any river in the middle west that has not been in the slightest manner affected by the present flood. Our town would be high and dry with a twenty foot rise above the present flood.

BELLEVIEW.

Mrs. Margaret Koons, beloved wife of George Koons, died Tuesday March 25th, of creeping paralysis. Mrs. Koons was born in Germany, Feb. 12, 1852, and came to this place when a small girl of 12 years, also Mr. Geo. Schroder, a well known man of Rising Sun, Ind., came from Germany here with her. Her maiden name was Miss Margaret Bodie, and the date at which she was married to her first husband, Mr. Burris, is unknown. To this union three sons were born, all of whom survive. Mr. Burris died a number of years ago, and on August 15, 1880, she was united in marriage to Geo. Koons, and to them seven children were born, three sons and three daughters survive. She was a good christian hearted, faithful wife and mother. She never united with any church. Mrs. Koons was a very hard laboring woman and was willing to do anything she was asked to do. She had been an invalid for several months, and bore her illness patiently and was ready and willing to go when our Lord Jesus Christ called her. She will be missed by all in this community, and her beloved ones who are left to mourn her death has my deepest sympathy. She is hoped to be with Jesus in the parting from this world of sin.

The attorneys for the stockholders were J. G. Tomlin and John L. Vest, while the alleged officers of the Burley Tobacco Company were represented by about a half dozen attorneys, including Col. John B. Allen of Lexington, and Judge Ed. O'Rear of Frankfort. The case will be taken to the Court of Appeals.

Last Thursday, a very sad accident occurred at Banklick Station, which is about four miles from Walton. Miss Alice Portwood and sister Miss Hattie attempted to cross the railroad track in their buggy as the afternoon train on the L. & N. Railroad enroute for Louisville was about due, and as the buggy was nearly across the track the engine struck it demolishing the buggy and throwing out the occupants in a violent manner. Miss Alice Portwood was so seriously injured that she died next morning. Her sister Miss Hattie was considerably shaken up but sustained no serious injuries. The ladies resided on a farm near Bank Lick and they were taken home and a physician summoned, but Miss Alice was beyond medical skill. She was forty-two years old, and had many friends who deplore her untimely end. The funeral took place Saturday from the Bank Lick Baptist church, Rev. H. C. Wayman conducting the services, after which the remains were taken to Independence where the interment took place. phin attended county court at Burdirector of Walton, having charge.

Married—Oswald E. Peterson and Miss Nannie E. Griffith in the perlors of the Emery Hotel, Cincinnati, Thursday, April 2d, Rev. W. A. Kohler, pastor of the Walton Christian church performing the ceremony in the presence of a few relatives and friends. The groom is the son and partner of O. F. Peterson, and have been engaged in the railroad work of the Q. & C. Railway in preparing for a double track, and while engaged in this work met Miss Griffith and it was a case of love at first sight, which evidently was reciprocated. Mr. Peterson resides at Zion City, Illinois, but has been here for nearly a year, and in that time his quiet and gentlemanly deportment has won him many friends who extend their congratulations in his winning such a charming bride, and wish both of them a long, happy and prosperous future. The bride is the only daughter of Chas. L. Griffith, president of the Equitable Bank and Trust Company, and is a very pretty and attractive young lady of many excellent qualities. The fathers of the contracting couple were present at the marriage and gave their parental blessing. The bride was prettily attired in white and carried a bouquet of bride's roses, and the groom wore the conventional black. After the ceremony the young couple left for Chicago, via Louisville, and after spending several days at the home of the groom at Zion City will return to Walton and take rooms with Mrs. J. W. Thomas, until Mr. Peterson's railroad contract is completed in this quarter. The young couple, accompanied by Mrs. Addie Morris made the trip to Cincinnati in an automobile, it being more pleasant than the railway route on account of the high water conditions.

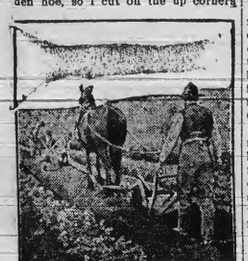
CELERY ON CITY LOT

Carpenter Makes Profitable Experiment With Plant.



As Soon in Spring as Ground Could Be Worked, Part of Five-Cent Package of Seed Was Sowed—Profits Were Big.

(By R. B. QILLER, Indiana.)

I am a carpenter, not a gardener, but I wanted to make some extra money and tackled celery. I have a lot back of my house, 50x125 feet, and it was not particularly adapted for celery, but I read up on the subject of soil and learned that in order to raise the best crops, growers give a good coat of stable manure every second year. From this I concluded stable manure contained the necessary fertilizing elements for the celery plant, which might be raised on any good ground, provided it was fertilized well in that way.

As early in the spring as the ground could be worked I sowed part of a five-cent package of seed in one row across the garden, and cultivated it the same as my rows of beets and parsnips. When the plants were about four inches high, I prepared a trench to set them in. The round was first coated well with good stable manure and then spaded up as deep as one could spade. After it was well worked I made a trench about one foot deep and 7 or 8 inches wide at the bottom. In this trench I set two rows of plants six inches apart and the plants also six inches asunder in the row in a zig-zag manner so that in a trench 25 feet long I set just 100 plants. All lived and all produced fine, large stalks.

The plants being set out in the middle of the summer, needed very little cultivation. They grew so rank that they kept the weeds down in the row, and only a few weeds grew on the side of the trenches. These can be hoed to advantage with an ordinary garden hoe, so I cut off the up corners of my garden hoe, making it an A shaped. With this tool I could hoe close under the leaves without doing injury to the plants.

Setting in this way has at least three advantages: First, it does not need to be banked with earth since the stalks grow tall without it; second the wind cannot whip the stalks about and thus injure the leaves; third fewer leaves of equal size grow on the stalks. In this trench the celery was 30 inches tall and of a very fine quality.

Such trenches as I made need not be more than 5 feet apart. On an acre of ground one can grow 33 rows, 26 feet long with 1,056 plants in a row, or 34,848 plants per acre. At 1 cent each they would fetch $348.48. I have sold a few stalks to my neighbors at 2½ cents a stalk. At this rate an acre would produce $871.20. But should I receive only one-third the retail price, there is profit in raising it here where there is no celery land.

Dry Matter in the Cornfield.

Prof. J. H. Sheppard, dean of agriculture, North Dakota agricultural college, says the amount of dry matter in a cornfield increases at almost a regular rate from the time of tasseling until ripe. In round numbers it is as follows: When in silk it has twice as much dry matter as when in tassel, when in milk three times, when glazed four times and when ripe five times as much as when in tassel. The digestible matter also increases as the corn matures, so that the increase in dry matter is even less than the increase in digestible matter per acre. With these facts in mind one cannot be left in doubt as to the importance of allowing corn to become as near ripe as possible before cut for fodder. It should not be left, however, after it is ripe, for the leaves to be broken off by the wind and the digestible matter bleached out by rain and dews. The common mistake, however, is for the grower to cut it too early.

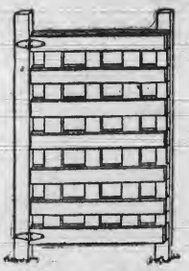
Roup and Catarrh.

Catarrh is not roup. It is usually caused by damphess; exposure to a drenching rain is a good starter for the disease. Dr. Sanborn says it is a filth disease, and not caused by "taking cold." The difference between roup and catarrh is that the latter has a tendency to get well without treatment, while the former seems inclined to progress to a fatal end.

Comfort for the Birds.

No success can be obtained with poultry unless the fowls are kept comfortable. A man caught in a rainstorm can change his clothing and thus save catching cold, but a fowl must allow her clothing to dry on her. No fowl can stand a constant exposure to inclement weather, and the more we protect them the better will be the results.

FARM GATE IS ECONOMICAL



Made of Ordinary Board Strips and Light Hinges—Use Any of Convenient Latches.

(By BURDINE WEBB.)

Take board strips one inch thick, three inches broad, and the proper length and width you want your gate, nail them across each other as shown in the drawing herewith, making about three inch cracks.

Then take the same sized and width pieces and double the crosses, nailing securely. A half pound of No. 8 nails will do the work.

Use ordinary light hinges. I use seven cross pieces, and then by doubling these, which is absolutely necessary, you will have to use fourteen, with four pieces lengthwise, making a total of eighteen pieces, a cheap and durable and economical gate.

In making the latch use any of several convenient methods.—Burdine Webb.

METHOD OF KEEPING HORSES

Stable Accommodations Have Marked Influence on Amount of Food Required for Animal.

The truth of the statement that the method of handling and the stable accommodations have a marked influence on the amount of food required to keep a horse in good condition has been proven by investigations made in Columbus by the animal husbandry students of the college of agriculture, Ohio state university.

These investigations have been carried on for several years, over 1,000 head of horses being included. It was found that the concerns with the poorest accommodations for their horses, and where the least care was given, were paying out largest amount for feed.

The average cost of keeping horses in Columbus is 40.1 cents a day, and contrary to popular belief heavy express horses are fed for nearly two and one-half cents less than light driving horses. The lowest cost was $89.02 per year in the case of an underfed animal, and the highest cost was $229.02, a stallion being fitted for show.

One noticeable fact was the absence of variety in the ration, the principle roughage being timothy hay the year round, and it was common to find this given in excess. Corn and oats constituted the principal grains fed. In one instance a saving of $11.15 per animal, or a yearly saving of $669, was brought about by the use of four pounds of oat straw in place of a similar amount of hay.

GRAIN RATION FOR FATTENING

Sour Milk Aids Digestion and Keeps System From Getting Feverish—Good Suggestions.

The Pennsylvania station suggests the following grain rations for fattening poultry as having been used with success:

Where a yellow flesh is wanted a ration should be made of cornmeal, five parts; ground oats, hulls removed, two parts; animal meal, one part, mixed with sour milk. Where a whiter flesh is wanted the following rations are recommended: Cornmeal, two parts; ground buckwheat, two parts; ground oats, two parts, mixed with sour milk. Another: Barley meal, two parts; middings, two parts; buckwheat, two parts; cornmeal, one part, mixed with sour milk. Another? The refuse from shredded wheat and sour milk.

When birds are confined for fattening, sour milk aids digestion and keeps the system from getting feverish. If no milk is available, some form of animal or green food must be supplied to make the best gains.

Alfalfa Works Deep.

Gasoline and oil help us to plow deep, but there are depths far beyond their reach needed by the plant roots. Just think of the alfalfa. It works for you all the time, day and night, through a long growing season, and the while pays a good rent for the land.

Alfalfa burns no oil, needs no harness, oats or driver; once started it continues its work till you plow it up, and gives you a field filled with nitrogen and humus piped far deeper for any other crop roots than you could possibly accomplish with great cost. These things are worth considering before the alfalfa field is plowed up to make way for other crops which call for lots of work and expense.

WILFORD I. ROUSE

Aged 73, Passes Away After A Lingering Illness.

Wilford I. Rouse, aged 73 years and 29 days, died at his home three miles out on the Burlington and Belleview pike last Thursday about ten o'clock a. m., of nephritis, of which he had been ill for some time.

He was a son of the late Benjamin and Mirinda Souther Rouse and the last survivor of a family of three sons and two daughters—Dudley, Wilford Irvin Jas. Isabella and Victoria. Isaabella marrying Wm. Walton and Victoria William Conner.

Mr. Rouse was raised on the farm and resided the greater part of his life on the farm where he died.

His wife was Miss Aletha Hagish, and to them were born two sons, Hubert and Carl, both of whom survive, the former residing with his father and mother.

Mr. Rouse was a most excellent gentleman, a splendid citizen, devoted husband and indulgent father. He was a man who remained closely at home and attended strictly to his own affairs. While farming was his chief vocation Mr. Rouse paid much attention to fruit in the propagation of which he was well posted. Although domestic in all his habits Mr. Rouse was a close reader and kept well informed on the topics of the day, and always entertained decided views in regard to the questions that were engaging the attention of the public, but never made himself obnoxious to those who took issue with him.

We hereby extend our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors who were so kind to us during the last illness of our father, W. I. Rouse. We also hereby express our appreciation of the services rendered by Rev. H. C. Wayman and the efficient manner in which Mr. John Allison conducted the funeral.

Hubert Rouse,
Carl Rouse.

Susan Dell Baker.

Susan Dell Baker was born in the old Utz homestead, on a farm about a mile from Burlington, Ky., in January, 1837. She spent the greater part of her womanhood in the home of her childhood. She was a faithful daughter, her mother's best nurse in the time of her last suffering and after her mother passed away she proved herself to be the kind est of sisters, for she made a comfortable and happy home for her brothers, neither of whom was married at that time. She was always ready to wait upon the afflicted, and it was thought her good nursing was the means of saving the life of a younger sister.

She was married in the Baptist church in Burlington, on the Thanksgiving day, 1887, to Mr. Robt. Baker. They made a home in Erlanger, where she has lived for many years. She died on the first day of April, 1913. She was as faithful to her duties as a wife as she had been in all the relations in life, a true friend with correct views of right and wrong. She was a member of the O. E. S., and the society was present at her funeral with their tributes of respect and affection. She joined the Baptist church in Burlington at an early age, and was also connected with the same church in Erlanger; a consistent member, true to her religious belief, and salvation through Christ, was the Rock of her hope for eternity. Just as the spirit passed, she said, "I see my Saviour!"

That Educational Squabble.

A circular letter printed in Friday's edition of the Democrat from President Crabbe, of the Eastern State Normal, at Richmond, to County Supt. Lanter, seems to have stirred up Governor McCreary and he is hastening his chief State Inspector and Examiner, Sherman Goodpaster to Richmond, to find out where the $85,000 has gone, which the state has paid out past year to the Normal School. That part of the circular, which has created the trouble will be recalled by the readers. The idea of issuing the circular was to notify all Superintendents that on account of the State refusing to pay the appropriations, the institution was in dire distress and the annual convocation was forced to be eliminated. It further says: "We have been conducting the school in our usual way, with an increased attendance, and an enthusiastic student body; but I scarcely know how we have been doing it. The grocers and butchers and bakers and even the candlestick-makers are furnishing us goods "on tick." The faculty are paid in due "bills." However, teachers and friends are loyal and helpful to a degree, and the institution, while crippled temporarily will continue to do business at the old stand. Meanwhile we are cutting off every expense that is posible, therefore the convocation must be dropped for this year. Within twelve months, I am sure the Commonwealth will be able to redeem our promises to the public schools.

After reading the above Auditor Bosworth asserted that his office had issued warrants for the school for the past twelve months to the amount of $85,000. Gov. McCreary and the Sinking Fund Commission gave orders to the Inspector and his assistant to begin at once on the books of the Normal School and see what had been done with the money and why the teachers have been paid in "due bill" instead of cash. The examiners passed through Winchester Monday at noon for Richmond, but would give out no statement further than they had orders to make a sweeping investigation and find out where this money had gone. —Winchester Democrat.

Poor Way to Limit Acreage.

Some years ago when the tobacco troubles were active in Kentucky it was a favorite pastime of the nightriding gentry to sow tobacco beds with grass seed. Of late years not many instances of that particular branch of nightrider activity have been reported.

The discovery was made in Henderson county a few days ago that about sixty or seventy tobacco beds had been seeded to grass. Some of the growers who owned these beds were members of pooling organizations while others were not. The general manager of the Henderson County Tobacco Association has offered a reward of $1,000 for the conviction of the persons who committed these offenses. His action is commendable and should have a strong tendency to discourage work of that kind in future.

The tobacco organizations strengthen themselves by taking a firm stand against lawlessness and they weaken themselves when they fail to do so. No successful plan of cutting down the tobacco acreage has yet been devised, though it would be of manifest advantage to growers in many localities if a reduction could be accomplished. A large number of large crops generally is equivalent to a large number of poor crops. A situation of that kind helped to make poor prices for the tobacco crop of 1912 in the stemming district.

Most of the farmers in the tobacco districts would be better off financially if they placed less dependence in tobacco and gave more time to other crops, or to other branches of agriculture. A smaller acreage would mean a better quality of tobacco, and, doubtless, better prices, but the way to bring about a reduction is by sensible, lawful and businesslike procedure. If such methods should fail nothing else is likely to avail.

The tobacco question is a hard proposition to handle. The growers have made some progress in methods of marketing, but too many of them have failed to learn anything new about the processes of cultivation and to profit by the experience of the past in putting out larger crops than can be tended to the best advantage.—C.-J.

Postmasters Resigning.

Washington.—As a result of the extension of the classified civil service to include fourth class postmasters and the announcement that postmasters of that class would be asked to qualify in a competitive examination, the postoffice department has been flooded with resignations from the service. At present resignations are reaching the department at the rate of about twenty a day and officials declare that about 2,000 fourth class postmasters have resigned since the executive order covering them into civil service was issued.

Practically all of the resignations are in postoffices where the salary is merely nominal and where at times the expense of conducting the office equals the postmaster's compensation. In many instances it will be difficult to find applicants who will take the prescribed examination. While the department is endeavoring to secure new postmasters, the incumbents, although they have resigned, will be forced to discharge the duties of the office.

DOGS ON THE DECREAS.

The State auditor's department will commence this week drawing warrants for sheep claims. The indications are that the dog tax collections in most counties will not equal the total amount of claims for sheep killed by dogs, while the balance converted into the school fund will be unusually small. Greenup county for instance, which assessed 590 dogs in 1911, assessed none at all in 1912. Many inquiries have been made by sheriffs and assessors whether the dog tax law was repealed at the last session of the General Assembly, indicating, that perhaps in some instances the dogs were not assessed because of a misunderstanding. Each county stands as a unit as regards the dog tax and sheep claims, and if the dog tax in any county is not sufficient to pay all claims, the total amount is distributed prorata among the claimants. After all are paid, any balance in the dog tax fund for the year is turned into the State school fund. Dogs addicted to the sheep killing habit apparently have a fine sense of discrimination in the quality of mutton, and almost invariably the highest priced sheep are the ones found by the magistrate and two appraisers who approve the claim before it is sent to the State Auditor. It is a rare instance when the assessor ever finds any sheep in the county as valuable as those killed by dogs.—Frankfort Journal.

Why He Was Late.

"What made you so late?"

"I met Smithson."

"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."

"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"

"Sure, that is what he needs." Sold by J. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

The demand for a special session of the Kentucky legislature seems to have died out as neither the Governor nor the Lieutenant Governor were disposed to put the State to the unnecessary expense of assembling a body of men to plunge the State deeper in debt.

Democratic Harmony.

A coterie of Washington correspondents are deliberately enlisted in an attempt to stir up strife within the Democratic ranks and this is done by all kinds of malignant misrepresentation.

The distribution of spoils always offers an opportunity for arousing antagonism to men in power who have to dispose of these spoils. There are from ten to one hundred applicants for every office, and when one of these is appointed, the others become disgruntled.

In the minds of these irritated and inflamed correspondents of newspapers, openly or secretly antagonistic to the administration there is a golden opportunity offered by the fact that Mr. McCombs is not in the Cabinet and Mr. McAdoo is. The newspapers that were reluctant during the campaign to give the slightest credit to Mr. McCombs, a new man in politics, are now praising his generalship and accusing the President of ingratitude for having placed Mr. McAdoo in the Cabinet and left Mr. McCombs out.

There is no ground for these artificial disturbances and these false distinctions. The President has made it as clear as possible that Mr. McCombs declined to accept a place in the Cabinet. The next appointment within the President's gift was a foreign mission. That was offered Mr. McCombs, and he has it under consideration.

The public will be on its guard against all these attempts to distract public attention from the vital issues confronting the administration. There is harmony within the Democratic party such as has not existed before in the history of any party. How long it will prevail no one can determine; but unusual sagacity has been displayed, both in the things said and in the things withheld; in the things done and the things which the leaders have refrained from doing.

There, for instance, is the proposed tariff bill. Announcement is made that "the radicals have been beaten" in the last revision of the measure that is to be submitted to the House as soon as it meets next month. An examination of the story shows, on the contrary, that there have been no radical measures suggested, but that there has been a reasonable revision of the Underwood bill of last year, and all of these have been revisions downward.

That suffices to show the spirit prevailing among Democrats who call themselves free traders, and those who insist they are only for tariff revision. All legislation is a compromise, all action is based upon concession. The Democratic party cannot afford to go far ahead of public opinion. Public opinion today is not in favor of free trade, but even protectionists are willing to admit that there should be a revision of the tariff downward; that this should be made with the slightest possible injury to invested capital in organized industry.

This revision and this spirit the Democrats are preparing to make, and the indications are that they will make it with rare unanimity and with complete success, the Senate and the House being in perfect accord.—Louisville Evening Post.

Died From Fright.

The recent storms which swept over Clark county claimed a victim when Mrs. Lillie Brandenburg wife of D. Luther Brandenburg, died as a direct result of the fright and horror she experienced during the terrific cyclone. She was alone in the house at the time of the storm with her small child. She knelt on the floor shielding the child with her arms while through the window she saw barns blow down and trees uprooted. Upon the return of the family the woman was found paralyzed with terror. She gradually lost consciousness, dying Saturday at noon.

The Young Clydesdale Stallion,

THE KNIGHT,

Recorded Vol. 17 and 33.
His Scottish and American Stud Book numbers (16110) (16143)

THE KNIGHT is a dark brown with gray hairs, blaze face, four white legs, white spot on belly; foaled April 27, 1908, bred by James S. Stenhouse, Fod Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Crutch & Sons, Lafayette, Ind. in the fall of 1911. He was sired by Baronson (10981); 1st dam Princess of Fod the 1st, (17117) by Mains of Arles (13879); 2d dam Lady Madge (14553) by Gallant Potcath (8638); 3d dam Lady Darnly (7272) by Darnly (222).

This horse is a low set, thick well built horse, over 16 hands high, and weighs 1670 lbs. He stands on the best of feet and legs with a splendidd top; he also has rare good action.

This horse was a prize winner last fall at the Indiana and Illinois State Fairs—word to the wise. Remember that the Clydesdale is the coming popular horse for the American farmer, the result of experience and education.

I will give a cash prize of $15.00 for the best weanling colt regardless of sex, sired by The Knight and to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home in the fall of 1914.

This horse will be allowed to serve a number of good mares at the nominal sum of $15.00 to insure a live foal, money due when the fact is known or mare parted with. He can be seen at all times at the place of Wm. Ackmyer, one mile west of Bullittsville on the Bullittsville & Dry Creek pike.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

SEASON 1913

I wish to call the attention of the breeders of High Class Saddle and Harness Horses of Northern Kentucky in regard to

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS,

2844 A. S. B. A.
Bracken Chief (2148)
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Mambrino Le Grande 99

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1,300 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet,

By BRACKEN CHIEF 2148

by Harriron Chief 1606 by Clark Chief (89), dam, Kit Hardy (2880) by Indian Chief 1718).

1 dam Miss Berry 4084 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99)
2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112.
3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor)

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1908 and sold for $8,600, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show, Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmons? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest price Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief's and his sons and grand-sons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzsimmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible should any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Best's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners,
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

The Fine High Bred Percheron Stallion,

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1913 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs., and is 17½ hands in height. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

PRINCE OLSEN was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., where he was foaled in 1907, and from whom he was purchased by me in 1911, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olson was a high bred registered Percheron mare. I feel that farmers and breeders will make no mistake in breeding to Prince Olsen as it means a good, strong colt that will meet every requirement on the farm. One of the lacking features of our horses is the size and strength. With the well bred Percheron like Prince Olsen these essentials are fully incorporated.

Come and see the horse and inspect his good points and you will breed to him.

Two Fine Young Jacks,

Ben and Dewey.

BEN is a black jack with mealy points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ears, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Kentucky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. Service fee $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine jack, five years old, and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Take a look at them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

There are 6,000,000 telephone stations in this country and the amount of wire made use of will total at 12,000,000 miles. Some idea of what this total means may be grasped when we calculate that this length of wire could be wrapped around the earth 500 times and that it would make fifty separate lines from the earth to the moon, but there would not be near enough wire to reach from the earth to our nearest planetary neighbor, Venus.

Wants The News from Home.

Sending subscription for the Recorder, Mrs. C. H. Moler, of Mason, Nevada, writes: "I am a Boone county girl, and feel lost without my county paper, which is the best means of getting news from my relatives and friends in old Kentucky. I am the daughter of R. J. Stephens, of East Bend. I came west in 1911, since which I married and am living in Nevada.

Mason is a small town located on the desert, but the land around here is irrigated, and some very nice crops are raised.

Mason is not half as large as Burlington but more up-to-date. The houses have water and electric lights, while the streets are well lighted with electricy.

Nevada is the roughest State in the union, but pays better wages than anyother, being ahead of California in that respect."

Lost—Between Richwood church and Union, a package containing minutes and papers of the Mutual Telephone Co. Finder will please return to D. E. Bedinger, Richwood, Ky., and receive reward.

Persons having business with D. M. Snyder can reach him by calling telephone 185, Burlington, Ky.

Irvin Rue, near Burlington, has tobacco plants that have four leaves.

Letter From Florida.

Tampa, Florida,
March 26.

Editor of the Recorder:—

We have received our paper here and each time it was as a letter from home. Our visit here was with my brother, L. N. Crigler, owning a lovely home on Cleveland street, but we have visited many other places of interest, visiting friends and relatives in St. Petersburg, a most beautiful place. My powers of description fail to express the beauties of the place, and I will leave that to Mrs. Dr. Rouse by whom we were most delightfully entertained in their palatial home, and whose success has been phenominal in six years. We visited Anna Marie Beach, an island 36 miles out, Tampa Bay on one side and the Gulf of Mexico on the other, one of the few places in Florida that is both a summer and winter resort, an ideal place for fishing and surf bathing, and where frost is unknown and a paradise for flowers and tropical fruits. The probability is that you may be requested to address our paper there in winters hereafter. I would like to mention our fishing trip two miles out in the gulf where we caught two barrels of fish in a few hours, weighing 27 lbs., but I hesitate for a while it is true it might be called fishy.

Very Sincerely Yours,
MRS. B. C. TANNER.

The undersigned will receive sealed bids for the right to pasture the fair grounds at Florence, Ky., which bids must be in my hands by April 17th, 1913, at 12 o'clock noon. Any stock may be pastured except hogs and all stock must be removed from the grounds between August 13th and September 1st and possession to be given December 1st, 1913. The rent to be due and payable August 26th, 1913, and a bond for its payment must be given. The grass may be mowed instead of pastured. The right is reserved to reject any and all binds.

John B. Dixon, Committee.
R. F. D. Erlanger, Ky.

Poultry raising is becoming a nice industry in Webster. The farmers of this country raise thousands of dollars worth of poultry and eggs every year and there is room and demand for more at good prices.—Sebree News

A CARD OF THANKS.

April 1, 1913.

To the Hon. Mayor,
Florence, Ky.,

My Dear Sir:—Please extend the thanks of the flood sufferers of Ironton, Ohio, to your very thoughtful and generous citizens who sent such a splendid box of clothing, etc. Being closely allied with the relief department I was asked to acknowledge the generous donation and I assure you it has been only the great rush of work that prevents our Hon. Mayor acknowledging it in a way much more eloquent than I.

If your good people could only see the relief this box will do they would be many times repaid.

While we have lost no lives hundreds, yes thousands, are rendered homeless and many will have no homes to return to when the water recedes. Fire wiped out one city square.

Should Florence ever have such a calamity befall her I assure you Ironton will come to the front in every way possible.

Again thanking you and your generous citizens,

I beg to remain,
Very Truly Yours.
LESTER KELLER.

A canvass made by the Department of Agriculture in 13 States is said to show that 40 per cent of the farmers are paying no attention to the recommendations of the department in the matter of scientific agriculture. That is not such a bad showing. The department has not been in existence many years, and not in good working order all of that time. If 60 per cent. of our farmers are now profiting by the work of the agricultural experts the heads of the department have every reason to be gratified.

The neighborhood about the mouth of Big Bone creek was badly inconvenienced by the backwater as any section of this county. Many miles of the county roads were under water several feet deep, and travel had to take to the fields.

Undertaker Scott Chambers, of Walton, went to Petersburg, last Wednesday afternoon to receive the body of Mrs. Pritchard, who died in Lawrenceburg, and whose interment took place at Big Bone church, this county.

Local Happenings.

Small grain is looking well where it was not hit by the overflow.

Harry Ackemyer will be in Burlington next Monday with his fine stallion.

Just as it begins to look like good weather has come it clouds up and begins raining again.

J. W. Quigley, who died at Lakeland several days ago, was interred at Hebron, last Monday.

J. M. Eddins took his first lesson in operating an auto last Sunday. He found it some work.

The Consolidated Telephone Co. is planning to extend its lines into considerable new territory this spring.

A special session of the Kentucky legislature would only serve to get the State deeper in debt.

C. C. Roberts lost his pocketbook a few days ago. The finder will confer a favor by returning it to him.

Would any person suppose that there was 100 pianos lost at Maysville in the flood? Yet it is said there was.—Maysville Public Ledger.

The Burlington and Florence turnpike is in pretty good condition considering the condition of other pikes in this part of the county.

A committee came to Burlington from Constance, last Thursday, to solicit aid for the flood sufferers at that place and in Stringtown.

Chas. Westbay bought a good horse from Jas. Thompson, of Petersburg, one day last week, having first sold one of his to G. T. Gaines.

Miss Mary Roberts' school closed last Wednesday at noon. Miss Mary says she is not certain whether she is sorry or glad that the term has expired.

The remains of Mrs. Robert Baker, of Erlanger, were interped in the family cemetery on the old Ezekiel Utz homestead near Burlington, last Thursday.

The effort to get Gov. McCreary into the Senatorial fight has not produced results although for a while it looked very much like he would take a hand.

The gentlemen who is regarded as the best authority on fruit in the central part of the State has declared that the fruit crop in that section is in excellent condition.

It will not take much bad weather now to put the farmers behind with their spring work, as the weather to the present time has not been such as they could advance their work.

Prof. and Mrs. Dix entertained with a party last Saturday night in honor of Miss Etta Day, who is boarding there and attending school. The young people had a most enjoyable time.

People on lower Woolper creek should take good care of the joe boats which they used during the recent flood in the Ohio river. They may be very useful again in the next few months.

The farmers will be too busy for some time to give candidates a hearing, consequently they had better lay low until the crops are planted after which they will have plenty of time to make a campaign.

The fiscal court was in session Tuesday and rejected what few bids were in for keeping up the public roads, and authorized the county engineer to have the roads worked to the best advantage under existing conditions.

Don't be surprised if you have an attack of rheumatism this spring. Just rub the affected parts freely with Chamberlain's Liniment and it will soon disappear. Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv

There was a large crowd of people in town last Monday to witness the horse show which was numerically small, but three of the five animals were of the large type and were excellent individuals, and much admired by the crowd.

W. C. Weaver and his son Lloyd, have been having some fine sport fishing in Gunpowder creek the past two weeks, as, doubtless many others have. They have been catching fish that weigh from two to three and a half pounds—white and black suckers.

William Kirkpatrick has been looking the lamb crop over some and says the lambs are not of a good quality as a general thing so far as he has seen them. He thinks warm weather and good grass will make a very great improvement in the next few weeks.

The directors of the North Kentucky Agricultural Association held an all day meeeting at the fair grounds near Florence, last Saturday, and transacted considerable business preliminary to the fair to be held next August, which will begin on Thursday, August 28th.

"My little son had a very severe cold. I was recommended to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and before a small bottle was finished he was as well as ever," writes Mrs. H. Silks, 29 Dowling Street, Sydney, Australia. This remedy is for sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv

Mrs. Hannah M. Bedinger, of Bakersfield, Cala., died April 6th, after a short illness. Mrs. Bedinger formerly lived in Erlanger. Mrs. Jane F. Conner of Richwood, is a sister of Mrs. Bedinger. She was 81 years of age. Four daughters and one son survive her. She was the widow of Geo. M. Bedinger.

You will look a good while before you find a better medicine for coughs and colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only gives relief—it cures. Try it when you have a cough or cold, and you are certain to be pleased with the prompt cure which it will effect. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly. —Adv.

Lawrence Chambers, one of the many clever fellows always to be found in Petersburg, happened in Burlington, last Wednesday evening just in time to get the packages of Recorders for that office. The Recorder reached Petersburg in good time each week during the flood notwithstanding they could not be taken over the usual route.

Samuel Petitt, who resides down on Gunpowder, was in town early last Saturday morning and made the Recorder a call. Mr. Petitt is one of the county's large tobacco growers and always begins preparing early in the season for his crop, sowing his plant beds in the month of February. He said he examined his beds the day before he was in town and found the plants up and looking nicely, consequently he expects to get his crop pitched in good time unless the season proves unusually backward from now on.

The friends of Miss Marie Craven will be pleased to hear of her marriage to Mr. Augustus Cass Redewill at high noon, Sunday, April 6th, at Phoenix, Arizona. Mr. Redewill is a wealthy and prominent young man and highly esteemed by his friends in Phoenix. Miss Marie was attired in a lovely dress of point lace over white saten embroidered with pearls, a present from the groom's mother, who is traveling in E urope. Immediately after the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Redewill, with the best wishes of many friends, departed for Europe, where they will join Mrs. Redewill and daughter Miss Alice, mother and sister of the groom.

Prominent Lexington Men Interested In Plan to Build Great Hotel at Dry Ridge.

Kentucky will soon have a winter and summer resort similar to those in other States and of which the whole State may be proud. The resort will be located at Dry Ridge, Grant county, about 35 miles due south from Cincinnati, on the Q. & C. railroad and on the main automobile turnpike between Lexington and Cincinnati.

Dry Ridge is a high point, about 450 feet above Cincinnati and considered one of the healthiest points in the State.

The hotel will be a large modern substantial structure, built along the most approved lines to amply satisfy all reasonable demands of the most critical and to cater to the very wealthy as well as people of the more moderate means. It is also proposed to equip a first class golf course, tennis courts, etc., on the one hundred acres of ground which the company proposes to purchase and on which it will build its hotel, baths, etc., and in every other way make the company's property just as attractive to its guests as is reasonably possible.

The water is of a very dark color, almost black and is administered both internally and by hot and cold baths, just as prepared by nature about 1,100 feet below the surface of the ground.

The company will do a large bottling business as the demand for the water is already growing very extensively.—Lexington Leader.

IN ONE GRAVE

Porter Family, Victims of Dayton Flood, Was Buried.

Williamstown, Ky., April 3.—This village was this afternoon the scene of one of the most remarkable events in its history, when six members of a family were laid side by side in one large grave.

They were James Porter, wife and four children, all of whom were drowned last week in the Dayton Ohio, flood. The bodies arrived here last night.

The flood conditions did not permit their shipment earlier. Six hearses were driven in solemn procession to the grave, each carrying the body of one of the victims.

Scores of people from all sections of the county visited the undertaking establishment and viewed the bodies, and hundreds followed them to the burying ground.

The Porter family formerly resided near this place, and they had a large number of relatives here.

The Flood and Disease.

Now that the worst is known about the flood; now that it is seen as far as Louisville is concerned, that no great injury has been inflicted; now that even Dayton begins to take notice, the alarmists are out with predictions of a plague following the flood.

There is nothing relating to previous history that justifies this apprehension. In a little while even Dayton's waterworks will be in operation, her streets will be cleaned, her sewers opened, all of the machinery for the promotion of health and cleanliness will be in operation and Dayton will be clean and its health as good as ever.

In Louisville, as Mayor Head very well says, the health department is perfectly capable of dealing with the situation, and that we will not need, and we will not ask, aid from the Federal authorities.

That is the spirit in which to face every emergency, the spirit of self reliance and self government, a spirit above fear and apprehension. We know the situation and know how to deal with it, and we are prepared to deal with it, and we will deal with it.

We believe that the plague stories sent from Dayton and other submerged districts are born of hysteria. The exaggerations are marvelous and they are harmful. When men begin to fear sickness they get sick. The talk about a plague is absurd. There is going to be no plague. The waters are going to fall. In two weeks the Ohio Valley will have forgotten the Dayton flood, as they have forgotten the Johnstown flood, save as an historical incident. Here in Louisville the record of 1913 will be written to be used hereafter as a measure of comparison but the evil effects will soon pass.

They will pass all the sooner by meeting the difficulties in the spirit expressed by Mayor Head, when he said: "I will not ask the Federal officers to aid, for I think the city health office will be perfectly able to handle the local situation."

ALL GOING DRY.

(Hazard Herald.)

Even the wells of the town have got into their innermost depths a notion to dry up—not according to the prohibition law, but the law of supply and demand, coupled with the natural law of water seeking its own level. The courthouse well, being so much lower, is draining the water from other wells not dug as deep, is the cause. If other wells are sunk below that of the courthouse well, then the question is reversed. Moral: Get the waterworks going and there will be less need of a supply from the courthouse well or any other.

Geo. Blyth bought several milk cows last week at high prices but sold them at a nice advance.

The Tricks of the "Ill Wind."

The old saying, "It is an ill wind which blows no one any good," has been exemplified in a most unusual way in a Kentucky town.

According to a dispatch from Danville a citizen of that city observed his chickens eating voraciously in the back lot. As it was not feeding time he was somewhat mystified as to the nature of the food that was being devoured and he proceeded to make an investigation. Much to his surprise he found the lot liberally sprinkled with ripe mulberries.

Everybody knows, at least everybody in Kentucky, knows that fresh home grown mulberries are not to be found in Boyle county at this time of year. Kentucky mulberry trees hardly have begun the budding process and will not be in fruitage for some months hence. The question arises, whence came the berries? The Danville man has a theory on the subject. According to the dispatch he is confident that the cyclone which swept over that region recently brought the mulberries from the far Southwest—probably from Southern Texas or Mexico. The theory overreaches itself, however when the poultry owner is made to say that probably an entire mulberry tree was wafted to Danville by the storm and that "he got the berries, while some one else got the tree."

Conceding that a cyclone may carry a mulberry tree thousands of miles, who is going to believe that the fruit would remain on the branches until the cyclone paused in its maddening flight to shake the berries into some favored individual's chicken lot? Is it not more likely that the "ill wind" in this case took toll of somebody's canned goods, and, somewhat luckily for the chickens, dropped a consignment of mulberry preserves where it would do the most good?—C.-J.

Kentucky's strawberries are in fine shape and will soon be in full bloom.

A great number of peach buds have been killed in Texas but some sections report good prospects.

The freeze did damage to some important peach growing sections while others escaped.

H. F. Hillenmeyer, Lexington, says the fruit crop is uninjured although there is danger up to May 1.

Some farmers in Scott county have been fortunate enough to get their potatoes planted in spite of the heavy rains last week.

It is believed the fruit crop around Lancaster, was blighted by the recent freeze and cold snap. Both peach and plum trees were in full blossom, with every indication of an unusually abundant yield.

A great deal of anxiety is being experienced by the fruit growers around Adairville, for the safety of the fruit crop, the prospects having been exceedingly bright for an unusually large yield this season. Early bearing trees of peaches, plums and cherries have been in bloom for a number of days, and the recent cold weather has caused considerabel damage to the trees that are so far advanced.

The first of April finds Warren county in a most excellent condition as far as crops are concerned, and the work on the farms has been advanced materially. Particularly is the strawberry crop very promising. The recent cold weather has had no ill effect, and the 1,000 acres of berries this year will yield a greater crop than that of 1912, barring any unforseen contingency. The only great danger now is from either late frosts, or a drouth when the berries are putting on; the latter now seems the greater of the two dangers. Shipments will begin within eight weeks.

Fifteen Hundred Acre Orchard.

Elizabethtown, Ky., April 2.—The 75,000 apple trees for the 1,500 acre apple orchard to be planted in Hardin county under the supervision of the State Agricultural Department arrived today from Shenandoah, Ia. The trees will be planted in the Hardin county High School campus and will be distributed to the farmers next fall. The trees are furnished free to the members of the Hardin County Fruit Growers' Association by the Agricultural Department to establish an experimental orchard, and the state will furnish an expert horticulturist without cost to plant, to cultivate, to spray and to trim the trees for a period of five years.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job in painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

$50,000 A YEAR SQUANDERED???

"Teachers to Teach Teachers to Teach" Needed Today.

HEARD AT COUNTRY STORE.

Two Old Timers Express Their Views on Up to Date Educational Methods and Expenses of State Normal School. "Old Fashioned" Training No Longer "Good Enough."

"Say, did you ever notice how easy it is to spend the state's money? That school, the one they call the normal school, uses about $50,000 a year, I hear. That $50,000 is for just the normal school in this end of the state too."

"Mighty different when we were boys, Bill. We didn't have to have teachers to teach teachers to teach."

The two old codgers in front of the country store shook their heads sadly over the follies and the extravagances of the present day. A young man who had been industriously whittling a stick and listening attentively at the same time laughed, and then asked, "How much of the $50,000 does this county pay?"

"I dunno," answered one of the men.

"Well, I do," snapped the youth. "A little less than $700, that's all."

"Well, what do we get back for it? An' what do the other counties in the state get for what money they put in?"

"You get a number of trained teachers, and so do the other counties in the state."

"We don't need 'em. The ol' fashioned kind are good enough."

"Hold on a moment! Think! When you men were boys a bright youngster could go into any doctor's office for a couple of years, then hang out his shingle and practice medicine. He did the best he could, but you wouldn't think of having that sort of physician for your family today.

"I'd like to know what that's got to do with teachin' school."

"Just this—that your ideas about school and teaching are about fifty years behind the times. If you must have a trained man to look after your child's body you certainly must have a trained man or woman to look after the child's mind."

"I get mighty tired of you youngsters with all your newfangled ideas for spending money. I tell you what, you're tryin' to do things too fast."

"There!" snapped the young man again. "I told you you didn't stop to think. Two years ago in front of this very store I heard both of you cussin' the Boys' Corn club movement. You said that nobody could possibly grow 100 bushels of corn on an acre of land in this neighborhood or in the state of Kentucky for that matter."

"Well?"

"In this state during the past summer fifty-six boys, boys in the country schools, boys yet under eighteen, grew 100 bushels or much better. Do you two men know that this movement has been handled by the very school you are fussing about? Four thousand boys in this state grew an acre of corn apiece in the Boys' Corn club contest. I'd be willing to bet that each one of the 4,000 earned $10 more than he would have earned if there hadn't been any Boys' Corn clubs in the state, wouldn't he?"

"I reckon so."

"Well, then, 4,000 boys earning $10 each makes $40,000 of that $50,000 the state is spending on that school, don't it? Seems to me as if it was a rather good investment for the state if it does happen to be newfangled."

W. I. ROUSE.

Willford Iverson Rouse was born November 4, 1859. He was married to Aletha M. Hagish August 26, 1886, died April 3, 1913. He leaves a wife and two sons, Hubert and Karl, and a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn his loss. His family has lost a kind husband and indulgent father, his neighbors a true and tried friend and his county one of her best citizens. His life and dealings with his fellowmen were of that stamp that always characterizes the true and noble man. His suffering was borne with patience and fortitude and his death was calm and peaceful, leaving his family and friends that blessed hope that he has passed into eternal rest. By his own request Rev. H.C. Wayman conducted a short funeral service at the home after which his body was buried in the family lot at Burlington.

A NEIGHBOR.

A Peculiar World is This.

This is a peculiar world. One is struggling for justice and another is fleeing from it. One man is trying to build a house and another is trying to sell his for less than cost to get rid of it. One man is spending all the money he can make in taking a girl to a theatre and sending her flowers with the hope of making her his wife, while his neighbor is spending what gold he possesses in getting a divorce. One man escapes all the disease that flesh is hair to and gets killed on the railroad. Another escapes with a scratch and dies with the whooping cough. One man stands off his creditors and goes traveling, while another pays off his debts and stays at home.—Ex.

Carl Harrison and Judson Pitman went to Benton last Sunday and had in their possession several new 1913 5 cent pieces and when they offered one of the new coins in part payment to a cab man for passage from the city to the depot, they were reported to the town marshal and arrested for passing counterfeit money. After some considerable trouble the boys found a cashier of the bank, who convinced the authorities that the money was genuine, and they were released. —Murray Ledger.

A Perfect Separator Oiling System

In a machine which is operated at the speed required for a cream separator, perfect oiling is very necessary.

The new system of De Laval automatic oiling provides for a constant and liberal supply of CLEAN oil to every wearing surface of the machine at all times. There are no oil holes to fill up with dirt or perhaps to be neglected altogether, and every part is supplied with clean oil from the oil reservoir automatically and constantly.

In other, so-called, automatic oiling systems some of the parts have to be oiled by hand and no provision is made for getting rid of dirt that may get into the oil from the outside or of small particles of metal which come from wear, so that after a short time the oil supply becomes foul and injurious to the finely adjusted wearing parts.

have the only automatic oiling system which provides for a constant supply of fresh oil and, at the same time, the constant discharge of the used oil together with all worn metal particles or dirt which may have gotten into the used oil.

The perfect system of De Laval lubrication means an easier running and a much longer wearing machine. Come in and let us explain the advantages of De Laval automatic oiling.

WILSON READS HIS MESSAGE

SAYS TO CONGRESS WE MUST ABOLISH EVERYTHING THAT BEARS SEMBLANCE OF PRIVILEGE.

DUTY LAID UPON THE PARTY

Advocates Putting Our Business Men and Producers Under the Stimulation of Constant Necessity of Being Efficient, Economical and Enterprising.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Washington.—The following is President Wilson's message, read by him personally in congress:

"I have called the congress together in extraordinary session because a duty was laid upon the party now in power at the recent elections which it ought to perform promptly, in order that the burden carried by the people under existing law may be lightened as soon as possible and in order, also, that the business interests of the country may not be kept too long in suspense as to what the fiscal changes are to be to which they will be required to adjust themselves.

WOODROW WILSON.

"It is clear to the whole country that the tariff duties must be altered. They must be changed to meet the radical alteration in the conditions of our economic life which the country has witnessed within the last generation. While the whole face and method of our industrial and commercial life were being changed beyond recognition the tariff schedules have remained what they were before the change began, or have moved in the direction they were given when no large circumstance of our industrial development was what it is to-day.

Fix the Tariff and Business Will Thrive.

"Our task is to square them with the actual facts. The sooner that is done the sooner we shall escape from suffering from the facts and the sooner our men of business will be free to thrive by the law of nature (the nature of free business) instead of by the law of legislation and artificial arrangement.

"We have seen tariff legislation wander very far afield in our day—very far indeed from the field in which our prosperity might have had a normal growth and stimulation. No one who looks the facts squarely in the face or knows anything that lies beneath the surface of action can fail to perceive the principles upon which recent tariff legislation has been based.

"We long ago passed beyond the modest notion of 'protecting' the industries of the country and moved boldly forward to the idea that they were entitled to the direct patronage of the government. For a long time—a time so long that the men now active in public policy hardly remember the conditions that preceded it—we have sought in our tariff schedules to give each group of manufacturers or producers what they themselves thought that they needed in order to maintain a practically exclusive market as against the rest of the world.

Privilege Must Give Way to Free Business.

"Consciously or unconsciously, we have built up a set of privileges and exemptions from competition behind which it was easy by any, even the crudest, forms of combination to organize monopoly; until at last nothing is normal, nothing is obliged to stand the tests of efficiency and economy, in our world of big business, but everything thrives by concerted arrangement. Only new principles of action will save us from a final hard crystallization of monopoly and a complete loss of the influences that quicken enterprise and keep independent energy alive.

"It is plain what those principles must be. We must abolish everything that bears even the semblance of privilege or of any kind of artificial advantage, and put our business men and producers under the stimulation of a constant necessity to be efficient, economical and enterprising masters of circumstance, merchants of quality, supremacy, better workers and merchants than any in the world.

"Aside from the duties laid upon articles which we do not, and probably can not, produce, and the duties laid upon luxuries, and merely for the sake of the revenues they yield, the object of the tariff duties henceforth laid must be effective competition, the whetting of American wits by contest with the wits of the rest of the world.

"It would be unwise to move toward this end headlong, with reckless haste, or with strokes that cut at the very roots of what has grown up amongst us by long process and at our own invitation. It does not alter a thing to upset it and break it and deprive it of a chance to change. It destroys it.

Must Have Change, But Not Revolution.

"We must make changes in our fiscal laws, in our fiscal system, whose object is development, a more free and wholesome development, not revolution or upset or confusion. We must build up trade, especially foreign trade. We need the outlet and the enlarged field of energy more than we ever did before.

"We must build up industry as well, and must adopt freedom in the place of artificial stimulation only so far as it will build, not pull down.

"In dealing with the tariff the method by which this may be done will be a matter of judgment, exercised item by item. To some not accustomed to the excitements and responsibilities of greater freedom our methods may in some respects and at some points seem heroic, but remedies may be heroic, and yet be remedies. It is our business to make sure that they are genuine remedies.

"Our object is clear. If our motive is above just challenge and only an occasional error of judgment is chargeable against us, we shall be fortunate.

"We are called upon to render the country a great service in more matters than one. Our responsibility should be met and our methods should be thorough, as thorough as moderate and well considered, based upon the facts as they are, and not worked out as if we were beginners.

We Are to Deal With Facts of Our Own Day.

"We are to deal with the facts of our own day, with the facts of no other, and to make laws which square with those facts. It is best, indeed it is necessary, to begin with the tariff. I will urge nothing upon you now at the opening of your session which can obscure that first object or divert our energies from that clearly defined duty.

"At a later time I may take the liberty of calling your attention to reforms which should press close upon the heels of the tariff changes, if not accompany them, of which the chief is the reform of our banking and currency laws; but just now I refrain.

"For the present, I put these matters on one side and think only of this one thing—of the changes in our fiscal system which may serve to open once more the free channels of prosperity to a great people whom we would serve to the utmost and throughout both rank and file."

Enjoyed Her Egg.

Among the Burlington contributions of provision for the Lawrenceburg flood sufferers was an egg cooked by Mrs. A. B. Renaker on which Mr. Renaker wrote the following: "I hope you will enjoy this egg," and wrote underneath, the name of his little two year old daughter, Mary Louise Renaker, and last Friday a letter was received at the Burlington postoffice, addressed to the little girl and is as follows:

Lawrenceburg, Ind., March 31,

Dear Friend:—Thanks for your kind message, and I certainly enjoyed the egg. Our town is an awful sight. I only wish you could see it—houses and the people are almost frantic. Some have saved everything they possess and others nothing. All we have saved is what clothes we had on our backs. As I have been sick since Dec. 29, I could not see to anything, but I am so thankful we escaped with our lives. All the factories are destroyed and we have not very cheerful prospects before us, but if we do not have to hear the little ones begging for bread that is all I ask. This is the first flood that I have ever witnessed, and I pray that it may be the last. We have a few cases in town of contagious diseases, and the people put a tent upon the hill and they have them out there. It is scary and the water still coming fast. There are twenty people all together in two rooms, one a blind woman, who cries all the time, thinking she will be drowned. I only wish I was back in old Kentucky, as there is my old home town, and it made me feel good to receive a message from there. I have found Kentuckians are true blue for helping one another. Well I will close, hoping I will receive an answer. I hope you can read this.

UNION.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kennedy, also the seventieth birthday of Mrs. Kennedy was celebrated at their home in Union, Ky., March 31st, 1913. The celebration was a surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy having been arranged for by their three daughters, Mrs. O. M. Huey, of Louisville, Ky., Mrs. J. W. Poindexter of Cynthiana, Ky., and Mrs. S. C. Hicks, of Walton, Ky. There were ten grandchildren and one great grand child present, all grandchildren being present but three.

A sumptuous dinner was served to forty-one guests at noon. The spacious dining room was tastily decorated in white and gold, and the pink and white carnations presented by Rev. O. M. Huey and Mr. J. W. Poindexter added much to the beauty of the scene. From two o'clock until five the friends in general were entertained numbering about sixty in all. They were served to ice cream and cake and nicely waited upon by the Misses Mary Elizabeth and Lucy Katherine Hicks.

During the day Mrs. Kennedy had a pleasant smile for all, which was very symbolic of the fifty years of happiness and prosperity during her wedded life. She smiled still more when grandson Wm. Huey sat near and whispered words of love, Baby Katherine Louise Huey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Huey, of Corinth, Ky., added her share to the happiness of the guests with laughter and cooing. It was a noticeable fact that every time she came near great grandpa Kennedy he couldn't help but snap his fingers and whistle as though she were the only great granddaughter in the world.

While Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy were not expecting any presents they were the recipients of many beautiful gifts given by relatives and friends.

About five o'clock the guests wished Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy many more years of happiness and took their departure, all having spent an enjoyable afternoon. Mr. Kennedy's parting words were that he had spent such a pleasant day he would like to have another "Golden Wedding." Some of the relatives and friends present were Mrs. Sallie Hicks, Mrs. Sallie Adams, Mrs. Ella Weaver, Mrs. Elric Garrison, Mrs. Elizabeth Huey, Mrs. Bert Gaines and sons, Thomas Judge, Lee Huey, Samuel Hicks, Wm. Poindexter, Harvey A. Hicks, Edward Huey, James K. Hicks, Sam C. Hicks, John Poindexter, Jas. A. Huey, Mrs. J. M. Crouch, Mrs. Joseph Huey, Miss Nannie Huey, Miss Mariam Morriss Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hann, Mrs. Rachel Rice, Mrs. Napoleon Bristow and Mr. and Mrs. Ossman.

The pike near Rabbit Hash took several slides during the wet spell and had to be repaired before it could be traveled. The soil is kind of a soapy mixture and slips like grease.

Our rural carrier has been knocked out for about three weeks from making his rounds, and from the condition of the roads it will be at least six weeks before he can make his trips. Why cannot some one make an effort to repair the roads?

Miss Mary Ann, daughter of the late Milton and Frances Carroll Kirtley, was born May 12th, 1843, died April 7th 1913, aged 69 years, 10 months and 24 days. She was the oldest of a family of nine children, seven girls and two boys who have all departed this life except one brother, William E. She leaves one niece and three nephews and a great many relatives and friends to mourn her departure. Miss Mary was a woman, kind hearted and always trying to make life bright to all she came in contact with, and she won the esteem and affection of all who were associated with her. In every relation of life she has left those who knew her a multitude of sweet memories. Her funeral was preached by Rev. Hensley, of Belleview at her late residence, April 8th, and she was laid to rest at the family grave yard at the old home.

This community has passed thru one of the most destructive floods that the oldest inhabitant can remember. While it lacked about fifteen inches being as high as it was in 1884 it did tenfold the damage and to take a bird's eye view of this community the damage looks irreparable. From this place to the mouth of Gunpowder the following houses were in the water and the occupants were run out:—E. M. Hodges, T. A. Clore, Clarence McMurray, R. L. Piatt, Parmenia Stephens, R. T. Stephens, Mrs. Emma Riggs, Filmore Ryle, Ollie Ryle, Blufe Kirtley, Will Kirtley and Lewis Craig, C. G. Riddell's store, S. N. Riggs' shop and Farnk Hodges saw mill were all under water, Ben Wilson, Miss Parmelia Stephens and the ferry property lost most of their outbuildings. The river rose so rapidly that the people had very little time to secure their buildings. On Tuesday night March 25th, the river rose fifteen feet, which was never known before on the stage of the water at that time. Since the river has receded it left a deposit of slimy mud from six inches to two feet deep over everything. We had no mail for ten days; all the telephones were down and the only one that could be used was from here to Burlington, and if it had not been for C. G. Riddell's nephew, Edison Riddell, at Burlington, his store would have got in the water good and proper. Cal had decided he would not move until Friday morning when he received a phone message from Burlington saying the water was rising rapidly above, so he commenced to move Thursday night and by Friday morning the water was all in the store. He had put his goods in the K. of P. Hall and thought they were safe and on Sunday morning the water began to come in the hall and he had to procure help and move upstairs. It is hard to make any estimate of the damage by the water, buildings damaged, building washed away fences destroyed and time lost we would say $2,500 would be a conservative amount and on the other hand there has been hundreds of dollars worth of lumber, houses and other drift caught besides the rich sediment that has been left on the East Bend bottoms, which no estimate can be made.

President Wilson's inaugural address and his first message to Congress was each a brief document but to the point and very clear, which cannot be said of all such documents. No evasion nor hedging anywhere.

The news reached here last Saturday that Oscar Sullivan and family, of Miamimasburg, are in bad on account of the flood. Their home was flooded and all they had was ruined.

They say that W. W. Grimsley, at the mouth of Big Bone creek, reaped quite a harvest while the river was high, catching almost everything. He and Mr. Brown landed several houses and other buildings, one a bowling alley 100 feet long, in which there is a lot of fine lumber. Mr. Grimsley played one game and then decided to wreck the alley.

May Get A Peep at the Books.

Judge Tracy, of the Kenton County Circuit Court, in the suit of Elmer Stansifer and others against the Burley Tobacco Company, decided that the election of the officers of the Burley Tobacco Company was irregular and illegal, and appointed commissioners to examine the Company's books and ascertain who the stockholders are in order that a legal election may be held. The stockholders are those from whose tobacco ten per cent was deducted as per the conditions of the pooling contract but were not notified as to the time and place of the election of the officers of the company. If the appellate court sustains Judge Tracy the management of the company's business will be brought back to the stockholders and the poolers may after all get to see the books and learn something about the business. With that end in view the stockholders have made several attempts to have the courts grant them the privilege of looking at the books, but so far, of all the judges appealed to, Judge Tracy is the only one who had the nerve to overrule the contentions of the Burley Tobacco Company and recognize the alleged rights of the stockholders.

Two Hundred Indictments Quashed

Lexington, April 15.—A sensation was caused in the Circuit court today when Judge Charles Kerr sustained the motion of attorneys for the defendants and declared all of the approximately 200 indictments for gambling which had been returned by the special grand jury last February to be invalid on the ground that Assistant County Attorney Chester D. Adams, had, contrary to law, been present at the sessions of the grand jury. The special grand jury had been empaneled for the express purpose of investigating gambling in slot machines and otherwise in saloons and similar resorts, and by the decision of the court today practically all of its work, extending over nearly a month is nullified. Only one of the persons that the grand jury had indicted missed the general amnesty.

Caucus Working Slowly.

Washington, April 2.—Slow progress in consideration of the new tariff bill by the Democratic House caucus has upset the early prediction that the bill would be ready for the Senate by May 1st. After a week deliberation the caucus is less than halfway through the proposed measure with several of the important schedules yet to be disposed of, notably wool and cotton. The income tax also is certain to require considerable time in discussionas members desire to have it thoroughly explained.

Wants His Parol,

Frankfort, April 15.—J. C. Smith a convict in the Eddyville penitentiertiary, was awarded a mandamus in the circuit court today, requiring the State Prison Commission to issue him a parol. He has served over two years of an indeterminate sentence and claimed he was entitled to a parol under the law as a matter of right as his prison record was certified as good.

Circuit Court.

The April term of the Boone Circuit Court convened last Monday at about ten o'clock, Judge J. W. Cammack presiding and M. L. Downs, Commonwealth's Attorney present to look after the interest of the State. The grand jury was impaneled the first thing and give a comprehensive and forceful instruction. The jury is composed of the following gentlemen:

L. T. Clore, Foreman,
Harvey S. Tanner,
J. H. Kelly,
E. A. Souther,
John Cleve,
Chester Aylor,
Leslie Sullivan,
F. M. Voshell,
Douglas Moore,
Ezra Blankenbeker,
L. H. Clore,
John H. Feely,
A. W. Gaines.

Having sent the grand jury to its room the court proceeded to organize the petit juries for the term as follows:

Petit Jury No. 1.—
J. A. Barlow,
B. C. Graddy,
W. L. B. Rouse,
J. M. Craven,
Wood Stephens,
C. T. Northcutt,
G. R. Williamson,
J. G. Smith,
W. E. Walton,
R. S. Cowen,
Robert Green,
Chas. A. Gaines.

Petit Jury No. 2.—
T. G. Graves,
H. H. Hearne,
H. L. Tanner,
Moses Pope,
Blant Jones,
Holt White,
W. F. Bradford,
Ben Paddock,
A. C. Porter,
R. C. Gaines,
Ezra Wilhoit.

The docket for the first day was called and several fines were imposed and paid by the parties against whom judgments were taken. It soon became evident that the services of the petit juries would not be needed before Thursday, and the gentlemen composing these juries were excused until then. The court did a big days work for a beginner.

Alvin Steiger, clerk of the Owen circuit court, is assisting circuit clerk Maurer with his work. Mr. Steiger is one of the best clerks in the State, and an all-around fine fellow.

The petit jurors were glad to be excused until Thursday as most of them are very busy at home when the weather admits.

The Belleview Graded school suit against W. B. Walton was set for hearing yesterday. Mr. Walton claims that he was placed in said district in an illegal manner and is refusing to pay the school tax assessed against him.

The grand jury will adjourn today.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Blyth spent a day or two with friends in Cincinnati, last week.

G. G. Hughes spent the first of the week at Petersburg with his daughter, Mrs. Earl Walton.

Miss Mary Thompson is home from a visit of several days with Ludlow and Erlanger friends.

Mrs. Timothy Westbay, of Covington, was the guest of Misses Annie and Pinkie Cowen a few days last week.

Geo. Riley is at home from Los Angeles, Cala., for a few months visit on account of the bad condition of his eyes.

Mrs. E. K. Stephens and Miss Graham Roberts, of Walton, were Sunday and Monday guests of relatives in Burlington.

Kirb Sullivan, of Covington, was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Sullivan, near town, a couple of days the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kelly, of Locust Grove neighborhood, spent a few days the past week with their daughter, in Lebanon, Ohio.

Mrs. Leslie Goodridge and little daughter, Lillian, of Erlanger, spent several days the past week with relatives in Burlington and vicinity.

Jas. L. Clore and Timothy Westbay, of Covington, and Dr. O. S. Crisler, of Newport, were here county court day, mixing with the court day crowd.

The fellow who opposes good roads because "the fellows about the small towns only want them, as he charges, manifests gross ignorance. It is a fact that there is not a town in Boone county without a good road leading to the city, to a railroad or to the river—affording speedy and comfortable travel. The fact is "the fellows about the small towns" are not preaching good roads as strong as are the people in some other parts of the county.

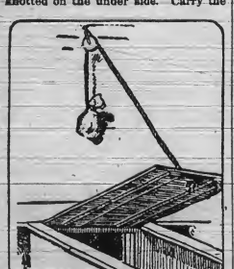
BUYING UP OLD IRON

It Can Be Used to Reinforce Concrete Structures.

Cement Posts, Water Tanks and Pig Troughs Will Be Stronger If Pieces of Old Machinery Are Mixed In When Molded.

Buy up the old iron, sold at the public sales next spring, and use it in reinforcing your concrete structures. Such articles as old buggies, discarded machinery and junk piles usually are sold at the first bid. This material makes good reinforcing for concrete corner posts. Cement posts are becoming popular, and there is a great demand for reinforcing material. Old iron, that would otherwise be an eyesore and a nuisance about the place, can be used to good advantage.



The successful farmer of the future will use much cement. He can make water tanks, pig troughs and similar stationary articles about the farm so they will be everlasting.

A roller can be made of cement for about what the freight would cost on one shipped from the manufacturer. Get a shaft about two inches in diameter and one foot longer than the length of the roller, and build a form of one-inch boards, using old wagon tires for hoops. Be sure that the structure is firmly supported in the middle to prevent bulging; old mowing machine wheels which will fit the shaft may be used for reinforcement, and will aid in centering the shaft accurately. Old iron from the junk pile may be used in the reinforcing if there are not enough old wheels at hand. After the form is arranged the adding of cement is a simple matter. A proportion of about one part of cement to three parts of sand is recommended. Crushed rock, or hard cinders, may be used to replace two parts of the sand. After the roller is finished the frame and hitch may be built according to the materials, and the ideas, of the user. The hitch should be placed low so the weight will be removed from the tongue. That will prevent sore necks on the horses.

DEVICE SAVES THE TEMPER

Arrangement on Cellar Door Keeps It Up Until Lowered—Quite Easy of Manipulation.

As a temper-saving device, try the following if you have an old-fashioned cellar door outside of the house, writes Lee McCrae of Alabama in the Farm and Home. Attach the hinges to the upper end of the door, and in the lower end bore a hole through which a small rope may be run and knotted on the under side. Carry the other end of the rope up to a small pulley fastened to the eaves or to a stout scantling, and tie to the end a sack of stones or some good weight sufficent to hold up the door when given the least lift. The door goes up at a touch and it stays up until lowered.

Chicken Coops.

It is a good time now to make a few chicken coops that are sure to be needed next spring and so have them ready when wanted. Get a few good packing boxes from the store and carefully take them apart; then build some neat, substantial, but light chicken coops, putting on a piece of patent roofing to keep them all safe and dry; and if a coat of paint is put on so much the better, as it will make them quite ornamental scattered about the grounds, and they will last longer, too.

The Compost Heap.

A few old fence rails, built together in a square in the garden, will hold all the rubbish that is fit for decomposing. Add to it the weeds from the garden and manure and all ashes from the house. Pour the wash water over it and allow it to pack thoroughly. It will be of value for next spring while it concentrates now all the waste refuse and prevents the hens from roadcasting it again.

Farrowing Sows.

The sow, like the dairy cow, should not be too thin at farrowing time. For some time prior to farrowing she should have some food rich in ash, or receive some bonemeal daily, and have access to wood ashes and lime for the framework of the unborn youngsters.

Good Investment.

It is pretty safe investment to put money into a good dairy calf or heifer at any time, provided of course, you can give her the right kind of care.

The Sheep Fund.

Frankfort, Ky.—After paying all claims for sheep killed by dogs, the Auditor's department will pay into the school fund from the 1912 dog tax $45,706.15, only half the amount turned over last year. The sheep claims amounted to $52,498.63. Sheep claims from each county are paid out of the dog tax collected in that county, and the balance, if any, goes to the school fund of the county from which the money originated. Thirty-two counties will receive no money from this fund for their schools, the sheep claims having more than used up the entire dog tax collections. Sheep claims in Jefferson county amounted to $650.45 and the schools will receive $795.31 balance.

There were no sheep claims in five counties: Edmonson, Greenup McCreary, Perry and Wolfe. Martin county had the smallest claim $3.50, and Madison county the highest, claims for sheep killed by dogs in that county amounting to $1,075.92, with not enough money to pay them. Pike county schools will receive the largest amount of any from the dog tax, $2,228.20.

The Election May Be Off.

The impression is general that the ratification of the amendment for election for Senators by popular vote affects the situation here in Kentucky, and that the Senatorial primary cannot be held until August, 1914 Lawyers who have looked into the matter are of the opinion that the amendment becomes effective upon the issuing of a proclamation, by Secretary of State Bryan, and that following that proclamation, it devolves upon the legislatures of the several States to adopt statutes providing for placing the names of candidates Senator upon the election ballots for Novemper elections.

The only law dealing with the election of Senators in Kentucky by the people is the new primary election statute. It provides that the party candidates shall pe chosen at the August primary election preceding the election at which they are to be regularly elected. At the time this statute was adopted it was contemplated that the final election would be in the General Assembly, but with the adoption of the amendment to the Federal Constitution, the wording of the present Kentucky statute could very easily be construed to mean that the candidates for Senator shall run in the August, 1914 primary election, as, if elected under the constitutional amendment, November, 1914, is the next day of election of a Senator from Kentucky, to to take the seat Bradley will vacate in March, 1915. If it is necessare for Kentucky to adopt a statute putting the amendment into effect in this State, this cannot be done until the meeting of the General Assempry to be chosen in November of this year. Such a statute could be adopted at a special session, but no one even contemplates that Gov. McCreary would include such matter in a special session, should there be one, which is not at all probable. There has been a suggestion made that possibly all of the States that have voted favorably to the constitutional amendment might not report officially to Washington until late in the fall, and in that event the only thing Kentucky could do would be to proceed with the selection fo nominees for Senator in the next August primary. Aowever it is rather thought that Congress will immediately take cognizance of the fact that enough States have adopted the amendment to put it into effect, and take some action that will look to a proclamation and suggestion to the several States as to putting the amendment into effect.

It is not optional with the States, as, under the amendment, only Senators elected by the will be recognizeb as Washington.

Why Kentucky is Debt Ridden

That the state of Kentucky is debt ridden today because Kentuckians have for years neglected the land, their chief source of wealth, was the sense of a talk given by Commissioner of Agriculture J. W. Newman in his introduction to the course of lectures on farming, which was held at the Young Men's Christain Association, under the auspices of the Louisville Carden Club. Rush C. Watkins, president of the Club, gave a brief preliminary address and presided at the meeting. "If all who have gone to other states," said Mr New Man "to farm and grow rich on the soil, should come back to Kentucky and go to work, you couldn't build a railroad big enough to carry the agriculture output. Our people however, do not come back. They go away and stay. Why? Because this State does nothing to develope citizenship. They have been preaching to us so long that Kentucky is the best State in the union, and Kentuckians the best people, that we have come to believe it, with the result that we have around here some of the poorest farmers in the country."—Ex.

Poultry Notes.

Don't try to raise more chicks than you can take care of. It will lower the chances of sucess.

Five hundred hens on an ordinary farm will do more to preserve and perpetuate its fertility than all the phosphate miner on earth.

Do not crowd either young or old Poultry. Twenty-five chicks in a brooder will do better than fifty. Use more brooders and fewer in each brooder.

Now, that the hens are broody in the laying house, gather your eggs often and don't get a bad reputation by sending some half-hatched eggs to the grocery.

The dealer in poultry finds a ready market for pure bred poultry, but he has to hunt for one in which to dispose of the "scrub" stock found on so many farms.

It is a comparatively easy matter to hatch any number of chicks. To do this is only necessary to have the breeding stock and the machinery necessary to do the haching

Above all things during the chick raising season keep the feet of the young birds dry and warm. The coop or brooder should have a board floor to keep the chicks from the damp ground.

For rheumatism you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. Try it and see how quickly it gives relief. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

Timely Notes.

The orchard is a fine place to have your chicken and turkey coops

Cultivate around the roots of the fruit trees and prune off water sprouts.

Spray your orchards now. It will do no good after the blossom buds have closed. Spray or have no fruit.

Take up and reset your peach trees you are growing from the seed and bud a few apples trees in seedlings

Feed your sows and young pigs all they want to eat and you will have them turned into good money by October.

Plant your garden truck in rows cultivation may be done by horse and plow use fertilizer and manure.

A barrel spray will do two partners and may be purchased for $10. Unless orchards are sprayed the fruit will be small and knotty.

We would suppose that every farmer has his lettuce beds and onion and radish crop started on good land. Fertilizer and manure will bring in an early crop.

Farmers may greatly increase crops in the garden by use of commercial fertilizer and by turning under fall crop of rye, crimson clover, or winter vetch.

There is the true account of a financial transaction which took place in an office in New York a few days ago. By some means or other it happened that the office boy owed one of the clerks 3 cents, the clerk owed the cashier 2 cents and the cashier owed the office boy 2 cents. The office boy, having a cent in his pocket, concluded to diminish his debt, and therefore handed the copper over to the clerk, who in turn paid half of his debt by giving the coin to the cashier. The latter handed the coin to the office boy, remarking, "Now I only owe you one cent." The office doy again passed the cent to the clerk, who passed it back to the cashier who passed it back to the office boy and the latter individual squarred a l accounts by paying it to the clerk, thereby discharging the entire debt.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the necessity of having pood seed corn to plant this spring, and when we say good we mean not only a good breed or variety but more so of good germination and vitality. Some selected ears look perfect but when the test is made for germination many of tnem should be put aside. The only way to prove their growing quality is to test them; arrange the ears in a row, nunnce each one, test a dozen grains from each and prove their soundness. The testing can easily be done by using shallow boxes of moist earth or sawdust or dy folding the grains in a dampened cloth. A few days will tell the story. Keep plenty of moisture and warmth around the grains, then discard all ears that are not perfect.

By paying carefnl attention to selection and testing of seed the yield of a field may be increased from five to ten bushels per acre.

The permanent beef—producing area of the future will be mainly in the natural pastoral region and the corn belt. Always the dalry area will encroach on the beef—producing territory. This is the evidence in the well—watered sections of the Northwest now, evidenced by clamor for milk cows those sections. In the evolutions of the beef industry the West including Texas will finish more cattle and market fewer stockers, but local consumption will increase meanwhile. The corn belt states will always do most of the finishing of commercial beef cattle. Eliminate Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska production and a vegetable diet would be imperative.—Chicago Live Stock World.

The Young Clydesdale Stallion,

THE KNIGHT,

Recorded Vol. 17 and 33.
His Scottish and American Stud Book numbers (16110) (16143).

THE KNIGHT is a dark brown with gray hairs, blaze face, four white legs, white spot on belly; foaled April 27, 1908, bred by James S. Stenhouse, Fod Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Leitch & Sons, Lafayette, Ill. in the fall of 1911. He was sired by Baronson (10981); 1st dam Princess of Fod the (17117) by Marcellus (10379); 2d dam Lady Madge (14568) by Gallant Poteath (8638); 3d dam Lady Darnly (7272) by Darnly (222).

This horse is a low set, thick well built horse, over 16 hands high, and weighs 1670 lbs. He stands on the best of feet and legs with a splendid top; he also has rare good action.

This horse was a prize winner last fall at the Indiana and Illinois State Fairs—word to the wise. Remember that the Clydesdale is the coming popular horse for the American farmer, the result of experience and education.

I will give a cash prize of $15.00 for the best weanling colt regardless of sex, sired by The Knight and to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home in the fall of 1914.

This horse will be allowed to serve a number of good mares at the nominal sum of $15.00 to insure a live foal, money dne when the fact is known or mare parted with. He can be seen at all times at the place of Wm. Ackmyer, one mile west of Bullittsville on the Bullittsville & Dry Creek pike.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

SEASON 1913

I wish to call the attention of the breeders of High Class Saddle and Harness Horses of Northern Kentucky in regard to

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS,

2844 A. S. B. A.
Bracken Chief (2148)
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Mambrino Le Grande 99

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1,200 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet.

By BRACKEN CHIEF 2148

by Harriron Chief 1606 by Clark Chief (89), dam, Kit Hardy (2880) by Indian Chief 1718).

1 dam Miss Berry 4034 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99) 2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112. 3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor)

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky.. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings in the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1912 and sold for $3,800, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show, Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmons? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest priced Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief's and his sons and grand-sons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzstmmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible should any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Beat's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners,
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

The Fine High Bred Percheron Stallion,

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1913 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs., and is 17¼ hands in height. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

PRINCE OLSEN was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., where he was foaled in 1907, and from whom he was purchased by me in 1911, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olson was a high bred registered Percheron mare. I feel that farmers and breeders will make no mistake in breeding to Prince Olsen as it means a good, strong colt that will meet every requirement on the farm. One of the lacking features of our horses is the size and strength. With the well bred Percheron like Prince Olsen these essentials are fully incorporated.

Come and see the horse and inspect his good points and you will breed to him.

Two Fine Young Jacks,

Ben and Dewey.

BEN is a black jack with mealy points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ears, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Kentucky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weanling time. Service fee $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine jack, five years old, and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Take a look at them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

Save Money on your Fencing by Putting up the Style Made to Meet your Requirements

It's downright foolishness to buy light chicken wire to put around your bull pasture—and you know it.

But some people do it because they don't think beyond the price-ticket on the roll of fence—at least not until they've had to patch the chicken wire a dozen times or so where that bull went through.

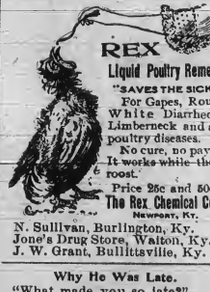
Then they put up a brand new stock fence.

There's no economy in that kind of fence-buying. The right fence in the first place costs less.

Our free catalogue tells how to buy fencing economically, effectively, wisely. Get it today and save money.

Made in Different Styles for FIELD, FARM, RANCH, LAWN, CHICKEN, POULTRY and RABBIT YARD and GARDEN

Every Rod Guaranteed



Ask your dealer for "Pittsburgh Perfect" and insist on his furnishing it. Do not allow him to persuade you that some other fence is just as good. If he doesn't sell it, write us direct.

Following are extracts from the speech of Senator Webb, made in the U. S. Senate Feb. 10th., 1913, upon the Kenyon-Webb bill to prevent the shipment of liquors into dry territory:

"To regulate interstate commerce." What does "regulate" mean? It means to prescribe rules for, and to prescribe rules means primarily to restrict. Unrestricted commerce is not regulated. It is free and unrestrained and has no regulation whatever. The derivation of the word "regulate" is from rego, which primarily means "to keep straight" (a very suggestive meaning in connection with this bill). The verb "reign" contains the primary meaning, and Webster's first definition is to possess or exercise sovereign power or authority; to exercise government as a king or emperor; to hold supreme power. Webster gives the third meaning to have superior or uncontrolled dominion. The first meaning of regulate in the Century Dictionary is to adjust by rule, method, or established mode; to govern by or subject to certain rules or restrictions. To regulate a machine is to adjust the governor so as to restrict or confine its movements to increase or lessen the power as occasion demands. To regulate a clock or a watch is to restrict its movements by a pendulum or compensating spring. Our forefathers in making our great Constitution used the word "regulate" in its ordinary use. They never intended to surrender the right of protecting their descendants from the greatest evil known to man. They pledged their fortunes as well as their sacred honor to guard the happiness of the people, and not the interests of the saloon and the stillhouse and the lawbreaker. Our forefathers who made our great Constitution, were great scholars and used words with great accuracy. They used "regulate," in my humble opinion, to mean that the power to restrict interstate commerce was in their hands, to be used as the needs of the people required.

You yourselves, Senators, gave that interpretation to the word when you prohibited the consignment of liquor to the Indian tribes. Later, when the Indian Territory became a part of the sovereign State of Oklahoma, the Supreme Court of the U. S. decreed that under your law consignments of liquor could not be transported to that part of Oklahoma which was formerly the Indian Territory. Have not we in Tennessee, in our father's house, a right to expect that you do as well for us and our children as you do for others? We simply ask for equal justice. We do not ask you to even help us execute our anti-liquor laws or delegate to us any power we do not possess. We simply ask you "to deprive liquors intended for unlawful purposes of interstate commerce character, and let us deal with such imported liquors as we would with liquors of domestic production intended for the same unlawful purposes."

Your laws regulate nitroglycerin and its products. That means they restrict; they prescribe conditions. They prohibit entirely from the whole Union absinthe simply because it intoxicates; but another intoxicant is said to have the right of way ever over the sovereign power of States and the nation itself. I have been myself denied by quarantine the privilege of crossing into my own State to my own home because I did not have with me a health certificate, and I had not been in contact with any contagion. Cattle, sheep, horses, hogs, and plants of every description are stopped, regardless of loss to the owners, because of anticipated disease. To regulate then, is evidently to restrict. It seems that the only commodity known to man that cannot be restricted is intoxicating liquors. If disease of animals and plants constitutes the difference, intoxicating liquors are responsible for more diseases of the body than all other causes combined, and, in addition, they send great multitudes to the madhouse, to suicides' graves; they destroy the will power, which alone constitutes true manhood. They undermine love and destroy homes. This great destroyer, the greatest evil known to man, seems to be, in the estimation of great lawyers, the only disease-breeding commodity that can have no restriction put upon it.

While our temperance laws in Tennessee are reasonably enforced in at least eighty per cent of the population and ninety-five per cent of the area, we are greatly hampered by the action of the Federal government in protecting under the interstate commerce law the shipment of liquor. We do not ask the government to assist us in the enforcement of our temperance laws, but we do ask that when the liquor crosses the State line it shall become subject to the laws of our own Commonwealth. We do ask that you leave in our hands consignments of liquor after they come within our boundaries. The State of Tennessee has long passed her majority and is clothed and in her right mind. She thinks she, on the ground, knows her people after more than a century of acquaintence better than the general government can know them, and asks that her discretion on this great question be supreme. She will be wise in the use of this discretion. She can discriminate between a proper consignment and one that is designed for a lawless purpose.

Tennessee's yoemanry in the days of the Revolution, at King's Mountain, living on parched corn, turned the tide of disaster and made this great government a possibility. Our incomparable Andrew Jackson, with a Tennessee army at New Orleans in the War of 1812, won imperishable glory for this nation. In the Civil War Tennessee furnished a great army on the side of the Union. The Republican party of our State, largely composed of old Federal soldiers and their descendants, have united hands and hearts with the old Confederate veterans and their descendants, who constitute the very backbone of Democracy, in support of this bill, and ask you simply to withdraw your protection from interstate consignments of liquor. We simply ask you not to give your protection to that lawless gang who, armed with your license, nullify the laws of the great State of Tennessee. Andrew Jackson, of Tennessee, twice President of the U. S., has some reputation on nullification. When he was your Executive he did not allow your laws to be nullified. We ask you today to pass this Kenyon-Sheppard bill, that you, the Senators of the United States, may not by your votes nullify the laws of the great Commonwealth of Tennessee, the home of Andrew Jackson.

This body of Senators, the greatest lawgivers in history, with the cooperation of the other House, preceded us. Every refreshment known to man, except intoxicating beverages, can be purchased in this capitol. You said to the civilized world, by excluding liquor from the capital of this great country, it is easier to be efficient legislators without than with intoxicating liquors easily accessible to you.

If you Senators can do your work better without an easily accessible drink stand, how about indiscreet youth and the great masses of the plain laborers of our country? Tennessee congratulates you on this right course in this capital, and would not force upon you a different policy if she could. Is it not in good form in this chamber to quote from Him who is the truth, the life, the way of nations as well as individuals, from Him who is the author of all good and whose precepts lie at the very foundation of all progressive civilization, on whose birth history pivots itself: "Do unto others as ye would that others do unto you"? If mankind could only even approach this ideal, it would solve the most complex problems of modern civilization, both national and individual.

Do not protect by your law of interstate commerce those who violate our laws. It is wrong to force this upon us. We are following your illustrious example, Senators. You taught us the way to make it easier to do right. It is wrong to thrust us back when we are simply walking in your footsteps. To give our State control of consignments of liquor when they cross the State line to within our jurisdiction is no precedent for other consignments of other commodities. You yourselves have set the example of making liquor different from other commodities. You have excluded liquor, and liquor alone, from this great capital. This, in your estimation, set it apart as different from other commodities. Your method of taxation has set it apart as different from all other commodities. The producer of liquor is not permitted by law to control or even have access to his own product except in the presence of your officers. No other product of man has such a brand of distrust upon it and its producer. It is a positive wrong and a positive discourtesy for you by your licenses and your protection of liquor to nullify our laws by your method of regulating interstate commerce.

Your quarantine stations in protecting the people against contagious diseases confine the citizens themselves, regardless of their convenience, liberties, or comfort, and exclude them from access to their own homes and loved ones to prevent disease. You are right in this. Liquor kills more people than all wars and pestilences and famines and earthquakes combined. Yet this commodity, more deadly than all diseases combined, has right of way into the heart of a sovereign state in spite of the wishes of its people.

My widowed mother, in sight of the smoke of distilleries, told me on her knee that it was wrong to make and sell liquor. I never went to a teacher from infancy to my graduation in a university who did not teach me that it was wrong to handle, touch or taste liquor. As a soldier boy in my teens I heard the general order of Gen. Robert E. Lee, read at dress parade, that liquor brought to his army should be sealed in packages, put in charge of the surgeons, and that the seal should not be broken until the wounded were actually on hand. It was a sober army that made him the most famous commander in history and put his statue in Statuary Hall by the side of the Father of His Country. My Father in heaven was good to me to give such a mother and such teachers and such a commander. I reverence their memory.

I have tried as a father, as a grandfather, as a teacher, as a citizen to transmit this great lesson to those who are to come after me. I am glad today, as a Senator of the U. S. that I have an opportunity to make a record on this the greatest problem before the civilized world. I am not a lawyer; I cannot meet the legal arguments of those learned lawyers on the other side. I have the greatest respect for their learning and ability; I covet today their equipment. I can say, and I do say, that if the Constitution of the U. S. stands in the way of this great reform the Constitution ought to be changed.

Pardon me for a personal allusion. I have spent more than sixty years in a boarding school for boys. No man can tell what a little carrot-haired hatchet-heeled boy will develop into. In my boyhood at the Bingham School at the Oaks, in a remote part of Orange County, N. C., my roommate, a twelve year old lad, later became the Governor of his State. A college friend, Walter Clarke, has been for many years and is now Chief Justice of North Carolina. God has allowed me to live to see my own little student boys develop into such a splendid manhood as to worthily occupy seats in this chamber and in the House of Representatives at the other end of this Capitol. Senator Edward Ward Carmack, a former pupil, was an honor to the Senate of the United States. He was a genius and a statesman and a martyr to the cause I represent.

I have seen others of these little boys later on the supreme bench of their State, and many of them learned judges of other courts. I have seen them wearing episcopal robes and filling great metropolitan pulpits. I have seen them great authors, presidents, deans and professors in great colleges and universities and the headmasters of great schools. I have seen them great lawyers, great surgeons and physicians, great soldiers and manufacturers and farmers. I have seen many of them in business become millionaires.

To see these boys make this splendid development is the lovellest scene that God and angels look down upon. Such development makes happy fathers and makes a bird sing in mothers' hearts.

I am an optimist. The world is getting better every day. I saw in my boyhood liquor absolutely without restriction; it is now restricted in a thousand ways. I saw gambling untrammeled and indulged in everywhere, even on the public highway; it has been driven into guarded dens. I saw public betting on horse races—now a thing of the past. Lotteries in my boyhood used the mails. Their agents were everywhere. Dueling was common. A gentleman allowed himself to be punctured by bullets into a pepperbox to show that he was brave and a man of honor. Senators, America is aroused on the liquor question. Anglo-Saxons have won every reform that once caught the ear of the people. Liquor has got to go. God grant that I may help it go!

The world is stirred on this question. Children now live who will have to explain to their children what a saloon was and why their ancestors tolerated such a deadly evil. But for the money invested in it, it would already have been a thing of the past. Toleration of the saloon puts the dollar above the man.

Miss Frances E. Willard, the lovely and charming queen of womanhood, has the great honor of a statute in Statuary Hall in this Capitol. No honor has ever been bestowed more worthily. It was her work for temperance that made this bill a possibility. In her name and in the name of millions of charming white ribboned women all over this great American nation; in the name of the white ribboned hosts of Tennessee, under the leadership of Mrs. Selina Holman, a mother and grandmother of a noble family, who for years, with womanly dignity and charm, has done more than anybody else in cultivating public sentiment in Tennessee in favor of lofty ideals of citizenship, and who, if usefulness to her people is the correct measure of statesmanship, is Tennessee's great est statesman; in the name of all the fathers and grandfathers and mothers and grandmothers of this great nation, who wish a clean environment in which to rear their offspring, in whom they have invested their very lives; in the name of all the schoolmasters of America, whose greatest ambition in life is to train a citizenship worthy of this the greatest nation in history; in the name of all the Christian churches of America, who labor and sacrifice that all the people may have a right attitude to God and to man; in the name of all the boys and girls on whose ideals formed in youth and not on material prosperity, which you have so nobly fostered, the future glory and usefulness of this great nation depends; in the name of our Father in heaven, who said that righteousness and not material prosperity exalteth a nation—when we come to you asking for a fish, do not give us a serpent that stings, that mars, that destroys, whose coil is in the stillhouse. (Applause in the galleries.)

Local Happenings.

Grass has not grown much this month.

Farmers are getting behind with their work.

Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick has been quite sick the past week.

Circuit court is being attended by very few people.

March and April have made a record for bad behavior this year.

Onnie Rouse had a severe attack of appendicitis one day the past week.

The bank statements all appear in this issue and make a good showing.

Richard White went to the city, Tuesday, to have his hand operated on.

The bloom on some of the pear trees is not so profuse as it was last year.

L. T. Clore took the school census for this district several days ago.

A great many are having trouble getting their hens to set this spring.

All the county's tobacco buyers have about disposed of their purchase of 1912 tobacco.

The output of the local creamery has increased considerably in the last two or three weeks.

Lloyd McGlasson and wife, of Taylorsport neighborhood, are rejoicing over the arrival of a fine boy.

Rev. Ballentyne will deliver a lecture on Robert Burns at Union school house at 7:30 p. m., on the 19th inst.

The ferry at McVille is out of business because of the great amount of mud the river left on the landing.

People who want communications published in the Recorder MUST sign their names to the communicatons.

Quarterly conference will be held at the Burlington Methodist church next Saturday night and Sunday morning.

Edgar C. Riley received, one day last week, a very fine Duroc hog he purchased from a party up in Ohio.

The damage to farm lands in the State of Ohio, resulting from the recent flood, is estimated at ten million dollars.

The State Board of Equalization has decided not to change Boone county's assessment as made by Assessor T. G. Willis.

Woodie Sullivan, residing out on the Belleview pike had a Consolidated 'phone put in his residence a few days since.

A new toll pole has been placed at the first gate out on the Florence pike. It is a great improvement over the old pole.

The big twelve are in session this week, consequently quite a number of the county's citizens have important business beyond the jurisdiction of Sheriff Hume.

It is evident that Commonwealth's Attorney Downs intends making his district uncomfortable territory for the evil doers while he is in office.

Craig Baldon, of Covington, came in Monday to spend a few days here with friends and relatives. He has a position on the L. & N. Railroad.

It will require an immense amount of labor to put into condition the public roads that were flooded by the river. Deposits of drift several feet high block them in many places.

My horse, Don DeGozee, will be at the stable of W. J. Rice, near Burlington on Monday and Tuesday of each week.
E. J. AYLOR.

Robert Rouse, of Florence, was a caller at this office Tuesday. He reports good business with Fibro with which he and Wallace Tanner are furnishing autoists to prevent punctures.

It will take considerable amending to make the State primary election law perfect, but such is always the case where a law has to cover as many points as that law is intended to cover.

Harold Gaines united with Burlington Baptist church last Sunday by letter from the Great Crossing, Scott county, Baptist church with which he united last winter while he was attending school at Georgetown.

The educational tournament will be held at Dry Ridge, Grant county, beginning on Thursday of next week. It is an event that is looked forward to with considerable interest with the schools that take a part therein.

Hon. D. Linn Gooch, who represented this district twice in the Lower House of Congress died at his home in Covington, last Saturday, aged 56 years. The burial took place at Hamilton, O., last Monday.

Ed. Hawes and family are again citizens of Burlington, having moved back from Lakeland, where Mr. Hawes had held the position of head painter at Lakeland Asylum for the insane. All are glad to have them back again.

Burlington High School base ball team went to Belleview, last Saturday, and were defeated by the High School team at that place 7 to 1. At the end of the fifth inning Dix went into the box and held the Belleview sluggers hitless and runless for four innings.

Considering the age of the primary campaign now on in this county the voters have shown a great desire for cards and the candidates are meeting their demands with commendable liberality, consequently the Recorder is having a big run of work along that line.

Wanted—Man with a team and help enough to raise from four to eight acres of tobacco. Will be given work when not working in his crop. The land is already plowed and beds sown and canvassed. Address or apply to J. C. Gordon, Burlington R. D. 3, or Hebron, Ky.

The Odd-Fellows lodge at Hebron will have big doings on the night of the 26th inst., in commemoration of the 90th anniversary of the introduction of the order in this country. There will be work in all the degrees and the members of other lodges are invited to attend.

The Recorder is in receipt of an article on the road question, and is requested to withold the writer's name. Articles on special subjects are not published in the Recorder unless the writer's name is also published. If you are afraid to have your name appear under your article please do not send it to this office.

You will look a good while before you find a better medicine for coughs and colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only gives relief—it cures. Try it when you have a cough or cold, and you are certain to pleased with the prompt cure which it will effect. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly. —Adv.

Mr. Horse owner.—If you desire to have a colt show during the 1913 Florence, Fair and will notify the secretary, N. E. Riddell, Burlington, Ky., he will advertise the show for you in the regular fair catalogue. No charge will be made for the advertisement or use of the fair ring. Send to the secretary the amount of the premium you desire to give, name of your horse and any conditions you desire for the show.

A Low-Down Trick.

Of all the low-down, mean, contemptible, onery, dirty thefts we have ever read or heard of, happened to this editor Monday night, when a scapegrace of the scum of earth, too mean even for hell itself, stole about six and a half pounds of sausage from us. If he, or she, had habitually stolen from a blind grandmother whose false teeth he had used for a garden rake, or stolen tobacco from his paralyzed pap, he could not have done as dirty a trick as to steal from an editor. May ever hog he eats grunt a greeting and every pig pass him in pity, while every old sow scowls at him, is the earnest wish and prayer of his victim. To steal from an editor is the unpardonable sin of any respectable newspaper, and we hope that poverty will peach him every time he breathes.—Hazel Green Herald.

Factory Safety Device.

The management of a machine tool shop in America has during the last several years kept a careful record of all accidents and made a study of them in the endeavor to ascertain just where danger is greatest and what accidents can be prevented by means of improved safety devices. One recently installed device particularly interesting is an electrically operated control by which the power at the engine room can be stopped by pushing a button anywhere in the works.—Exchange.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it my study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,
H. G. COLLINS,
Erlanger, Ky.

Training the Boy.

The problem of the age in the ever increasing population is the training of the boy to become a self preserving useful citizen. Most boys are growing up who have never known the necessity or learned how to make a dollar. Every boy whether rich or poor should be taught to stay persistently at his post of duty even for a while after he has become worn and fatigued and tired of his task. Let him learn to stick. Let him reach the places he prefers by actual effort and exertion of his own beginning at the bottom and working up. Let him go down among the needy and learn lessons among the poor that he may know how to live and sympathize with humanity. Teach him to be polite to the aged and ever ready to help them share their burdens. Talk to him about the conditions of others that he may learn to think and to observe. When the boy has learned to work, to stick to it and to think and observe he is in a position to use them whatever education he may receive.

Don't be surprised if you have an attack of rheumatism this spring. Just rub the affected parts freely with Chamberlain's Liniment and it will soon disappear. Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv

Letter From California.

Reedley, Calif., April 4, 1913.

Editor of the Recorder:

Enclosed find check for $1.50 as my subscription expires on the 13th, and we don't want to miss a copy, for it is like a letter from home to us; find also a clipping from a paper which strikes us like our views of the Recorder. We are well pleased with our new home and will stay here indefinitely. Fresh vegetables and fried chicken are in order here now and we have fruit all the time. We have a fine climate altho it gets pretty warm in summer. A few days last summer it was 112 in the shade. Well, I would like to give a word of advice to my Kentucky friends: never sell out your home or business and come to California or any other new country without making a visit and investigating a little. I venture to say nine out of ten of the eastern people who come to California annually are dissatisfied and leave inside of six months. The realestate men and R. R. companies are continually misrepresenting things to the eastern people just to get their money. A man must have some experience and plenty of money to get along in California. There are many foreigners here who can live on less and therefore work for less then the American. We would like to have any of our friends to come and make us a visit and see the country, but would not advise selling out and coming here to live without first coming to see. Now don't think I am giving California a black eye. She is a grand State and we like it fine, more because every one, even our next door neighbor, minds strictly to their own business.

I have a good position as foreman of a vineyard.

If we have good luck we may see our Kentucky friends next winter. Fresno, a city of 42,000, is only a forty minutes ride by rail from here.

S. B. RYLE and wife.

Notice to Wool Growers.—The Wool Growers Committee request that those desiring to pool their wool should do so by the 25th of this month. This is necessary in order that we may know the number of sacks to purchase. Sacks are very high this year and we do not care to buy any more than we may need.

Harrison Prince, 3340.

Will make the present season at the stable of G. T. Gaines, one mile from Burlington, Ky., on the Petersburg pike, at $15.00 to insure a living colt.

HARRISON PRINCE is a chestnut stallion, 16 hands high, 4 years old, has a large blaze face, two white feet and is a perfect type of a saddle horse with fine finish and action and a colt in his class from a colt. Harrison Prince comes from a family of show horses on both sides, and is a show horse himself. His sire is Daddy Jim, 2d, 1531, the well known show horse by McChief, 1451, by Rex McDonald, 833, by Rex Denmark, 340, he by Crigler's Denmark by Old Denmark Chief. His dam, Mapp Noel, 1605, also a show mare, by Boyd Wilkes by Favorite Wilkes 2d dam, Skiddles, by Washington Denmark, Jr., by Washington Denmark 64.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

In 1914 a premium of $10 will be given for the best and $5.00 for the second best colt of this year's get of Harrison Prince.

His colts were shown the first time last season and were never defeated in the ring. H. T. GAINES,
Burlington, Ky.

The Impt. Germam Coach Stallion,

PLUTARCH
No. 3183.

Will make the season of 1913 at my stable one mile west of Idlewild, Boone county, Ky., at Ten Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1912 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

The Fine Black Jack,

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at the same time and place at Eight Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Lanky Bob is 6 years old, 15.3 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur. Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season. No business done on Sunday. Will give mares special attention and pasture furnished at $1.50 a month.

T. E. RANDELL

THE FINE SADDLE AND HARNESS OR GENERAL PURPOSE STALLION,

HARRY WILLIS,

is a handsome blood bay stallion with star in forehead, stands 16¼ hands high, was foaled in 1897, and weighs 1,150 pounds. His conformation, individuality, breeding and reproductive qualities all combined in one horse go to make that desire of all conservative breeders—an ideal stallion. He is the personification of perfection, has a fine head and neck, strong, deep shoulders, short back very fine quarters, clean flat legs, good bone, fine mane and tail.

He has a good disposition and fine action, and is an unparalleled breeder.

He will make the season of 1913 at the farm of C. T. Northcutt one and a half miles east of Bellevlew, Boone county, Ky., at TEN DOLLARS to insure a colt to stand up and suck, the money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

HARRY WILLIS by Col. Willis 37706, by Col. Kipp 1877, record 2:20¾, sire of High Grade (2) 2:11¾, Col. (3) 2:18½, Pawling 2:21¼, Daisy Simmons 2:30, by Kenwood 4983, sire of Col. Kipp 2:20¾, by Harry Clay 45, record 2:29, sire of four in the list and the dam of Bellini 2:13¾, sire of Farfelin 2:09¾, Ora Bellini 2:09¾, Beatrice Bellini 2:08½, Carlo 2:08¾, Tokio 2:09, Leonard 2:08¾, Albert C. 2:06¾, Soprano (4) 2:08¾, winner of the American Horse Breeders' Futurity in 1909, and sold to John E. Madden for $7,000, same sire of Green Mountain Maid, dam of Electioneer 125 sire of Axtell 2:07¾ and 56 others in 2:30 and dams of 158 in 2:30.

1st dam Nellie R. by Boudaman, 27641, (sired by Grace Bond) by Barren Wilkes 4758, (sire of Buny F. 2:08¾, Baron May 2:07¾ and Alceste 2:07¾) by George Wilkes 519; 2nd dam Corinne by Simmons 3744 (sire of Fereno 2:05¾ and Stanley Dillon 2:07¾, etc.) by Geo. Wilkes 519; Corinne's dam, Lady Belle, by Red Wilkes 1749 (sire of Ralph Wilkes 2:09¾).

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but will not be responsible should any occur.

The very best investment any cow owner can make

That's what more than a million and a half of cow owners the world over have found the World's Standard De Laval Cream Separator to be.

A De Laval Separator costs from $35 to $160—according to capacity. It saves butter-fat and produces cream of a quality decidedly superior to any setting system or any other separator every time it is used—twice a day—730 times a year.

DE LAVAL Cream Separators

involve far less labor than any setting system, and run easier, have greater capacity and last from two to ten times longer than other separators.

That's how a De Laval Separator saves at least its cost the first year, and frequently in a few months, and then goes right along saving money for you year after year.

We have an arrangement whereby you can make a partial payment at time of purchase, and pay the balance on such liberal terms that your machine will more than save its own cost while you are paying for it.

Miss Lora Diers, who recently went to Chicago and accepted a position with a large corset establishment has returned to Cincinnati, and accepted charge of the corset department of the store of H. & S. Pogue, where she will be pleased to greet her friends. Miss Diers was homesick for Cincinnati and gave up an excellent position in Chicago. Miss Diers spent Sunday here with her parents Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Diers.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. R. Magruder charmingly entertained last Friday evening in honor of the thirteenth birthday anniversary of their daughter Miss Lois. Among those participating in the celebration were: Misses Edna Welsh, Virginia Beverly, Glenna Rose Gaines Mabel and Jennie Mayhugh, Grace Powers, Sue Ransler, Lulie Williams, Emma Jane Miller, Mariam B. Tompkins and Isabelle Dickey; Masters Roland Glinn, Wallace Grubbs, Cloyde Taylor, Wilford Rice, Dewey Benson and Wendell Rouse.

T. J. Griffith, of Danville, Boyle county, spent part of last week here and in this neighborhood interviewing the farmers with a view of getting them interested in raising better crops along the line of the Q. & C. Railroad, which he is specially representing with a view to advertising the farming values of this section of Kentucky, and adding to the volume of products of farming lands, naturally increasing the business of the railroad. Mr. Griffith is endeavoring to get some of the farmers to raise special crops along the line of the railroad by careful cultivation and modern methods to increase the yield and make the growing fields an attractive advertising feature to be seen from the line of the railroad.

The case of the Equitbale Bank and Trust Company as the administrator of the estate of Michael McLaughlin, against the Q. & C. Railroad Co., was compromised last Friday by the attorneys for the administrator, J. G. Tomlin and Jno. L. Vest, agreeing to take $3,500 in full settlement of the claim. The action was for $25,000 damages for the death of Mr. McLaughlin and was pending in the U. S. Circuit Court at Covington. Mr. McLaughlin was employed as a brick layer at Walton, and last August went to Covington, spending the day there with old friends, and drank more intoxicating liquors than he could control, and when reaching Walton was in such a stupified condition that he could not get off the train and was carried by. The conductor was requested to put McLaughlin off at South Walton but failed to do so, but stopped the train in a cut beyond and put him off there. McLaughlin was stupidly drunk and did not know where he was or which way to go and finally sat down on the railroad track and evidently went to sleep and was struck by the train as his lifeless remains were found in the cut next morning showing that he had been struck on the body and on the head by the train. Messrs. Tomlin and Vest had their case well prepared and the railroad attorneys Jno. Galvin and M. L. Galvin, believed that a judgment would be rendered against the railroad and agreed to a compromise at the amount named, $3,500 rather than fight a long drawn out case and then have perhaps as much to pay. Mr. McLaughlin leaves a little daughter to whom the money will go after the attorneys have been paid for their services.

The preliminary meeting of the Boone County Horse and Mule Protective Association was held at Walton last Wednesday with the Committee on constitution and by-laws present as follows: Jas. W. Cleek, G. E. Carroll and Chas. L. Griffith, who reported the subjoined constitution and by-laws which were adopted. The first meeting for organization was held last May when James W. Cleek was elected as president; Joseph Fisher, vice president, G. E. Carroll, secretary and treasurer. The organization promises to be of much benefit to the farmers and live stock owners, and all should become members. Those who care to become members should address G. E. Carroll, secretary, Walton, Ky. The following is the constitution and by-laws and will give a comprehensive idea of the subject and details of the association:

CONSTITUTION OF THE BOONE COUNTY HORSE AND MULE PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

We, the undersigned, do, for the purpose of forming an organization at Walton, Ky., for the protection of horses and mules against theft, and to detect and prosecute any and all persons who shall steal a horse or mule from any of the members of this organization.

Section 1. The name of this organization shall be the Walton Horse and Mule Protective Association.

Section 2. The principal place for the transaction of business shall be at Walton, Kentucky.

Section 3. The general nature of this business or organization shall be to detect and cause to be prosecuted any and all persons who shall steal a horse or mule from any of the members of this organization and to regain said horse or mule for said member.

Section 4. The affairs of this organization shall be conducted by a board of nine members or directors who shall be elected by its members on the first Saturday in May of each year after the organization of this association. The Board of Directors shall elect from their members a President, Vice President and Treasurer and members for convenient committees to be provided for by the by-laws.

Section 5. Said association thru its directors, shall have the power to amend or pass all needful by-laws to fully carry out the purpose of this association and shall have power to fix the assesments on its members for the purpose of raising a fund and maintaining a fund for the prosecution of any person who may steal a horse or mule and to regain same property so stolen, and all incidental expenses.

Section 6. No new member shall be assessed at the first assessment of this organization to exceed one (1.00) dollar and the dues thereafter shall be fifty cents ($.50) per year.

The Welding of Metals.

Welding two pieces of metal together by the old processes was at best unreliable. When the strain on the welded joint was heavy, you never knew whether it was going to hold or not. But with the use of electricity in making the weld, the fiber of the two pieces of metal are made to flow into each other and so become practically one piece. The success of this new method was recognized at once, and now you have hardly a tool or piece of machinery on your farm but what is electrically welded where there is a juncture of metals. The present state of perfection of garden and barnyard tools, mowers, reapers, binders, threshers, cultivators, kitchen utensils, dairy machinery, edge tools, chains, automobile engines and steering gears, bottoms of oil cans, frames of bicycles, etc., is made possible thru electric welding. The same process produces "Pittsburg Perfect" electrically welded wire fencing, made by the Pittsburg Steel Company, whose advertisements are appearing regularly in this paper. "Pittsburg Perfect" fencing is a solid one piece fabric with many distinctive advantages, among them being the ease with which it is strung, the great tension to which it can be stretched because of the absolute elimination of "long" and "short" line wires, the smooth surface making wire-cuts impossible, and the neat appearance of the fence. The welded joints in "Pittsburg Perfect" are twice as strong as the wire itself, because two wires are made into one by electricity, which also piles the galvanizing around the joints, adding greatly to the life of the fence. Modern methods of manufacture in many lines have been greatly benefitted by the discovery and practice of welding by electricity.

A notable triumph of justice was recorded in Philadelphia yesterday when Mr. Henry Clay, for years head of the Philadelphia police department, with two assistants, was sentenced to a prison term for conspiring to defraud the city. Mr Clay was, in his day, one of the props of the Penrose Machine in Philidelphia. He was very active as a Taft leader last year, but his indictment soon after a reform administration came in hampered his sphere of usefnlness. Philidelphia is enjoying an era of good government, but few things will help so much as the imprisonment of some of the rascals who despoiled the city in former days.

A least there isn't much danger that any man will carry around for days the eleven-pound parcel his wife gives him to male.

There is much complaint of the R. R. negro construction camp at the Wood Carpenter pond. The negroes shoot their automatic pistols promiscuously, and bullets fly above people's heads. There have been three shooting or cutting scraps among the negroes, and some day a stray bullet will clip one or more of their stock and then these violators of laws will be gone. Altho they work on the railroad property they are subject to the laws of Boone as much as we are.

Jas. W. Ryle, of Beech Grove, was on Gunpowder one day last week, circulating a paper for Oscar Sullivan, of Miamiasburg, Ohio. He lost most every thing he had in the recent flood in the Ohio.

This writer took a spin around the circle last Saturday afternoon, down Gunpowder to the Jas. Ryle hill and on to Waterloo. On our way we met M. M. Ryle rounding in home with a load of provisions. At Waterloo we met quite a crowd, some trading at the store while others were discussing the topics of the day. The blacksmith shop was busy while the switchman was busy answering calls. The county road engineer was there looking for some one to let the roads to for work. We remained about an hour when we departed for home via Locust school house and the Bradford hill. When we came to Chas. Portwood's, he was engaged in breaking a young horse to ride and was assisted by L. G. Marshall. Descending the big hill we landed safe at home, and we will never forget the bad roads we traveled from Kite's store.

GRANT R. D. 1.

J. Colin Kelly, who has been quite sick, we are glad to say, is much better.

John Portwood has purchased the Marshall farm near Waterloo of D. E. Castleman.

A number from here attended the funeral of Mrs. Nan Rice, which took place at Rising Sun, Sunday.

Except for the loss of life the flood did as much damage in Rabbit Hash according to the size of the town as it did in Dayton.

Mrs. J. S. Dinsmore is having quite a good deal of work done, repairing, remodeling and repainting her residence east of town.

Pete Hager and Stanley Ryle were the first to volunteer work on the road after the flood. They used the drag on about two miles of the road in lower East Bend which is drying out much quicker than it would ordinarily.

The river road in East Bend bottoms remains impassable as the sediment left by the flood is from eight inches to four feet deep, and so soft that no work can be done restoring the wooden culverts washed away by the high water. Our rural carrier is traveling more than the length of his route in serving his patrons as he has to back track and use several miles of road not on the route. Why can't we have our public roads above the high water mark? The work taken now to get the river road in condition would pay for opening up roads above the flood mark, and when the floods come we need our roads worse than any other time.

It is the unanimous opinion of the fans here that Belleview has the best ball club she has had for years, and after witnessing the two first games played by our boys we are inclined to agree with them. At an entertainment given here Saturday night for the benefit of the team the receipts were $24, which gives our boys a good start toward a good equipment. Petersburg came down Saturday with Ruth and Berkshire for a battery, but all pitchers look alike to the locals, who got four two base hits, two three base hits and four singles, which netted 8 runs, while Robert Brady, who pitched for the locals was invincible, the visitors getting only two hits off his delivery and not a run was scored against him. The locals have two reliable slabmen in Rogers and Brady, who will pitch alternately. Belleview will go to Petersburg Saturday, the 26th, for the return game. A large crowd is expected to accompany the locals from here to that place. Willard Clore got a three bagger with the bases full Saturday and was given the glad hand by the fans. Prof. Throop deserves praise for helping the boys with their entertainment. The boys sure appreciate what he has done.

R. D. No. 3.

Raymond Helms has measles.

Henry Kruse, of Dayton, Ohio, visited relatives here last week.

A number from here attended the ball at Hebron, last Friday night.

Chas. Bryant, of New Richmond, Ohio, visited relatives here recently.

Albert Goehlor and Porter Shinkle visited friends in Ohio, last Sunday.

Mrs. Robt. Fox, of Delhi, spent Friday and Saturday in this neighborhood.

John Jacob has gone to Dayton, Ohio, where he will spend a few weeks.

Misses Adelia Scothorn and Cathryn Estes spent Sunday with Mrs. W. L. Brown.

Jacob Utzinger, wife and little son were Sunday guests of Julius Utzinger and family.

Mrs. Jacob Reitmann and daughter, Mabel, spent Saturday with Chas. Utzinger and family.

John Scothorn and wife were the pleasant callers of J. W. Brown and family, last Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. John Eggieston and children were Sunday afternoon callers on Misses Amanda Koons and Sadie Rieman.

Mrs. Clinton Eggieston and Mrs. Walter Swaney, of near Burlington, and B. F. Eggleston and family spent Sunday with Luther Estes and family.

Dogs visited J. E. Smith's sheep pasture last Saturday night but were discovered and driven away before killing or injuring any of the sheep. One of the dogs carried away a load of shot in its pelt.

The man at work has had to shed his coat every day this week.

TOWN RECOVERING

With Remarkable Rapidity From Effects of the Flood.

(Lawrenceburg Press.)

The work of rehabilitation continues to go rapidly forward. Within a few days the business section of Oldtown will show little evidence of the recent disastrous flood, while Newtown has already gained its former status. The Durbin road connecting Newtown and Oldtown has been repaired and is again in excellent condition. Gas mains which were washed out along the 3rd street fill have been replaced. Water is being pumped from the mains and the plant is being put in condition as rapidly as possible. It looks now as though the city would be supplied with gas by Friday or Saturday.

Although the telephone lines came in for their share of the destruction attending the flood the service was remarkably well maintained and the damage has been largely repaired. Much praise is due the linemen as well as operators for maintaining communication so effectively thruout the flood and the days immediately following.

Most of the stores are again open for business and ready to care for the wants of the people.

All the factories with the exception of the veneer works will be in operation within a few days. The James & Meyer Buggy company will resume operations Monday. The Ohio Valley Coffin Co., Lawrenceburg Roller Mills company and Bishop and Co. expect to begin work by May 1st. All of these were in the worst of the flooded section.

Walnut and High streets are almost clear of debris. The brick paving on Walnut street which was covered by about two inches of mud was flushed by use of the fire hose with water from cellars along the street. The passing of the gloomy weather which prevailed for several days following the recession of the water has added considerably to the hopefulness of the situation and the people are going at the work of cleaning houses, yards and streets with renewed determination.

Conditions are growing more reasuring each day, but the sad fact remains to be faced that the homes of many families have been completely wiped out, while a greater number of persons have lost more than they can hope to replace by their own efforts thru years of toil and saving. It was for the aid of these that the Citizens' Relief committee was appointed and the fund which is being collected will no doubt do much toward lightening the burden of restoration which rests most heavily upon those least able to bear it.

Circuit Court.

The grand jurors were discharged on Thursday afternoon, having found eight indictments one of them charging the defendant with false swearing.

The petit jurors were excused from Monday until Thursday and were finally discharged on Friday afternoon, having tried one case.

The following attorneys attended court here last week:

Hon. John S. Gaunt, Louisville, Joel C. Clore, Cincinnati, Hon. W. W. Dickerson, Cincinnati. Hon. Harvey Myers, Covington, Hon. J. G. Tomlin, Walton, John L. Vest, Walton, Chas. Strother, Walton.

The trustee of the jury fund reported the collection of about $700 in fines, the largest collection reported in many years.

The trustee of the jury fund advanced $155 in order that the jurors might receive their pay without delay.

Court adjourned for the term before noon last Saturday.

All the commonwealth cases that were disposed of were adjusted without the intervantion of a jury.

Judge Cammack was a very busy official all week and disposed of considerable business, about all of which was confined to the equity branch of the court.

The petit jurors cost for the term $142.

In the Kotmyer suit the ferry property at Constance was ordered sold.

In so far as the weather was concerned the term last week was the pleasantest in a long time.

The suit of Dr. Rankin against Dr. Menefee, both of Walton, will be heard at Williamstown during the next sessoin of the Grant county circuit court.

In the case of Mary Reitman against Jacob Reitman the plaintiff was granted a divorce from her husband and given the custody of her daughter, Mabel. She was given a judgment for $1,665 Almony and allowed $10 a month for the support of the daughter until the first of September, after which time she is to be paid $15 a month for the support of her daughter until the further orders of the court.

Several of the farmers in this part of the county have their corn land broken, and have begun harrowing. There is not the rush that there was years ago to get the crop in during April.

Some few are about ready to plant their corn.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Rivard and sons, Howard, Alfred and Emile, all of Covington, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rivard, Sunday.

Atty. Sidney Gaines is a strong advocate of "swat the fly," and keeps a swatter lying on his office table, and goes on the war path when he discovers a fly has invaded his sanctum.

The Recorder will have on hand in the next few days the petitions which the candidates are required to use in securing signatures to get their names on the primary election ballots for August 2d.

"My little son had a very severe cold. I was recommended to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and before a small bottle was finished he was as well as ever," writes Mrs. H. Silks, 29 Dowling Street, Sydney, Australia. This remedy is for sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Lost—On road between Everett Clore's and Lewis Beemon's or in Burlington, on first Monday in April, a pocketbook containing about $1.75 and some Canadian coins. Finder please return to Roy Beemon, Grant, Ky., R. D.

BREEDING STOCK FOR DAIRY

In Selection of Animals Real Test Must Be With Scales and Reliable Babcock Tester.

Prof. W. J. Kennedy of the Iowa station recommends the following in reference to the selection of breeding stock for the dairy:

In selecting dairy cattle the real test must be the scales and the Babcock tester. The cow is a machine to convert food into milk; thus she must have a large middle and a strong constitution to insure the best results. She must also have a large udder, large milk wells, large crooked milk veins and good-sized teats.

Her head should be clean and angular in appearance, with the eyes standing out prominently. The neck should be rather long and lean in appearance. The shoulders pointed and the backbone rather prominent. The skin should be loose and soft to the touch. In selecting herd bulls either mature animals which have already demonstrated their worth as sires or younger animals from high-testing dams and sires only should be used.

The best and surest results will always follow the use of a mature sire which has sired heifers with good records. A good dairy bull should be kept until he is twelve or fifteen years old; in fact, as long as he is a sure sire. Real good sires are so rare that when we do find one he should die only of old age. All breeders of dairy cattle should secure yearly tests on each and every cow in the herd. Shorter tests do not really mean very much. It is the cow that stays by her job that is really valuable.

JUDGING THE VALUE OF EGGS

Difference in Color Is Merely Indication of Strain of the Bird and Nothing Else.

It is a curious fallacy that the brown egg is better than the white. The difference in color is merely the indication of the strain of the bird and nothing else, says a leading authority.

It is a fact that, generally speaking, brown eggs are preferred over white ones, and dealers have learned to cater to supply this demand at small cost. If their customers want brown eggs, they supply them as long as they have them in stock, and then color the white ones to fill out.

It is a very easy matter staining a white egg a beautiful delicate brown by dipping it in weak coffee or analyne dye. Eggs colored in this way sell just as readily and please the customers as well as though they had bought genuine brown eggs.

There is quite a difference, however, in the lucrative value of very light colored yolks and those which have a rich reddish yellow color. The pale yolk indicates poor feeding and bad conditions, but the reddish, yellow yolk indicates that the hens have been fed on the right kind of rations, and are therefore better fed.

Iron in the food gives color to the yolk of the egg, and anaemic persons whose diet embraces eggs should always select those of the rich reddish color, because they contain more iron than the pale ones.

In judging the value of the egg as food, therefore, do not take the color of the shell as an index of its food value, but upon its contents.

Liming Sandy Soils.

Lime may improve loose sandy soils by making them more compact and more retentive of moisture. For this purpose some form of carbonate of lime is usually recommended, and in much smaller quantities than for clay soils. Clay soils will stand more lime than sandy soils. The improvement of sandy soils will often be much greater if the lime is applied to a green crop turned under.

Lime hastens the conversion of the vegetable matter into humus, and this with the lime helps to fill the open spaces between the sand grains. It is claimed by those who have given much attention to light sandy soils that there are no other types of soils that will respond quite so readily to liming, provided the necessary vegetable matter is supplied in the form of a green cover crop turned under.

Windows in Poultry Houses.

Put the windows in the poultry houses low down to the floor, so that the hens will get the benefit of the light and sunshine when scratching for their feed.

The trouble with windows set high up is that they let the sunshine on the perches when the hens are on the floor scratching, and when they are on the roost the sun doesn't shine, so there is no equilibrium in such plans.

Requirements for Egg Production.

The secrets of egg production consist of a good supply of grit, good health, plenty of exercise, pure food, green food, fresh water, cut clover hay and green cut bone, freedom from lice, regularity in feeding, cool houses in summer and warm ones in winter, and breeding only from the best laying stock.

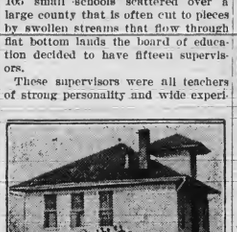
KENTUCKY HAVING BRISK AWAKENING

Everywhere In State Things Are Happening.

NEW SCHOOLS BEING BUILT.

As Fast as Laws Are Passed For the Betterment of Rural Schools Counties Take Advantage of Them—Secure Services of Experts and Select Teachers More Carefully.

There never was a time in the history of the old commonwealth when its future looked as bright as it does in this year of 1913. No matter where one goes in the length and breadth of the state one hears schools being discussed. Many new buildings are being erected in the place of those which have so long been a disgrace to the communities that have permitted them to exist.



Plans are being discussed in many localities for larger grounds and better equipment. The teachers are being more carefully selected than in the past, and there is a general feeling that school problems should be fairly met and solved.

This feeling has resulted in marked activity in educational matters in all sections of the state. The county authorities have taken advantage of the new educational laws without delay.

The last legislature passed a law allowing county boards of education to provide supervisors to oversee the work done in the schools. At once over forty counties took advantage of the new law, and secured the services of one or more experts to assist the county superintendent in this supervision work.

Daviess county decided to try a rather unique plan of supervision, which seems to have worked admirably during the school year that has just closed. Instead of striving to reach the 105 small schools scattered over a large county that is often cut to pieces by swollen streams that flow through flat bottom lands the board of education decided to have fifteen supervisors.

These supervisors were all teachers of strong personality and wide experience. All of them held first class certificates and had had normal training.

Of course there was not enough supervision over 105 schools to keep fifteen supervisors busy, so each of them taught his or her own little school out in the county. If the supervisor had taught from Monday through Friday there would have been no time for visiting the other six schools in his group.

The plan outlined for this school year has been for the supervising teacher to hold school from Tuesday through Saturday, thus leaving Monday open for visiting the other schools.

By visiting three schools each Monday the supervising teacher would be able to reach all six schools once every two weeks. This makes it possible for the county superintendent to have a report from an expert from every portion of the county twice a month.

With the supervisor handling a small group, bad roads cannot make the work impossible. There is also the added advantage that at the opening of the school year, when many young and rather inexperienced teachers are in great need of help, the supervisor is close at hand to give the required assistance.

Close and constant supervision is the price of success in any business, and our badly scattered rural schools are no exception. We have not got the returns from our expenditure of money on our rural schools because there was no supervision to learn where the leaks were and how they might be stopped or repaired.

Money and money in any amount needed will come as soon as supervision makes the public know that results will be obtained. Our children have been taught in any fashion that suited the individual that was in the neighborhood "keepin' school." Naturally the children did not know what was the matter when they failed to make suitable progress; neither did their parents.

Every one knew that the interest of both the children and their parents flagged. They also knew that many of the older children dropped out of school because they were thoroughly dissatisfied.

Reports from county superintendents all over the state show that there is a new spirit both in the teaching force and among the children under this new influence of supervision. It is a simple proposition. It is that both teachers and children are becoming conscious of definite work that is being done in a thoroughly systematic manner.

PROPER CARE FOR THE DUCKS

Good Plan to Feed Early a Mash of Warm Bran Mash, Cooked Vegetables With Clover Clippings.

Supply plenty of dry bedding and keep the ducks shut in the enclosure until about 8 o'clock in the morning.

A small pen can be built adjoining their regular roosting quarters, where they can be fed and watered and kept unmolested until time to let them out.

It is a good plan to feed early of warm bran mash, cooked vegetables with clover clippings stirred in.

Feed about all they will eat of this;

A fine group of high quality Indian Runners. Note the high head and alert pose.

at noon give half as much mash or a small ration of grain.

At night give a fair feed of whole corn. In severe weather give the corn warm and as much as they will eat up quickly.

It is best to feed the breeders bulky stuff, vegetables, cut fodder and clover.

They love to saw into cabbages, and this vegetable is a cheap and excellent feed for either ducks or chicks.

Meat must be given in some form; they are more ravenous for meat than are hens.

Cracklings mixed in the morning mash are good in cold weather, but lean meat or meat meal is preferable as a regular diet.

EARLY PASTURES FOR SWINE

Piece of Rich Ground Should be Prepared Early in Spring and Barley and Oats Drilled In.

As early in the spring as possible prepare a piece of rich ground. When a good seed bed is made, drill in from 1 to 1½ bushels of barley or early oats per acre; or, better still, a mixture of these. Be sure to use the beardless barley. Then follow with a grass seeder, sowing a mixture of four pounds dwarf Essex rape, three pounds of timothy, and eight pounds of clover seeds per acre. I have been using alsike, medium and mammoth clovers, but this spring shall include alfalfa, writes an expert in the Farm and Home.

I cover the seed with a weeder, sometimes crossing. A light spike-tooth harrow will answer also. If sown early, and the earlier the better, this light covering will be sufficient, as there is usually plenty of moisture in the ground at this time.

When the rape is about six inches high, which will be in six to eight weeks, hogs may be turned in; the rape, barley and oats should furnish abundant pasture for about twenty-five shotes per acre. In the meantime timothy and clovers are growing to supplant the maturing barley and oats, and, with the rape, will furnish a well-balanced ration until covered with snow. This lot will next year furnish the best meadow pasture on the farm.

How to Test Garden Seed.

To avoid poor stands, seeds should be tested before planting. This is a very simple operation and requires but a few minutes. There are several simple methods of testing seeds, probably most of which will answer the purpose.

One of the simplest and quickest ways is to test between blotting paper. First, count out 100 seeds of the kind to be tested, taking them just as they come and not picking out the best-looking ones. Scatter the seeds between two pieces of blotting paper from four to six inches square and place in a common china plate and turn another plate bottom side up over the first. If pasteboard plates can be had they are better, especially if a large number of samples are to be tested.

Experiments With Turnips.

At the Aberdeen and North of Scotland college of agriculture a mixture of six-sevenths hundredweight of sulphate of ammonia, five and three-fourths hundredweight superphosphate and one hundredweight sulphate or potash produced an increase of nine tons fifteen hundredweight of turnips per acre. When the potash was omitted the increased over the check plat was only five tons per acre. On omitting the phosphate the increase was two tons, and omitting the nitrogen resulted in an increase of seven tons. The use of superphosphates alone showed an increased yield of five tons over the check plat, but of only one ton on plats fertilized with manure.

Causes of Failure With Alfalfa.

Experiments at the Cornell station have been conducted to determine the causes of failure in alfalfa culture, and the practical suggestions derived from the results were that at least a moderately fertile soil is needed for this crop, that the use of phosphate as a fertilizer is valuable in this connection and that inoculation is futile unless the soil is in a condition to favor the growth of the bacteria.

DAHLIAS ARE POPULAR

Flower Over Which Many People Raved a Generation Ago.

For Those Who Like Single Varieties There Is Bonanza in Seed Packet —Seeds Should Be Sown in the Window Box Early.

Fashion moves in cycles, even in Flora's realm, and the flower over which people raved a generation ago is again before us, the center of floral attractions.

But the dahlia of today has much more of grace than did the earlier types; and in its culture there are many things to urge to success.

It pays to be neighborly with dahlias. A single root will soon multiply to a dozen; and if each of a half-dozen neighbors purchase some choice variety, at the end of the first or second season the exchanges can be most profitable.

For those who like single varieties there is a bonanza in a seed packet. Some beautiful colors will be included. Sow the seeds in the window early.

The plants germinate quickly and may be shifted into pots as they become larger. Transplant to rich garden soil as soon as danger from frost is over, and they will bloom nearly as soon as those started from tubers.

Some may not develop sufficient root growth to keep through the winter; some will. Even if they do not, you will have pleasure enough during the one season to repay the small cost.

"Sylvia," a new Seedling Dahlia.

Try one variegated variety, thus getting a whole bouquet with no two alike from the same plant.

Do not try to make too many roots by subdividing. It is better to have one strong than two weak plants. Plant deep, stake and feed well.

FERTILIZER ACTS LIKE MAGIC

Manure Spreader Is Modern Device and Covers Soil to Depth of About an Inch.

I saw today a man pitching into a manure spreader stable manure from a large pile in the field where it had lain until it was partially rotted, and where it has been stirred several times with forks. I was interested, says a writer in Green's Fruit Grower, and waited for the man to load his wheeled spreader drawn by two horses, and saw him pass up and down through the field several times. This manure-spreading machine is a modern device.

It spreads the manure more evenly than any man can do the work, no matter how careful or experienced he may be. There was scarcely an inch of soil on the field that was not covered with a slight spread of manure, the machine covering about eight feet in width each time it crossed the field.

But it would seem impossible that such a slight covering of manure should have, as it does, such marvelous effect upon the soil. This fertilizer really acts like magic. It is not alone the fertility which the manure contains which benefits the land. The manure helps to set at work bacteria in the soil, thus in a measure inoculates the soil with helpful creatures that continue their work. Further than this, the manure tends to loosen the soil and to make it crumble easily under the plow and harrow.

Differences in Eggs.

Eggs may differ materially in color and yet not differ much in nutriment. Again, they may differ largely in nutriment, when, for instance, hens are neglected or poorly fed or when they eat filth, damaged grain or tainted meat. The crop and gizzard of a hen cannot transform impure food into pure products. The real value of an egg for food lies inside the shell and is not indicated by the color of the shell.—The Golden Egg.

Nest for the Hen.

Everything from a nail keg to a grocery box may make a hen's nest. The hen is not a sentimental bird, and does not care for fancy frills and contraptions. Give her a box or barrel, filled with the right nesting material, such as bruised straw, and the whole properly darkened, and she will do her share in trying to keep it supplied with eggs.

SEASON 1913

I wish to call the attention of the breeders of High Class Saddle and Harness Horses of Northern Kentucky in regard to

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS,

2844 A. S. B. A.

Bracken Chief (2148)
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Mambrino Le Grande 99

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1,200 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet,

By BRACKEN CHIEF 2148

by Harriron Chief 1606 by Clark Chief (89), dam, Kit Hardy (2830) by Indian Chief 1718).

1 dam Miss Berry 4034 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99)

2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112.

3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor)

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1908 and sold for $3,600, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show, Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmons? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest price Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief's and his sons and grand-sons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzstimmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible should any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Best's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners,
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

The Fine High Bred Percheron Stallion,

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1913 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs., and is 17¼ hands in height. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

PRINCE OLSEN was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., where he was foaled in 1907, and from whom he was purchased by me in 1911, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olson was a high bred registered Percheron mare. I feel that farmers and breeders will make no mistake in breeding to Prince Olsen as it means a good, strong colt that will meet every requirement on the farm. One of the lacking features of our horses is the size and strength. With the well bred Percheron like Prince Olsen these essentials are fully incorporated.

Come and see the horse and inspect his good points and you will breed to him.

Two Fine Young Jacks,

Ben and Dewey.

BEN is a black jack with mealy points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ears, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Kentucky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. Service fee $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine jack, five years old, and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Take a look at them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

JOSEPH READNOUR.

Stop Walking In Your Kitchen

Save Your Strength, Health and Beauty with a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet

Every physician will tell you that long hours of INDOOR WALKING AND STANDING are extremely injurious for housekeepers as well as for women in the business world.

You spend hours on your feet every day walking back and forth between pantry and cupboard and kitchen table collecting supplies and cooking utensils and standing over the kitchen table.

You are wearing yourself out needlessly, for we have a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet ready to deliver into your home today.

In the Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet everything you need in cooking is within reach of your own arm. You can get it, use it, and return it to its place while sitting on a comfortable stool.

Your flour is in a handy bin with a sifter attachment; your sugar in another; other supplies in the convenient glass container with which the Hoosier is equipped.

Dishes go in one cupboard; pots and kettles in another; bread and cake are kept in a splendid metal lined special drawer.

There are clean towel and cutlery drawers; hooks for small utensils; a bracket to hold your rolling pin and a clock-face want list to keep you from forgetting necessary supplies.

A beautiful aluminum topped table, 40 inches square, is kept clean by simply wiping with a hot cloth—no staining, rusting or discoloration.—Another little feature that lightens labor.

This business management of your kitchen saves hours of time—women who own a Hoosier have the rest and recreations that make life worth living.

Instead of wearing themselves out they are rested and happy. They have made housework the pleasant, congenial, comfortable occupation it ought to be.

Call at our store and let us show you the Hoosier and explain it to you. You incur no obligation—we are glad to demonstrate.

Spring Bee Hints.

With the coming of April every hive in the yard must be examined, to find that they have stores left to last until the honey flow begins; that each swarm has a laying queen; that there are no worms, that the bottom board may be cleaned.

Quite a formidable list; however, many hives will be found in perfect order, and the lifting of two or three frames will be all that is necessary to tell the observant bee keeper that he may go on to the next hive. The wax worm seldom bothers in the early spring, and more especially where the swarms are Italian, or have a strain of that bee in the make-up; if the bees were put away with sufficient stores they will generally have enough to last.

If there is no brood in any stage found in the hive, or eggs from which to hatch it, it is more than likely that the queen died during the winter, and as it is not practical to requeen, on account, largely, of the difficulty of shipping by mail, the best thing to be done is unite the queenless hive with one having a laying queen, and as the queenless hive is of the least importance put it under the hive containing the queen, first putting a piece of wire window screen on top of it, which will keep the bees from fighting. In three days the bees will all have acquired one odor, and it will be safe to remove the wire screen.

In examining the hives in April, the bees are found very much reduced in number, which makes it a good time to find and clip the queen, which is an easy thing to do, if one will first learn the drones, which are of no value. Hold the queen by head and body and with a small pair of shears cut the wings from one side. Be careful not to pinch the abdomen, for being distended with eggs it is easily injured.

If food is lacking feed the bees with candy, syrup, or sealed combs of honey if you have any left over. Directions for making candy for feeding can be found in any bee book, as well as for syrup. Needless to say the honey is the best possible feed if it is available.

There is but little danger that worms will be found in hives at this time, but it may happen, which will mean a weak swarm, and the better thing to do will be to put the bees into a new hive containing frames, some of which have comb honey sealed in them, then put the wormy frames into several of your strong colonies. The bees will make short work of the worms, clean out and polish the combs and the queen will use them to deposit eggs in. This work done, your bees are probably fixed until well into May. It is not wise to meddle with them much during the brooding season.

Another Suit Filed.

Another suit involving over a million dollars, was filed in the Kenton Circuit Court last week by stockholders of the Burley Tobacco Co. against Clarence LeBus and other Directors of the Burley Tobacco Society who have been at the head of the Burley Tobacco Company.

The suit demands an accounting of moneys paid into the company and seeks to hold the Directors of the society personally responsible for the amount which is given as approximately $1,050,479.69.

In the new suit it is alleged that approximately $1,050,479.69 was paid to the Burley Tobacco Co. by about 40,000 residents of Kentucky in subscription for stock. These residents of Kentucky, it is alleged during the year 1909, delivered all their tobacco crops to the Burley Tobacco Society as their agent to be sold to the best advantage. Out of the gross sales, payment was to be made for their subscriptions to stock in the Burley Tobacco Company.

The plaintiff claims that no notice was ever given of any stockholders' meeting to complete the organization of the company by the election of Directors. He charges that the defendants took charge and managed the affairs of the company.

It is claimed that in October Attorney J. L. Vest, representing the plaintiff and other stockholders, asked permission to inspect the books and other records of the company and that it was refused. The Court is asked for an order permitting such inspection. The court is asked to determine which defendants are liable, and in what amount jointly or severally, to the stockholders for the amount of money that has been paid in. The court is asked to order the payment of such money as will in the aggregate amount to the capital stock of the company, with interest from the time of subscription, to the proper authorities of the court or the Burley Tobacco Company.

The plaintiff is represented by Attorneys W. A. Byrne, John L. Vest and J. G. Tomlin.

Free Wool.

Washington, April 16—Free wool by a vote of 199 to 42.

That was the result of an all-day fight in the Democratic caucus of the House today. Representative Martin Dies, of Texas, tried to take wool off the free list against the wishes of President Wilson and the Ways and Means Committee and make it dutiable at 15 per cent.

It was his motion that was defeated by the vote above stated.

Majority Leader Underwood led the fight for free wool. He won when William J. Bryan failed two years ago. On the former occasion Mr. Underwood was on the other side. He changed at the request of President Wilson and for the sake of party harmony.

All of the Kentuckians voted for free wool. The forty-two members who voted for the 15 per cent. duty were from widely separated sections.

Some hailed from New England, some from the extreme South, come from the Middle West and others from the far West.

The parcels post has been tried out for three months and is not found wanting. In one respect, however, it is disappointing, and that is through no fault of the system. Its benefits, however, have accrued mostly to the people of the towns and cities, who immediately took hold of the new plan with immense enthusiasm, but the farmers—well, they are thinking it over. Permit me to say they should be the first "to go to it." To other classes of people it is a convenience to the farmer it is a blessing, and offers opportunities for business which he may not realize. We have heard of some, however, more alert than others, who have already built up a lively trade in nearby towns for their butter, eggs and poultry, which are delivered by parcels post mail. Some of them by advertising in local papers, found themselves flooded with orders from town-folk. By aid of the telephone, these orders come from the towns to the farm, and are filled by mail, saving a world of trouble both to the seller and buyer, giving the farmer better prices than the store man would give him and giving the buyer fresher food at possibly better prices than he would have to pay the merchant.

The parcels post is the farmers best friend!—Ex.

AGRICULTURE EXTENSION.

Preparation, Planting and Cultivation of the Corn Field.

The wet spring and the holding out of cold weather is causing farmers much uneasiness about corn planting, and, as a result, may lead to much corn being put into the ground before the soil is thoroughly prepared to receive the seed. This practice would prove to be a mistake. Ordinarily, with proper care and cultivation, no serious concern over results need be had if corn is planted in Kentucky any time between April 25th and May 25th.

In preparing clay soils for corn especial care should be taken not to work the land when so wet that puddling will take place or that baking will follow. The disk harrow is generally the best tool to follow the plow and after this some form of smooching harrow should be used, repeating the harrowing until a smooth, very finely pulverized seed bed is obtained. If clods form during the harrowing they should be pulverized with a roller, or sometimes a good drag may do this work well. It should be added that each day's plowing should be sufficiently worked and smoothed on the same day to prevent the evaporation of soil moisture which will be much needed later by the corn crop. The extra work of unhitching by beneficial results to the crop and the greater ease of getting the ground in good condition.

The best time to plant corn—the seed bed being well prepared—is whenever the soil is warm enough and moist enough to insure quick germination of the seed. According to Hunt in "The Cereals in America" the temperature at which maize will germinate most rapidly is from 91 per cent to 93. Probably in practice field corn is nearly always planted before the soil has reached this temperature, but the time of planting should be sufficiently late at least to escape all danger from freezing and frost. The old time notion that the changes if the moon have some bearing upon successful corn growing is now entirely discredited. Neither science nor practice longer support this theory. Corn should be planted from one and one-half to three inches in depth, varying with type of soil and moisture conditions. Shallow planting is preferable. Unless the moisture content of the surface soil insures good germination. Under normal conditions it is best to plant the rows of corn three and a half feet apart, to row both ways, and to plant from three to four kernels to the hill, depending upon the fertility of the soil.

Corn is a plant which requires much water for its growth. Hence, to produce the best crop possible it is necessary to keep down all weeds and to prevent the evaporation of moisture from the surface of the soil. These two things may be accomplished by good methods of cultivation. When the soil is not too wet, it is a good practice to run a spike tooth smoothing harrow, or some form of weeder, over the corn field three or four days after planting. This will destroy most of the early weeds, besides breaking any crust which may have formed over the germinating seeds. This work would often endanger the young plants if done later than four days after planting. The first regular cultivation should be given five or six days after the corn is up, and thereafter cultivations should be repeated after each rain, and besides, often enough to keep down all weeds. Shallow cultivation forming a surface soil mulch is the best for a dry season, while even during wet times the cultivation should be in no case deep enough to break the roots of the corn plants. During the first part of the growing season the cultivation of the corn crop should be so thorough that it will not be necessary to continue cultivation longer than the time when this work begins to break down the corn.

Poultry Notes.

Set no eggs from hens that are not thrifty.

Decapitation is the best remedy for ailing chicks.

Strong parents beget strong and vigorous offspring.

Before you blame your incubator see if you have done your part.

Keep sparrows out of your henhouse. They carry in mites and lice.

A leaky pail set in a pan makes a good drinking fountain for chickens.

Scald the drinking vessels often so they will not harbor disease germs.

When chicken keeping doesn't pay it isn't always the fault of the chickens.

Sprouted oats are not fed for their food value, but to supply fresh succulent green.

Cresol compound stirred up in water makes a good disinfectant for houses and coops.

Eggs intended for storage will keep better if roosters are not allowed with the layers.

Hens will lay better when fed those foods which they like. If left alone a hen will balance her own ration with palatable foods. She does not like musty grains or spoiled meats, etc.

It is quite another thing to rear the chicks after they are hatched. Even at our best Experiment stations where the greatest care is taken to protect and provide for the chicks there is a loss of considerable percentage between the time they emerge from the shell and the time they are old enough to put in the laying pens. Some loss is to be expected but we believe the losses the country over are far larger than they should be or would be if proper means were taken to rear the little birds. In one sense of the word these losses are not the worst thing that could happen to the poultryman.

No matter how good the breeding stock a certain percentage of the chicks hatched are unfit for some reason and their loss early in life is a distinct gain to their owner for he is saved further trouble on their account. This percentage is probably not a very one and losses of this kind will occur as long as we do not understand the needs of chicks much better than we do now. Carelessness in feeding and watering is responsible for many losses. This is especially true in the matter of watering. During the hot months every water vessel that is not carefully and conscientiously soon bacomes a source of germ infection that may start an epedemic which cad be stayed only through great labor and in any case its insure losses that might have been avoided. Brooders, brooding stoves, runs, feed and watering should all be watched and unfailing care in order that germ infection may be avoided. Clean and disinfect brooders and brood houses at least once a week. Clean runs often to change them to fresh ground. Feed nothing but sound feed and give only pure water in germ free vessels. Mere rinsing of water vessels is not enough. They must be made really clean. At the Maine experiment station a little permanganate of potash solution is put in all the water given to the fowls, old and young, every day in the year. This solution is made by putting cryseals of permanganate of potash in a glass jar and filling the jar with water. An ounce of fine crystals is enough for a quart of water. Put enough of this solution into the drinking water to color it a claret color an dno germs will survive. This is a non-poisonous and very effective germicide and its regular use in the poultry yard will go a long way toward preventing unnecessary losses among the fowls of all ages. We do very little doping in our poultry yard but we have had considerable evidence to prove to us that this method of maintaining health effective and very cheap.

The way to save oneself si by saving others. A wealthy man tired of life because he had lived to himself, was going to drown himself, and finding ten dollars in his pocket and thinking it a pity to waste so much, gave it to a poor woman whom he met. when he saw the joy of the woman and her children he changed his mind adent suicide and went home and devoted his life to helping others. Everyone in his own way can help to brighten the of others even if they have not wealth and position, and everyone who does it knows the value of life and the joy of living.—EX.

The way for a young man to rise is to improve himself in every way he can, never suspectsng that anybody wishes to hinder him. Allow me to assure you that suspicion and jealousy never did help any man in any situation. There may sometimes be dangerous attempts to keep a young man down, and they will succeed, too, if he allows his mind to be diverted from its true channel to brood over the attempted injury. Cast about and see if this failing has not injured every person you have ever known to fail into it.—Abraham Lincoln.

The editor of a Kansas paper states that he borrowed a Winchester rifle recently and started up the street to deliver the weapon to its owner. The delinquent subscribers got it in their heads that he was on the war pathand every one he met insisted on paying what he owed him. One man wiped out a debt of ten years standing. On his return to his office he found a load of hay, fifteen bushels of corn, ten bushels of potatoes, a load of wood and a barrel of turnips that had been brought in—Indianapolis News

A wheels's peculiar prank started a fire at New York, the other day. Slipping off the axle of a big motor coal truck the wheel rolled down the street, bounced up on the sidewalk, plunged into the basement of Albert Morse's antique shop, passed through two doors and finally upset a red hot coal stove in the rear of the shop. The stove set fire to the place. Firemen put out the blaze in a few minutes, but it took an hour to get the wheel back on the axle.

Dairy Notes.

Just because the calf is large and thrifty is no sign it will be wonderful cow.

No man can make sucess of dlarying who does not take good care of his calves.

Dairyling isn't always easy work, neither is any other job that really pays well.

The dairy farm that is stocked to its full capacity, without being overstocked, is a pretty good investment.

The only silase feeder who fails to make a net profit feeds cows of mixed breeding and not of dairy type.

The size of the udder isn't always a sure indication of the cow's milking capacity. The quality of milk is of more importance.

Frequently good heifer calves can be bought for men who keep family cows in town and have no facility for raising calves.

Sucess in dairy depends as much upon good common sense as upon anything else, but this is not enough. There must be good stock and good feed upon which to exercise it.

Some men get better profits from the same kind of cows and feed than do others. What pays in dairying? Comfortable stables, persistent milkers, careful attention, silage and feed rich in protein.

A successful breeder of Jersey cows has said that a good proportion of men who breed dairy cattle are not breeders; they simply mate cattle. No man should enter upon the work of breeding boes not have a clear idea of the type and form of animal he wishes to produce, fixed in his mind, and thus breed for a purpose.

Farm Machinery.

Numerous investigations upon this farm machinery question have brought out that the life of farm machinery depends a great deal on the owner. The same identical machine or implement will last twice as long with one man as it does with another. The difference in duration is in favor of the machinery that is housed. All leather belts and canvass parts should be taken from the machine and stored in a dry place free from rats and mice. A few of these rodents can do a great amount of damage in a very short time. Figure the cost of your machine and the per cent it earns on the investment and see if you cannot afford to shelter it well. The years that will be added to the life of it will offset the first cost many times over.

The Tobacco Crop.

Plenty of plants in Green county.

An unusually large crop of tobacco has been planted in Scott county.

The sunshine of this week has done much good to the plants throughout Kentucky.

Tobacco plants are up nicely and unless something happens to them the indications are now favorable for an unusually large crop in Marion county.

Tobacco plants are not doing well around New Castle. A short crop is anticipated. People have lost a good deal of interest because of the decline in prices.

Madam de Thebes, the French sereess who on New Year's day, predicted the terrible Omaha cyclone and the awful floods of the Middle West, and whose perdictions were scoffed until the disasters proved the truth of her words, has predicted still worse disasters in America in September. She has hidden herself away in a little village near Paris to keep from being interviewed regarding the terrible things she sees for this country, for she says she is really ill with horror at the awful calamities she forsees. She says there is no way to avoid the troubles for the finger of God is at work in America. It is in the grip of a terrestial evolution and the face of the country will be changed by flood, fire, wind and water, and there will be no calm for the country until after April 21. A large portion of her territory will slip into the sea, in the next few generations. Madami de Thebes says, and that event will be more terrible than any mind can even picture. September, 1913, will be the most dangerous month for this country and everybody should be ready to flee from the floods, fires and cyclones that may come at any time. In that month most of the horrors will develope from wind. She says there are hidden and occult influencesat work about this country and there will be danger ahead until 1918 and the only thing Americans can do is to put themselves on the defensive and prepare to protect themselves. She concludes by saying that God's destiny is at work and the people are helpless, and they can only safeguard themseves and wait and endure.

The problems of dairying are not at all mysterious or difficult of solution. It is a question of obtaining a cow that will give the most milk for the feed cosumed, and in supplying that cow with the feed which will make milk. These, together with good care, as care is ordinarily understood by the man who is successful in handling live stock, will make the dairy herd profitable and highly successful.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated aIright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

The Young Clydesdale Stallion,

THE KNIGHT,

Recorded Vol. 17 and 33.
His Scottish and American Stud Book numbers (16110) (16143)

THE KNIGHT is a dark brown with gray hairs, blaze face, four white legs, white spot on belly—foaled April 27, 1908, bred by James S. Stenhouse, Fod Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Leitch & Sons, Lafayette, Ill. in the fall of 1911. He was sired by Baronson (10981); 1st dam Princess of Fod the 1st, (17117) by Mains of Aries (10879); 2d dam Lady Madge (14553) by Gallant Poteath (8638); 3d dam Lady Darnly (7272) by Darnly (222).

This horse is a low set, thick well built horse, over 16 hands high, and weighs 1870 lbs. He stands on the best of feet and legs with a splendid top; he also has rare good action.

This horse was a prize winner last fall at the Indiana and Illinois State Fairs—word to the wise. Remember that the Clydesdale is the coming popular horse for the American farmer, the result of experience and education.

I will give a cash prize of $15.00 for the best weanling colt regardless of sex, sired by The Knight and to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home in the fall of 1914.

This horse will be allowed to serve a number of good mares at the nominal sum of $15.00 to insure a live foal, money due when the fact is known or mare parted with. He can be seen at all times at the place of Wm. Ackmyer, one mile west of Bullittsville on the Bullittsville & Dry Creek pike.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

For particulars address
HARRY ACKMYER,
Burlington, Ky.

MAJIC J.

Is a roan horse, 16 hands high, weight 1200 pounds, is a son of the great Jay Bird, dam Magic Wilkes, has been handled very little for speed, and showed a mile in 2:35, has proven himself a breeder of good general purpose horses. Fee $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Jim Wilkes

Is a mahogany bay, 15¾ hands high, weight 1100 pounds, sired by Threlkeld's Jim Wilkes, dam Conner's Maud. This horse has proven himself a good breeder of both size and speed. Season fee $15.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

THE FINE JACK, MIKE.

The fine Jack has proven himself a great breeder, many of his mules selling from $75.00 to $100.00 at weaning time. Mike is a black Jack, 15 hands high, heavy bone, large head and ear, sired by Mike a 16 hand jack, first dam Bourbon Belle by Bourbon Chief. Seasons fee $10.00 to insure a colt to stand and suck. This stock will be at the service of the public at Dr. W. J. Tanner's barn in Florence, Ky., on the Burlington pike. Season money due when colt is foaled, mare sold, traded or transferred to other stock without permission, care will be taken to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur. Lien retained on all colts until seasons money is paid. For further information address

TESTING GARDEN SEED

Failure of Crop Often Attributed to Poor Stand

Vitality or Germinating Power Impaired by Various Causes, Such as Lack of Maturity, Improper Storing or in Curing.

Very often the cause of a crop failure can be attributed to a poor stand. No matter how good the soil, the seed, the season, or the cultivation, if there is a poor stand, the yield is decreased. A poor stand, writes S. Van Smith in Farm News, requires about as much time, work and expense in cultivation as a good one.

This is true in gardening as well as in other lines of crop growing.

An important factor in the cause of poor stands is poor seeds. Seed may have its vitality or germinating power impaired from a variety of causes, such as lack of maturity, improper curing, or storing under unfavorable conditions. Very often the seed has spent itself germinating before it is planted, or perhaps it is too cold.

To avoid poor stands, seeds should be tested before planting. This is a very simple operation and requires but a few minutes. There are several simple methods of testing seeds, probably most of which will answer the purpose.

One of the simplest and quickest ways is to test between blotting paper. First, count out 100 seeds of the kind to be tested, taking them just as they come, and not picking out the best-looking ones. Scatter the seeds between two pieces of blotting paper from 4 to 6 inches square, and place in a common chint plate, and turn another plate bottom side up over the first. If pasteboard plates can be had, they are better, especially if a large number of samples are to be tested

In this case all the plates containing samples of seed can be stacked up, each plate being placed right side up upon the one beneath. This makes each plate a cover for the one beneath it, and holds the blotting paper down closely to the seeds, preventing too rapid drying out.

The seeds should be placed in the living room to secure a temperature favorable to germination. Care should be taken that the seeds are not kept too wet, as germination takes place more readily under barely moist conditions. Strength of such germination should be noted, for it is not enough that a seed germinate. It should germinate strongly to be a good seed. Seeds which germinate weakly in such tests may not be strong enough to make a good plant under field conditions.

If molds form quickly on the seeds they are likely to be old stock.

If 100 seeds are taken, the number that germinates can be taken as the percentage of germination. If scant, the seed should not be planted. If good, or indifferent, it may be planted, making the proper allowance germinate.

Green Alfalfa.

German experimenters found that green alfalfa put into an unwalled pit in July and taken out in March had decreased in weight by practically 33 1-3 per cent. The outer layers were more or less moldy, and in some places the silage was partially charred.

Beet leaves and tops siloed in the stock on the ground in October contained 6,556 kilograms of dry matter, and about 5,222 kilograms at the end of January. Corn stover silage made in an iron concrete silo suffered only a slight loss in nutriment, as shown by experiments, and this loss was offset by increased palatability, something which always counts for much.

Good Profits in Popcorn.

With popcorn so popular an article of consumption as it is, there is no farm in any section of the corn belt that should not grow a patch to supply the family needs. Popcorn will do well on any land that will produce a good crop of corn.

It should be cultivated and cared for in the same general manner as corn, though it may be planted more closely. It ripens in about 100 days, and it should be shocked as soon as it is ripe, so that it will dry out well before husking. It will produce from 50 to 60 bushels of ears with a good stand, and this will fetch from $1 to $2 per bushel.

Hatching Eggs Small End Down.

A poultry authority says that if the egg is placed on one side or large end heavy yolk will settle to the bottom and come in contact with the shell, which admits the air. If it is placed on the small end, it will always have a layer of white between it and the shell.

Will Balance Own Ration.

Hens will lay better when fed those foods which they like. If left alone a hen will balance her own ration with palatable foods. She does not like musty grains or spoiled meats, etc.

Harrison Prince, 3340.

Will make the present season at the stable of G. T. Gaines, one mile from Burlington, Ky., on the Petersburg pike, at $15.00 to insure a living colt.

HARRISON PRINCE is a chestnut stallion, 16 hands high, 4 years old, has a large blaze face, two white feet, and is the perfect type of a saddle horse with fine finish and action a champion in his class from a colt. Harrison Prince comes from a family of show horses on both sides, and is a show horse himself. His sire is Dandy Jim, 2d, 1531, the well known show horse by McChief, 1451, by Rex McDonald, 833, by Rex Denmark, 840, he by Crigler's Denmark by Old Denmark Chief. His dam, Mary Neal, 1605, also a show mare, by Boyd Wilkes by Favorite Wilkes 2d dam, Skiddles, by Washington Denmark, Jr., by Washington Denmark 64.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

In 1914 a premium of $10 will be given for the best and $5.00 for the second best colt of this year's get of Harrison Prince.

His colts were shown the first time last season and were never defeated in the ring. H. T. GAINES,
Burlington, Ky.

The Impt. Germam Coach Stallion,

PLUTARCH
No. 3183.

Will make the season of 1913 at my stable one mile west of Idlewild, Boone county, Ky., at Ten Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

Will be at W. J. Rice's stable near Burlington, every Saturday.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1912 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

The Fine Black Jack,

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at the same time and place at Eight Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Lanky Bob is 4 years old, 15.3 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur. Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season. No business done on Sunday. Will give mares special attention and pasture furnished at $1.50 a month. T. E. RANDELL.

THE FINE SADDLE AND HARNESS OR GENERAL PURPOSE STALLION,

HARRY WILLIS,

is a handsome blood bay stallion with star in forehead, stands 16¾ hands high, was foaled in 1907, and weighs 1,150 pounds. His conformation, individuality, breeding and reproductive qualities all combined in one horse go to make that desire of all conservative breeders—an ideal stallion. He is the personification of perfection, has a fine head and neck, strong, deep shoulders, short back, very fine quarters, clean flat legs, good bone, fine mane and tail.

He has a good disposition and fine action, and is an unparalleled breeder.

He will make the season of 1913 at the farm of C. T. Northcutt's one and a half miles east of Bellview, Boone county, Ky., at TEN DOLLARS to insure a colt to stand up and suck, the money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

Three cows and a DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATOR will make more money than four cows with gravity setting

Thousands upon thousands of cow owners have already proved this statement; any experienced dairyman will verify it for you.

With such a big saving it is hard to understand why any cow owner should try to get along without a De Laval Cream Separator.

If you are selling cream or making butter, and have no separator, or else an inferior machine, we know if we could put a De Laval on your place we would be doing you a personal favor.

If you haven't a separator don't make the mistake of starting with a "cheap" or inferior machine. When you do buy a separator—as sooner or later you surely will—be sure to get the best—the De Laval. Remember, you can't make money by trying to save money in the purchase price of a cream separator. A De Laval costs only a little more than the cheapest and will save you twice as much and last five to ten times as long as other separators.

Railroad between Louisville and Nashville, and has recently been on the C. and O. Railroad between Cincinnati and Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Blessing formerly resided at Columbus, Indiana, where Mrs. Blessing was reared, and in honor of her native State they have christened their farm just purchased, "Indiana." They are of a class of people that are a welcome addition to any good community, and our people are pleased that Mr. and Mrs. Blessing will make their home on their new purchase. Mrs. Vest and son, Hugh retained about 88 acres of the farm, but have bought the property of W. Tilden Dudgeon in Verona, consisting of a house and a small tract of land, for $1,450, and will make it their home.

GARDEN NOTES.

Don't crowd plants.

Plant in straight rows.

Cultivate before you plant.

Test garden seed before planting.

Give the children some space for a flower garden.

Remember, the boys like new garden tools. Never deny your boy a good hoe.

Read the descriptions in seed catalogues carefully before you decide on the variety.

Poke the mulching away from the peonies and loosen the top soil. You may find some cut worms. If you do, a pint of wood ashes mixed with each hill of mulching in the fall will help to keep them away.

CONSTITUTION OF THE BOONE COUNTY HORSE AND MULE PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

We, the undersigned, do, for the purpose of forming an organization at Walton, Ky., for the protection of horses and mules against theft, and to detect and prosecute any and all persons who shall steal a horse or mule from any of the members of this organization.

Section 1. The name of this organization shall be the Walton Horse and Mule Protective Association.

Section 2. The principal place for the transaction of business shall be at Walton, Kentucky.

Section 3. The general nature of this business or organization shall be to detect and cause to be prosecuted any and all persons who shall steal a horse or mule from any of the members of this organization and to regain said horse or mule for said member.

Section 4. The affairs of this organization shall be conducted by a board of nine members or directors who shall be elected by its members on the first Saturday in May of each year after the organization of this association. The Board of Directors shall elect from their members a President, Vice President and Treasurer and members for convenient committees to be provided for by the by-laws.

Section 5. Said association thru its directors, shall have the power to amend or pass all needful by-laws to fully carry out the purpose of this association and shall have power to fix the assessments on its members for the purpose of raising a fund and maintaining a fund for the prosecution of any person who may steal a horse or mule and to regain same property so stolen, and all incidental expenses.

Section 6. No new member shall be assessed at the first assessment of this organization to exceed one (1.00) dollar and the dues thereafter shall be fifty cents ($.50) per year.

Section 7. All assessments after the first assessment here above mentioned shall be governed and based on each horse or mule stolen to be fixed by said Board of Directors.

Section 8. No member shall be assessed for the recapture of a horse or mule or in the prosecution of the person stealing same to exceed two ($2.00) dollars.

Section 9. The Board of Directors shall have the power to make an assessment on each member each time a horse or mule is stolen.

Section 10. The Secretary shall notify each member by mail when ever an assessment is levied by the Board of Directors and same shall be due and payable when so notified, to the Secretary of said organization.

Section 11. A reward of ..... dollars shall be offered and paid for the detection, capture and conviction of the thief and return of the horse or mule stolen from any member of this organization.

Section 12. Any member who shall have a horse or mule stolen shall, at once, at the expense of the association, notify the police or detective at his command, with all the description and details of the theft committed, and said expense not to exceed five dollars ($5.00) and report at once to the Secretary of said association.

Section 13. The Board of Directors shall have the power to apply any part of said assessment to defraying any necessary expense in the way of books, stationery, compensation to the Secretary, such as the directors may see fit for him.

Section 14. No funds shall be disbursed except upon the order of the President and attested by the Secretary.

Section 15. Any member failing to pay his assessment when due shall be entitled to no benefits, assistance or protection herein contemplated and his name shall be, at once, stricken from the books of said association and his membership cease at once.

Section 16. There shall be no money drawn from the Treasury unless signed by the President, Vice President and Secretary.

Don DeGozee

The Belgian Draft Horse, foaled in 1908, will make the present season Monday and Tuesday of each week, after April 21st, at W. J. Rice's stable, Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at E. J. Aylor's stable, one and one-half miles from Hebron, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.

Description and Pedigree.

Don DeGozee, despite his great size and weight, is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He has as light action as a stallion of much smaller type, and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad, flat foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than another draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle, kind workers.

Don DeGozee's dam, Della Wire, brown mare, the great draft show mare of Campbell county, Ky., sired by Bayard DeGozee No. 2188, whose Belgian Stud Book number is 21670. bred by Mr. Ballleux E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (312), he by Brilliant (709), out of Coatte (702), dam Catherine DeGozee (21083), she by Lion (766) out of Marie (2121).

Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

Pink Smith scored both of Belleview's runs and never got a hit. The boys were loud in their praise of the way the Petersburg club treated them. Our boys play the Boones at Burlington next Saturday. day. Belleview's record—Won 3, lost 0—1,000. Only one run has been scored against them in three games.

Last Friday evening Jim Williamson's cow, which was peacefully grazing on the street at McVille, disappeared, and when Jim began to look for her he just supposed she had strayed off on one of the many roads leading from town. All night and all day Wednesday the search was kept up and Wednesday night the general alarm was given over all telephone lines centering at Waterloo, but no one had heard or seen any sign of the missing cow. The river shore was searched as it was thought perhaps she had mired in the deep mud, but no tracks were found. By Friday night people were looking overhead, thinking she might have got tangled in the propeller of a flying machine. Saturday morning John Ed. Louden, a neighbor of Jim's, came rushing from his domicile, saying, "come on boys, I saw that cow in a dream last night. She's in the old cistern by the big barn." Much excited and willing to grasp at any straw that tended to solve the mysterious disappearance, the crowd rushed to the cistern which was partly caved in and about nine feet deep. A shout from the villagers told that this was one time a dream came true, for there was the missing bovine alive but very weak. By digging and the use of ropes they got the cow out and it was found that she had sucked herself dry and was not much the worse for her 100 hours imprisonment. The cistern had been filled and rubbish thrown over it and the fill had sunk down on one side during the recent heavy rains which accounts for no one thinking of looking there. The cow was within 20 yards of where she is milked each day.

COUNTY CLERKS IN QUANDARY

Doubt As to Power Accepting Primary Petitions.

Frankfort.—County Clerks, with whom petitions must be filed by candidates seeking to have their names placed on the primary ballots the names of candidates who under penalty, place on the ballots the names of candidates who qualify and present petitions signed by the requisite number of voters, are anxiously inquiring how they are to distinguish those who qualify as party candidates and what they are to do when they are morally certain that the petitioner or the petition does not conform to the stipulations in the statute.

For instance, the candidates must be affiliated with the party on whose primary ballot he seeks to have his name, and must have supported the nominees at the last election. Also the petition must be signed by members of that party, and names of persons belonging to some other party signed to the petition must not be counted. The candidate is not required to swear to his declaration, and there is no penalty provided if he makes a false statement In cities where voters register the clerks will have no difficulty with regard to the question whether the candidate is a qualified voter, but since the secret ballot is in vogue in Kentucky, and it is the policy of the law to guard the secrecy of a voter's action in the booth, it will be a difficult matter for the clerk to determine whether the candidate and the signers of his petition supported one party or another in the last election.

Whether the clerks have some judicial powers to inquire into the party standing of the candidate and signers, or is a mere ministerial officer, who must take the petition at its face value, is something they are anxious to know. Practically, however, it is believed among State officials that clerks will have little trouble on this score, except where a coalition of Republicans and Progressives is attempted, and if anyone attempts to get on the ticket as a party with which he is not affiliated, some member of that party is quite certain to take legal steps to prevent it. It is believed that no candidate will jeopardize his chances by getting signers who are not in regular standing on his petition, and the candidates may be depended upon to take precautions to have their petitions regular.

FEARS FAILURE OF PROSECUTION

Callahan's Daughter Says Resources Are Exhausted.

Lexington.—Mrs. Lillian Gross, daughter of Ed. Callahand, the Breathitt county feud leader, accused of participation in many of the shocking tragedies of that county, and who was himself murdered about a year ago, will appeal to the people of Central Kentucky and to the public generally to aid her in furnishing the money to prosecute the men who are to be tried at Winchester on the charge of slaying her father. Mrs. Gross, while in Lexington, stated that the prosecutions was in danger of being crippled on account of her inability to supply the funds required to pay the expenses of bringing witnesses to Winchester from their homes in the mountains, a hundred miles away, and maintaining them there indefinitely thru a series of trials. While the Commonwealth grants the witnesses for the prosecution certain fees and mileage, Mrs. Gross states that this amount is totally inadequate to reimburse these men for long detention from their homes and business, and therefore it will be difficult to secure their attendance at Winchester when they may be needed. Mrs. Gross in her petition recently filed for appointment as postoffice department alleged that she had expended all of her means in the prosecution of the defendants accused of the conspiracy to kill her father, and that she had made visit after visit to raise funds. While here she reiterated this statement, and said that she would appeal thru the newspapers to the public to assist her in raising funds for the purpose of giving compensation other than the legal fees to the witnesses who have to leave their homes and business, and come so far to testify for the Commonwealth. Mrs. Gross said she hoped to obtain the funds needed from public spirited citizens, who believe that a successful prosecution of the cases at Winchester will mean a vindication of the law in the feud-ridden region.

The proposition to oil the streets in Burlington again this year is at hand for settlement. The Kenton Road Oil Company proposes to put the oil on for 7½ cents a gallon provided a car load can be made up in the next ten days to ship to Erlanger. One coat at least will be necessary to keep the dust down again this summer, and without an application of oil the dust will be very annoying during the dry season. It is up to the people now. What will they do?

FRUITS COULD BE KENTUCKY GROWN

$17,000,000 Spent Outside State Each Year.

SHOULD GROW THEM HERE.

Schools Are Striving to Help Solve Problems That Will Confront Our Children—Useless to Talk to Older Farmers—Boys' Corn Clubs Point Way to Success.

It is estimated that there are 9,000,000 apple trees of bearing age in Kentucky at the present writing. Our annual crop from these trees is something like 3,000,000 bushels of inferior quality. We spend $17,000,000 for fruits of all kinds that could be grown in Kentucky.

It is useless to talk to many of the older farmers, for they will tell you:

ROOT GRAFTING.

"Oh, yes; when I was a boy you could raise all the fruit you wanted to. But now—waal, I reckon it's jus' run out."

It must be the new generation with which we deal if we are to save this annual expenditure of $17,000,000 some time in the future. We cannot go out to every farmhouse in the state and have a chat with the farmer and his boys and girls, so we must find a way to teach them easily and effectively.

The Boys' Corn clubs point the way to success. They have been made possible by the co-operation of teachers everywhere in the country, and the same is possible in fruit culture. At one of our normal schools numbers of the young people who are training for teachers are getting ready for this new crusade.

Almost any afternoon this spring in the basement of one of the big buildings, tables littered with roots of young apple trees, twigs from standard varieties, thread, wired tags and knives might have been seen.

As rapidly as deft fingers cut roots and twigs to fit snug, they were wound with thread and placed in small bundles. These bundles of ten, fifteen or twenty-five tiny trees were then sent to the country by parcel post. These trees were to be planted in the home gardens of the pupil-teachers and carefully cultivated for a year before being set out permanently.

That the interest in this real vital work of education is growing is shown by the fact that the number of trees mailed to the homes of the students this spring will be about five times as great as it was two years ago.

The first year the work was inaugurated 4,000 trees were grafted, last year 8,000 and this year about 20,000 will go on their mission of education.

With such work being done by teachers here and there over the state the children are sure to see a new vision of Kentucky as a fruit state.

THE COUNTRY WOMAN

Are "The Salt of the Earth" Says An Article in Woman's Companion.

The following is taken from an article in the May Woman's Home Companion:

"The country woman is, from her environment, the possessor of a resource at once so intelligent and capable that it behooves those who observe it to admire. She can hitch the horse to the buggy, and drive him, too; she can round up the cows that have broken through the pasture fence, and mend the fence; she can put out the fire in the chimney when the men-folks are far afield, she can administer first-aid treatment of the very best to bad burns or cuts or broken arms, as well as such minor ills as hornet stings chilblains and stone shrewd judge of cattle, she can make and mend her own and her children's clothes she knows how to cure meat to shoot a marauding hawk to prune a rosebud, to make soap, to beat a carpet, to scale a fish—and she looks on none of these things as an 'adventure' or a unique experience, but simply as part of the day's work.

"Because she lives with the actualities of life, she is not likely to put undue emphasis upon its non-essentials. Comfort, neatness and cleanliness, above style, are desired in her home. Her table is supplied with palatable and wholesome food, neatly served. She does not worry about the lack of lace centerpieces, or monogrammed linen, or the position of the knives and forks; she knows that if she is comfortably dressed in neat, clean clothes befitting the occupation in hand and suitable to the weather she is truly a well dressed woman. She asks 'Will it wear well?' when she goes to buy, and she is a very astute purchasing agent, keen at a bargain, knowing exactly what she wants and what she wants to pay for it.

"There is just one phrase that fits her—'salt of the earth. Let us by all means put her in a class apart and yield her the respect due her."

Perjury Not False Swearing.

Prankfort.—The judgment in the case of the Commonwealth vs Ransdall, from Grant county, was affirmed. Ransdall was indicted in Grant county for false swearing charged with having made false statements to John G. Evans, assistant fire marshall, and will now go free. It was alleged that Ransdall had testified before Evans that he had not shipped tobacco in his barn to Cincinnati when in fact he had. The court reversed on the technical ground that the statute under which the indictment was drawn provided a penalty for perjury but not false swearing.

TOURNAMENT

Of the North Kentucky Schools Held at Dry Ridge A Grand Success.

Will Be Held at Burlington 1914

The Northern Kentucky Graded School Tournament held its second annual session at Dry Ridge, April 24-26. Ten schools participated —Dry Ridge, Walton, Burlington, Independence, Crittenden, Union, Goshen, Verona, Sanders and Richwood. Contests were held in the usual brancies of study, Declamation, Manual Training, Sewing, Embroidery, Cooking, Corn grown by students, and Athletics. Dry Ridge carried off the largest number of points, Walton was second with Burlington a close third. A few contests in athletics yet to be decided may change the order in the second and third places. Most of the other schools, while getting their share of medals in the subjects in which they had entered, did not have so many contestants in the various departments and consequently did not make as large a showing in total points secured.

Next year the Tournament will be held at Burlington. Officers elected were as follows: President—C. V. Lucy, Independence; vice-president—P. L. Hamlet, Crittenden; Secty-Treas—Everett L. Dix, Burlington.

Something like 150 students and teachers from schools outside of Dry Ridge were present besides numerous visitors, who came to enjoy the events of the Tournament. Dry Ridge entertained them all royally. Great credit is due Prof. Gruell and the little city for the way in which they took care of the Tournament. Their regular Kentucky hospitality will be long remembered by all who were there.

The following list, while not the official record of the Secretary is as nearly accurate as we are able to secure at this time. If there are any errors they will be corrected next week from the official record. The points made by each school from this record, are as follows:

Explains Itself.

April 24, 1913.

Mr. Edgar C. Riley,
Burlington, Ky.

Dear Sir:

Please have your papers announce at once the following cash prizes offered by Mr. J. B. McFerran:

1. $250 in gold will be awarded the boy in the Corn Clubs of Kentucky who is state champion and exceeds 150 bushels on his acre.

2. $250 in gold will be awarded the girl in the Tomato Canning Club of Kentucky who is state champion and cans to exceed 800 quarts from her 1-10 of an acre.

Give this great publicity as some of your children may be stirred enough to win these huge cash prizes. Remember planting time is here and this must be pushed vigorously to get results.

Yours Sincerely,
James Speed.

The above letter explains itself. It is hoped Boone county boys and girls will win one or all the above prizes.

There never was a time when people appreciated the real merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than now. This is shown by the increase of sales and voluntary testimonials from persons who have been cured by it. If you or your children are troubled with a cough or cold give it a trial and become acquainted with its good qualities. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

The shortage in farm help in this county has resulted in a considerable reduction in the acreage of corn and tobacco cultivated, and many of the land owners have trouble to keep help.

2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112.

3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor)

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1908 and sold for $8,600, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show, Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmons? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest price Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chiefs and his sons and grand-sons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzstmmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible should any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Best's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners,
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

The Fine High Bred Percheron Stallion,

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1913 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs., and is 17¼ hands in height. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

PRINCE OLSEN was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., where he was foaled in 1907, and from whom he was purchased by me in 1911, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olson was a high bred registered Percheron mare. I feel that farmers and breeders will make no mistake in breeding to Prince Olsen as he is a good, strong colt that will meet every requirement on the farm. One of the lacking features of our horses is the size and strength. With the well bred Percheron like Prince Olsen these essentials are fully incorporated.

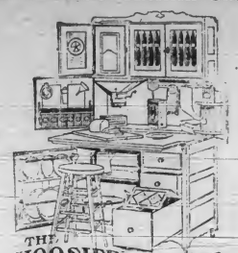
Come and see the horse and inspect his good points and you will breed to him.

Two Fine Young Jacks,

Ben and Dewey.

BEN is a black jack with mealy points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ears, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Kentucky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. Service fee $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine jack, five years old, and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.



Both jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Take a look at them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Stop Walking In Your Kitchen

Save Your Strength, Health and Beauty with a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet

Every physician will tell you that long hours of INDOOR WALKING AND STANDING are extremely injurious for housekeepers as well as for women in the business world.

You spend hours on your feet every day walking back and forth between pantry and cupboard and kitchen table collecting supplies and cooking utensils and standing over the kitchen table.

You are wearing yourself out needlessly, for we have a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet ready to deliver into your home today.

In the Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet everything you need in cooking is within reach of your own arm. You can get it, use it, and return it to its place while sitting on a comfortable stool.

Your flour is in a handy bin with a sifter attachment; your sugar in another; other supplies in the convenient glass container with which the Hoosier is equipped.

Dishes go in one cupboard; pots and kettles in another; bread and cake are kept in a splendid metal lined special drawer.

There are clean towel and cutlery drawers; hooks for small utensils; a bracket to hold your rolling pin and a clock-face want list to keep you from forgetting necessary supplies.

A beautiful aluminum topped table, 40 inches square, is kept clean by simply wiping with a hot cloth—no staining, rusting or discoloration.—Another little feature that lightens labor.

This business management of your kitchen saves hours of time—women who own a Hoosier have the rest and recreations that make life worth living.

Instead of wearing themselves out they are rested and happy. They have made housework the pleasant, congenial, comfortable occupation it ought to be.

Call at our store and let us show you the Hoosier and explain it to you. You incur no obligation—we are glad to demonstrate.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

Because it's Welded, you can take it Down and Put it Up Without Injuring the Fence

That's a good point to consider.

Many a time you would shift a line of fencing from, say, the bull pasture to the hog lot—if it didn't destroy the efficiency of the fence.

In "Pittsburgh Perfect", the only fence with electrically welded joints, the stays are permanently joined to the line wires.

It is actually a one-piece fence.

Taking down "Pittsburgh Perfect" and re-stringing it doesn't hurt it a bit. This is one exclusive "Pittsburgh Perfect" feature of economy perhaps you haven't thought of. Our catalogue, sent free, tells of many more. Get a copy at once.

Made in Different Styles for FIELD, FARM, RANCH, LAWN, CHICKEN, POULTRY and RABBIT YARD and GARDEN

Every Rod Guaranteed

Ask your dealer for "Pittsburgh Perfect" and insist on his furnishing it. Do not allow him to persuade you that some other fence is just as good. If he doesn't sell it, write us direct.

144,000 FREE MEALS FOR THE VETERANS

Immense Preparations Being Made a. Chattanooga to Entertain Confederate Veterans This Month.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—In commemoration of the bloody battle at Chickamauga 50 years ago, Chattanooga announces perfections of the plans for entertainment of the United Confederate Veterans and the Sons who will hold their 23rd annual Reunion May 27-29. High officials of the G. A. R. state that Chattanooga's expenditures for entertainment and amusement etc. will be on a more lavish scale than was ever necessary for their meetings, even surpassing the high water mark at Los Angeles.

It is expected in Chattanooga that upward of 12,000 veterans will be present all of whom will be tendered free lodging and meals at Camp Alexander P. Stewart. Some fellow with a love for statistics has figured that this means the service of 144,000 free meals in the course of four days. The requisite number of Government tents and cots have been loaned by the War Department. The year 1913 will perhaps mark the last pilgrimage of most of the veterans of 1863 to ground made sacred by the heroes of the Blue and Gray on the heights and in the shadow of Lookout Mountain.

Rev. Bush, colored, died at his home in Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, last Saturday and was buried last Monday. He was 81 years, one month and three days old. Rev. Bush was pastor of the Burlington colored church for 20 years and of the Sand Run colored church for 30 years. He was a most estimable colored man and was liked by both the white and colored people in Burlington.

Don't forget the Belleview-Burlington game of ball here next Saturday afternoon. The Belleview team is unbeaten and they are believed to be unbeatable, it being an aggregation of star amateurs.

The candidates will, in the next few days, be presenting their nomination petitions to the voters for their autographs.

State and county taxes will be due again in a few weeks. Did you ever know of the tax crop failing?

Every morning the world wakes up.

Patience and Ingenuity.

Frankfort, Ky.—Patience and ingenuity that are admirable in themselves, but require an equal degree of vigilance on the part of others to watch a recent order in the Frankfort reformatory that any prisoner found possessing a knife would be punished. Warden A. G. Wells had a search made. The search brought to light a curious collection of handmade cutlery including one dirk, at least ten inches long with a handle made of leather rings. The sharpening of the edges had not been completed but it was already a deadly weapon. Other knives were made of the steel springs of shoes, that the owner could shave with, and even the facing of an ordinary door knob had been ground to an edge.

Incidentally the warden gathered several emery discs used for pipelighters. One of these discs with two holes in it is hung on a double string, which, being twisted around and around, and then drawn taut, sends the disc spinning with great velocity. The rest of the paraphernalia consists of a small box with nails in it and some cotton waste in the box. The whirling disc is allowed to strike the nails and the resultant sparks ignite the cotton. From this, prisoners in the cells obtain lights for a smoke in bed.

"Antibootleger's Act."

Frankfort.—Construing the "antibootlegger's act," known as the Frost bill, passed in 1912, the Court of Appeals took a long step toward making Kentucky a dry state in fact, if not in name.

The conviction of Isaac Pope, of Leslie county, for carrying a bottle of whiskey into local option territory to accommodate Robt. Walker was sustained. The opinion was handed down by Judge Lassing, and as a result of its construction any person or corporation carrying intoxicating liquors into local option territory even for accommodation, except common carriers to licensed drug gists, are liable to a fine of from $20 to $100 and from 10 to 20 days in jail or both. The Appellate Court was unanimous in the opinion handed down by Judge Lassing.

Walker gave Pope $1.00 to buy a quart of whisky. It was agreed that Pope got nothing for carrying the whisky, not even as much as a drink of it.

Why Rotate Crops?

The time has passed when the up-to-date farmer persists in growing the same crop on the same soil year after year. In other words the principle of crop rotation is so fundamental that it can no longer be neglected in any successful system of farming. Why is it that larger crops can be grown for a longer period in rotation than by continuous culture? The larger crops secured by rotation take out of the soil a greater amount of plant food than the smaller ones secured by continuous culture. Over a long period of years, we can reasonably expect this difference to be considerable.

Soil fertility is not a question of "total" plant food, but rather a question of available plant food. The proper sort of crop rotation keeps the soil in good condition and as a result plant food is made available in sufficient amounts for the larger crops.

Plant food is made available in part by the decay of organic matter in the soil. The organic acids formed in the process of decay act upon the soil particles and make plant foods available for plant nutrition. When a clover crop is placed in a rotation and a heavy sod plowed under the large amount of roots and stubble add considerable organic matter to the soil.

The amount of plant food thus furnished is not sufficient to meet the needs of the larger crops. Manure should be added as a supplement, but the beneficial results obtained from manure are due in part to the plant food and in part to the organic matter it contains.

Rotation also enables the farmer to control plant diseases and head off injurious insects. Injurious insects are limited to certain plants for their food supply and if these plants are not grown a few years, the pests soon die of starvation. Weeds soon infest a field where one crop is grown continuously, but in rotation they are killed by the tilling that is necessary too produce the hoe crop.

Lastly, a system of crop rotation should be followed because of the economy in farm labor. Variety of crops result in distribution of the work required in caring for them and make it possible to secure cheaper and better help than where one crop is grown.—Ex.

How to Put Up Wool.

I have again been asked to write an article telling the Boone County Wool Growers how to put up their wool. As I stated in my article last year there isn't much to tell my Boone county friends for I have always found the wool of this county put up as good, and in many respects better than elsewhere in the State. However, I will give a few facts that I believe will be of assistance.

Do not tie your wool with sisal twine. The fiber from the sissal gets into the wool, then into the yarn and from there into the goods and makes a faulty piece of cloth and means a loss to the manufacturer. Tie your fleeces with a hard twisted smooth twine, or use the neck of the fleece by twisting into a long rope-like nature and after folding the fleece and rolling it into a firm bundle, use the neck of the fleece to bind it securely so as to hold the fleece together. Do not break the fleece up, keep it together. In burring a fleece do it either while the woo. is on the sheep's back or if sheared, spread on a clean floor or table and either clip out or take out by hand, but be careful and keep the fleece together.

Pack black fleeces, dead wool, Fleece Grown, or other grades of "off Wool" or Rejections in separate bags. Do not scatter such grades of wool throughout the sacks that contain your good wool as it hurts the appearance and necessarily injures the value of the Merchantable Fleeces.

Do not shear your sheep in a dirty barn. Clean it out before you shear. Keep out of your wool all straw, chaff, seed, etc. The more sightly you make your wool the better the price. Clip off all tags, dung locks, etc. See that your sheep are dry before clipping as a fleece or two of wet wool in a bag will make almost an entire bag feel damp.

I trust this will be the means of assisting the Boone county people.

Very Truly,
DANIEL SABEL.
Of M. Sabel & Sons, Wool Dealers, Louisville, Ky.

Commendable Enterprise.

The counties of Mason, Bath, Fleming and Montgomery have gone to work to capture the Federal appropriation of $10,000 that is available for the construction of a model road in Kentucky.

Under the terms of the appropriation the road must be fifty miles in length and must be a rural free delivery route for its entire length. It is to be built under the supervision of a Government engineer on plans prepared by the Bureau of Public Roads. The four counties should they secure the award will have to raise $20,000 on their own account.

The road which it is proposed to improve extends from Maysville to Mt. Sterling. It is already a macadamized road, but is not in good condition. Twelve miles of it lie in Mason county, seventeen in Flerming, fourteen in Bath and seven in Montgomery. The four counties not only have formed local organizations, but have organized the Maysville and Mt. Sterling Model Road Association and have taken all other necessary steps for the prosecution of their claim to the Government appropriation.

The plan under consideration for raising the $20,000 required is the collection of private subscriptions with such assistance as may be secured from the fiscal courts in the several counties. Leading citizens have gone into the campaign with vigor and enthusiasm and will do their utmost to capture the attractive prize that has been hung up by the Federal Government. Their enterprise is commendable. There are other parts of the State where model roads are worse needed, but aside from a movement in some of the counties of Southwestern Kentucky there seems to be no scramble for this desirable "plum." If the Maysville and Mt. Sterling Model Road Association shall walk away with it without a struggle it will be a somewhat remarkable state of affairs—though entirely creditable to the foresight and energy of the promoters of that organization.—C.-J.

Hot Candidate.

A candidate for the Democratic nomination for Jailer in Madison county by the name of Harlow came out with the following strong talk on his card to the voters: "I am a candidate for the office of Jailer; not for sentiment or glory, but for the money there is in it. Was not asked to run by 'Many Voters,' 'Many Democrats,' or anyone else, but am running on my own hook and responsibility. Haven't a blood relative in the county, nor do I belong to any clique. Am no good; good or tin saint have my faults, as most people have, but if elected to the responsible position of Jailer will guarantee to care for the county property in the very best possible manner." The office of Jailer in Madison will be worth about as much as the Sheriff's as the new law gives the jailer 75 cents per day and the Richmond jail is used for the Federal prisoners, of which there are a great many at all times.

Fine Horses Burned.

Lexington, Ky., April 29.—Fifteen of the finest American and English thoroughbred mares of the world at the famous James R. Keene estate, each with a foal by her side, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed a barn at the Kingston Stock Farm here early today. The estimated loss is $50,000. Bloodhounds were brought from the city and are now trying to get the trail.

The Odd-Fellows had a big meeting at Hebron last Saturday night. A large crowd was in attendance, and a splendid supper was served. It was approaching Sunday school time when the Burlington delegation reached home.

Fishing With His Dog.

Being attracted by the frantic barking of his dog, while plowing, one day last week, Bert Rouse went to the creek, where he found his dog had located a two pound bass on a riffle, and he was not long in capturing the fish.

Poultry Business Increasing.

The poultry business has increased considerably in this county in the last few years. It seems to go hand in hand with the dairy, and a few dozen hens and half a dozen or so good cows will sustain an average family nicely.

Stuck In The Mud.

J. F. Blyth was in Rabbit Hash, one day last week, and his horse got hung up in the mud in front of Riddell's store. He had to unhitch from his buggy and the next morning a plank road was built over the mud in order to retrieve the vehicle.

It Finally Died.

A colt belonging to D. E. Castleman, of Erlanger, was found dead in the pasture on Edgar Riley's farm in Francesville neighborhood one morning not long since. It had been on the farm for some time, and Mr. Castleman had gotten in the habit of asking Mr. Riley every time they met if his colt was still alive.

Attending The K. E. A.

Supt. Edgar C. Riley, Prof. E. L. Dix, Misses Mary Roberts, Edna Riley, Ruth Kelly, Etta McAtee, Edna Beall and Mrs. Nannie Maurer left Tuesday morning for Louisville, where they are attending the Kentucky Educational Association. Several other teachers of the county, whose names were not received at this office are in attendance.

Birthday Anniversary

Mrs. Newton Sullivan gave a party last Saturday in honor of the fourteenth anniversary of the birth of her daughter, Miss Sarah Ryle. An elegant dinner was served, and among those present were Misses Gwendolin Goodridge, Kathryn Kelly, Bessie Baldon, Lillian Carver, Isabelle Duncan. These little folks reported a most delightful time.

Handsomely Entertained.

The Burlington pupils who attended the Educational Tournament at Dry Ridge, Grant county, last Friday and Saturday, are profuse in their praise of the excellent entertainment they were given. They thought last year that the people of Walton had no equals as dispensers of hospitality, but they learned this year that the citizens of their neighbor town, Dry Ridge, are just as untiring and willing in looking after the comfort of those who come among them.

Send For A Copy.

Every reader seriously interested in any phase of horticulture or agriculture should have a copy of the year book of the United States department of agriculture. The book may be got without cost by dropping a line to your representative or senator at Washington. The book contains a world of information along interesting and practical lines and not only gives a summary of crop statistics but accounts of the progress made in experimental and research work along a great variety of lines.

Candidates Should Get Posted.

Candidates for county offices should read the new primary law and familiarize themselves with it, as there is more than likely to be trouble for those who fail to follow out the provisions closely. The petitions necessary under the operations of the new law may be circulated on and after May 3d, and must be filled with the county clerk no later than July 3d. Any nominating petition circulated by a candidate before May 3d will be worthless and disqualify him from getting on the primary ballots. Candidates for county officers are required to have on their petitions the signatures of no less than 3 per cent and not in excess of 10 per cent of the voters of the party in which they seek the nominations.

Lose Their Little Girl.

Died, of Choera, April 9, at 124 State Ave., Cincinnati, Melvin M., little son of Hubert and Gertie Parsons, aged two years, six months and five days. Thus has the death angel entered their home for the second time, the first time taking little Iris, aged 20 months, five years since, now while we are grieving so sadly over our loss we know they are "safe in the arms of Jesus," and by faith we see those "Beautiful, beckoning hands." May they not beckon us in vain is the sincere prayer of the writer.

Berts Loving Mother.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our friends for their kindness and sympathy in our sad bereavement; also for the beautiful floral offerings with which the little casket was covered. The Bereaved Ones.

Bert Needed His Gun.

Coming from the end of the car line near Ft. Mitchell, last Sunday afternoon, Bert Sullivan met an auto in which the four men were drunk, and while the car was flying from one side of the road to the other, they were yelling like Commache Indians. The auto came very near colliding with Mr. Sullivan's buggy, and had he been properly equipped he would have sent some hot lead in pursuit of them. Men guilty of such conduct on the public highway ought to be severely punished.

State News.

Corn, alfalfa and clover pastures will lay fat on pigs about as fast as anything else that grows.

If the hogs squeal, find out why. Comfortable hogs never squeal. There is no money in squeals.

A number of farmers in Clark county, are engaging their heifers at 6 cents for July and August delivery.

Strawberries in Fayette county, are particularly heavy in bloom and the yield is expected to be a heavy one.

Ashes are valuable as bone producers for hogs. Always empty the ashes of either coal or wood in the hog lot.

John C. Trimble, Montgomery county, sold to James S. Craig, of Bath county, Ky., forty 550 pound steers at 8 cents.

Robert Forsythe, of Mercer county, had 16 ewes to drop 36 lambs this spring. One of the ewes is the mother of four lambs.

The Kentucky Livestock Sanitary Board has issued a circular in which it advises the marketing for slaughter of all sheep affected with foot rot.

Marion county farmers say that there is such a scarcity of cattle that there will not be sufficient cattle to consume the grass on thier farms.

General Manager Abram Renick of the American Shorthorn Breeders Association feels that there never was a better prospect for those who have pinned their faith to shorthorns.

Dr. E. R. Woodward, of Versailles, has sold this season about $10,000 worth of Percheron mares. On account of the high price of mules and scarcity of breeding mares, the demand has been very strong.

Some lambs have been sold in Montgomery county, at 6½ and 7 cents a pound but the majority of the crop is still unsold. Lambs are looking extra good and early lambs will make excellent weight all over the county especially if going late.

Predicts More Calamities.

In raising brooder chicks the important thing to do at first is to keep them warm and dry until they are about a week old. Keep the brooder at from 95 to 100 degrees for the first three days, and after that it may run gradually lower. As the chicks develop in size they begin to huddle closer together, and their own animal heat will assist in keeping them warm under cover.

Where the fireless brooder is used cloth covers for the chicks to crawl under are essential. If baby chicks can keep their backs warm and the outside cold is excluded they will do well with comparatively little artificial heat. A heated rock or a jug of hot water wraped in cloth inside the brooder will furnish all the necessary heat.

When your chicks are removed from the incubator do not feed them anything for the first thirtysix hours, as the absorbed yolk of the egg furnishes them food for this time. To feed at an early age means bringing on bowel trouble and in many cases death.

When the brooder chicks are about a week older they must be furnished a rather large run, which is to be as dry as can be. Dampness will surely bring on disease and death. Little chicks, like all young animals, need space for exercise to strengthen their growing muscles and organs. If they do not have a large space for running and scratching they become soft and less resistant to disease. If possible place the run where the sun will shine on it all the time. Dry conditions, exercise and sunlight are as important factors as feed.

You should never expect to get something for nothing. Like beget like, and if you do not have the good qualities in your parent stock you cannot possibly expect to get well bred birds. The only way to get chicks that will be uniform and show the marks of good breeding is to have the parent stock that has been well bred. The foundation stock of even a small plant should be the very best obtainable. If your means are too limited to buy the best fowls you can do the the next thing, buy eggs from reliable breeders who already have good foundation stock. If you start right you will secure year after year birds that will show their breeding and will be a source of pleasure and profit to you.

The human pulse has rather a wide range, but the general average may be put about as follows: At birth 140; at two years, 100; at from sixteen to nineteen years, 80; at manhood 75; old age, 60. There are, however, great variations consistent with health. Napoleon's pulse is said to have been only forty four in the minute. A case is also related of a healthy man of eighty seven whose pulse was seldom over thirty during the last two years of his life and sometimes not more than twenty-eight. Another man of eighty-seven years of age enjoyed good health and spirits with a pulse of twenty-nine, and there is also on record the curious instance of a man whose pulse in health was never more than forty-five, and, to be consistent in his inconsistency, when he had fever his pulse fell to forty instead of rising, as is usual.

The real farmer is thus described by T. A. Grevens, of Nebraska: "In my estimation, the man who simply raises corn and wheat and hay to haul to market is not a farmer. But rather the man who raises a sufficient diversity of crops best suited to his locality to furnish a rotation and maintain the productivity of the soil and who does not sell these as a raw material, but feeds them on the farm to different kinds of stock that he has raised himself, is entitled to the honor of being called a farmer—yes, a good farmer."

Gluten feeds are not to be colored hereafter. They will, therefore, no longer show the bright orange color to which we are accustomed, but a rather dull, dirty yellow. This will in no way lessen their value; nor did the color injure.

Dissatisfaction.

Cattle that jump the fence cause trouple for themselves and others.

There are people of the same brand.

The breachy cattle evidently think the grass is greener in the next pasture.

The people have a like attitude of mind. The desirable is always somewhere else or at some distant time.

Their favorite music is "Far Far Away," "The Good Old Times" or "The Sweet By and By".

Any other time but now; anyother plne but here.

The grass is always greener in the next pasture.

These are the folks who think the lot of others is better than their own.

They are filled with envy, repining and discontent.

There are two kinds of discontent, one helpful and the other hurtful.

Helpful discontent is the kind that spurs us on to improve ourselves and our conditions.

Hurtful discontent is the kind that makes us run away from both.

This is the discontent of the folks that resemble breachy stock.

I wonder if these people ever reflect that any place they reach is here, just as any time that they attain is now.

We cannot run away from the now and here. It is ever with us.

When we get into the next pasture we find the grass is not greener. It was only the distance that made it appear so.

The romance, true enchantment, true opportunity, are right at home. We have merely overlooked them, or they have grown so common that we did not appreciate them at their real worth.

There is a story of a man who searched all about the earth for a treasure and, returning home, found it in his own dooryard.

Sometimes a change of eivronment is necessary, but usually the distant alluring prospect is simply a mirage that dissappers as we approach.

If the time and energy used in making changes were expended at home they would achieve success.

If we would win we must win here and now.

Several new strains of winter and spring wheat on the experiment plots of the college of agriculture of the University of Wiscousin have heads well filled with heavy berries, borne on straw that stands up well, promising large yields. Selected heads of ten of the most promising strains have been reserved for further breeding in accordance with the practice of the college, and selections will later be made of the best heads of new strains of spring wheat.

Pneumonia is particularly a disease of city life and crowded living. With our present knowledge the prospects are hopeful for the control of pneumonia in the future through prevention. This is of special importance to the individual. The avoidance of pneumonia is largely a question of personal precautions that prevent the development of the disease by lessening the predisposition to it.

Some orchardists have been successful in protecting their trees by smearing the trunks near the ground with mixtures which are distasteful to rabbits. For this purpose whitewash, a mixture of glue and copperas, decoction of quassia chips and blood or grease, have been used. Mechanical protection by means of some wrapping is more pemanent and effective than any form of wash.

A yield of 12 tons of silage may easily be obtained from one acre of corn. At this rate, 30 pounds of silage as a daily ration, one acre of corn will furnish four cows with silage for 200 days.

From eight to ten thousand people are killed in one way or another on our railroads every year, and a very large portion of these accidents is due to trespassing on the tracks.

Many do first-rate with poultry till it comes to selling the stock, and then make a miserble failure. Give fully as much care to marketing as to any other part of the work.

SUCCESS ON THE SOIL.

There came to the writer the other day the interesting account of two brothers, one of whom had fitted himself for the law and the other for medical career. After a short period of practice the doctor concluded that the application of a fair amount of brains and the exercise of a certain amount of faith would give him larger returns if devoted to agriculture, so he quit the pill business and took up farming. His brother, the lawyer, made sport of his change, saying that any old lubber could succeed at farming. The years passed. In the interval the one who changed to farming had become independently wealthy, has traveled all over his own country and made numerous trips to Europe. The lawyer, who stuck to his profession, is just barely making a living and today, when it is too late, realizes that he missed it by not doing as his brother did, as good, and in many respects better than elsewhere in the State. However, I will give a few facts that I believe will be of assistance.

It would surprise you to know of the great good that is being done by Chamberlain's Tablets. Darius Downey, of Newberg Junction, N. S., writes, "My wife has been using Chamberlain's Tablets and finds them very effectual and doing her lots of good." If you have any trouble with your stomach or bowels give them a trial. SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water seat between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to it yet the time and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Fire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,
H. G. COLLINS,
Erlanger, Ky.

The Young Clydesdale Stallion,

THE KNIGHT,

Recorded Vol. 17 and 33, His Scottish and American Stud Book numbers (16110) (16143)

THE KNIGHT is a dark brown with gray hairs, blaze face, four white legs, white spot on belly; foaled April 27, 1908, bred by James S. Stenhouse, Fod Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Leitch & Sons, Lafayette, Ill. in the fall of 1911. He was sired by Baronson (10881); 1st dam Princess of Fod the 1st, (17117) by Mains of Aries (10379); 2d dam Lady Madge (14553) by Gallant Poteach (8688); 3d dam Lady Darnly (7272) by Darnly (222).

This horse is a low set, thick well built horse, over 16 hands high, and weighs 1670 lbs. He stands on the best of feet and legs with a splenidid top; he also has rare good action.

This horse was a prize winner last fall at the Indiana and Illinois State Fairs—word to the wise. Remember that the Clydesdale is the coming popular horse for the American farmer, the result of experience and education.

I will give a cash prize of $15.00 for the best weanling colt regardless of sex, sired by The Knight and to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home in the fall of 1913.

This horse will be allowed to serve a number of good mares at the nominal sum of $15.00 to insure a lye foal, money due when the fact is known or mare parted with. He can be seen at all times at the place of Wm. Ackmyer, one mile west of Bullitsville on the Bullitsville & Dry Creek pike.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

For particulars address
HARRY ACKMYER,
Burlington, Ky.

MAJIC J.

is a roan horse, 16 hands high, weight 1500 pounds, is a son of the great Jay Bird, dam, Magie Wilkes, has been handled very little for speed, and showed a mile in 2:30, has proven himself a breeder of good general purpose horses. Fee $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Jim Wilkes

is a mahogony bay; 15½ hands high, weight 1100 pounds, sired by Threikeld's Jim Wilks, dam Conner's Almont. This horse has proven himself a good breeder of both size and speed. Season fee $15.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

THE FINE JACK, MIKE.

The fine Jack has proven himself a great breeder, many of his colts selling from $750.00 to $1000.00 at weaning time. Mike is a black Jack, 15 hands high, heavy bone, large head and ear, sired by Mike 46 hand jack, first dam Bourbon Belle by Bourbon Chief. Season fee $10.00 to insure a colt to stand and suck. This stock will be at the service of the public at Dr. W. J. Tanner's barn in Florence, Ky., on the Burlington pike. Season money due when colt is foaled, mare sold, traded or transferred to other stock without permission, owner will be taken to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur. Life privilege on colts, until seasons money is paid. For further information address

Don DeGozee

The Belgian Draft Horse, foaled in 1908, will make the present season Monday and Tuesday of each week, after April 21st, at W. J. Rice's stable, Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at E. J. Aylor's stable, one and one-half miles from Hebron, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.

Description and Pedigree.

Don DeGozee, despite his great size and weight, is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He has as light action as a stallion of much smaller type, and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad, flat foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than another draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle, kind workers.

Don DeGozee's dam, Della Wire, brown mare, the greift draft show mare of Campbell county, Ky., sired by Bayard DeGozee No. 2188, whose Belgian Stud Book number is 21670, bred by Mr. Bailleux E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (312), he by Brilliant (709), out of Coatte (703), dam Catherine DeGozee (21083), she by Lion (766) out of Marie (2121).

Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

The August Primary.

Inside of the next thirty days the nominating papers of Democratic, Republican and Progressive candidates seeking preferment of their respective parties at the primary election to be held Saturday, August 2d, will be fluttering in every precinct, town, city, county and district of Kentucky, and then will the voters of this grand old commonwealth be called upon to declare themselves as they never have before.

The primary election law says that no candidate can get his name upon the ballot of his party until he has filed his petition, stating the office for which he is a candidate, his name, age, postoffice address, political affiliations and all other legal qualifications, and pledging himself if nominated, not to withdraw, and, if elected, to qualify for the office.

Along with his petition each candidate must file a nominating petition, signed by electors of his city, county or district, each of whom must declare intention to support the candidate for whom they sign, and none of whom shall sign any other such paper for another seeking the same office. In addition to his name each signer must give the location of his residence—street number if it be in a city—and the date of signing.

No person can sign the nominating petition of any candidate in any political party other than that of which the signer is a member; that is to say, any man who is registered as a Progressive or who is known to have voted as a Progressive, cannot sign the petition of a Republican or a Democrat, or vice versa.

Under these conditions and with candidates for the various county and legislative officers becoming as thick as midsummer flies about a headless barrel of sorghum, it is easy to see that Mr. Influential Voter is going to be some pestered. It will be a case of "Good morning, Jim, I've just dropped in to ask you to put your name to Sim Simpkins nominating papers for magistrate in the First district." "Sorry, Bill, but I signed for John Johnson yesterday."

In about 70 cases out of every 100 this will produce an argument on the merits of the prospective candidates, and in the other 30, perhaps a rather frigid "good day," with the emphasis on the good.

For all offices to be voted for by the electors of one county or of a city district or subdivision therein, the date upon which the circulation of nominating papers may begin this year is May 4th, and they cannot be circulated longer than 60 days and must be filed with the county clerk of the county in which they were circulated not later than July 3d. The number of signatures required to such nominating petitions is at least 3 per cent and not more than 10 per cent of the total vote of the party of the candidate in the city, county or district in which he seeks to be elected.

The basis of percentage in estimating the number of signatures required shall be the highest vote of any candidate of the party for elector at the last election for president.

For all offices to be voted for by the electors of more than one county which includes United States Senator, State senator and members of the legislature in districts containing two or more counties, the date upon which the circulation of papers may begin is April 24, and the last date upon which they may be filed with the Secretary of State is June 23, that is, 40 days prior to the primary election, and the number of signers required to the papers of candidates for state senator and representative is not less than two per cent nor more than 10 per cent of the vote of the party in each of at least one-half of the counties in such district, to be determined in the same manner as for county offices.

Candidates for county offices can secure names from any precinct they wish, or all from one precinct, but the names from each precinct must not be mixed in other words, the names from each precinct must appear on separate sheets, with the name of the precinct at the top of the sheet.

Candidates for U. S. senatorial nominations are required to have not less than two per cent and not more than 10 per cent of the vote of their respective parties in at least 10 counties in the state.

Candidate for office should be certain to secure over three per cent of their party vote in the last presidential election. Otherwise, their petitions will be thrown out. More than 10 per cent is equally as fatal as less than three per cent.—Glasgow Times.

CARE OF HOUSE PLANTS.

If any of the house plants become spindly, unthrifty and hidebound, as it were, much may be done in the way of renovating them by pruning them back rather heavily. They may be further helped by fertilizing with manure water, ammonia water or with commercially prepared plant food, which may be got at the drug store. Sometimes a cause of unthriftiness with plants that have been a long time in the pots is that the roots have so completely filled the space they have little room in which to develop. In such cases it is well to repot and before resetting cut away a considerable portion of the roots. One of the secrets of success connected with the care of plants in greenhouses is the continuous and heavy pruning given them to produce rankness and thriftiness in plant growth and size of blossoms.

Your Order is Solicited.

The custom of docking horses is centuries old and has had hundreds of thousands of victims. Hideous and unsymmetrical as the result has been, the cruelty was begun at the behest of fashion, just as were the hoop skirt, the powdered wig, the deforming bustle, the hobble and the present style of hat and other monstrosities.

Some of these hideous efforts at deformity in the evolution of fashion have gone into the discard and now it is reported that Dame Fashion has issued her fiat that the appendage which is the most beautiful adornment to one of man's most faithful friends must no longer fall under the knife, and that there shall be no more tailless horses, particularly those that are used to draw the elegant equipages of society dames or in the equerry of gallant gentry.—Boston Globe.

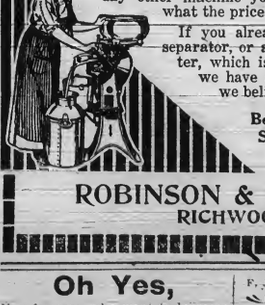
"MAIL ORDER" Cream Separators



When you buy a cream separator you want the best machine you can get for the money, don't you?

Well, then, just listen to this proposition:

Before you order a "mail order" separator write to the concern and tell them that you want to try their machine out against a De Laval, with the privilege of sending their machine back if you decide that the De Laval is better worth what we ask you for it than their machine is worth what they ask.

That's absolutely fair, isn't it?

We'll be glad to furnish you a De Laval for such a trial any time you like and let you be the judge.

We are glad to make this offer because we know that the De Laval will give you better service and cost you less in the long run than any other machine you can buy, no matter what the price.

If you already have a mail order separator, or any other for that matter, which isn't giving satisfaction, we have an exchange offer that we believe will interest you.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Baker, of LaGrange, are here on a visit to her parents Mr. and Mrs. Thos. E. Curlev.

For Sale—Sewing machine and a lot of nice household articles, cheap. Call on Mrs. Sara Glinn, Walton, Ky.

M. A. Haven of Sanders, spent part of the past week here with his father Jas. Haven and sister Mrs. Ora Sayers.

Miss Mayme Northcutt, one of our pretty and popular young ladies, spent part of last week with friends at Erlanger.

Mrs. Henry Holloway, of Point Pleasant, W. Va., spent the past week here with her father, A. J. Plunkett, and other relatives.

W. B. Johnson spent part of last week at Glencoe, and while there bought a fine horse from Emery Ellis for service on his farm here.

Chas. Roberts, of St. Louis, Mo., arrived here last week on a visit to relatives and friends after an absence of several years.

A. J. Thomas of Richwood, who has been on the sick list for some time, was able to visit friends here Tuesday, and is much improved.

Mrs. Geo. W. Baker of Fort Thomas, Campbell county, arrived here the first of the week on a visit to relatives and friends here and at her old home at Big Bone Springs.

Robt. W. Jones has bought a fine Studebaker automobile at a cost of $1,250, and while in Cincinnati last week drove the car out from that place. Mr. Jones is agent for the Studebaker machines.

Mrs. E. W. Muirheid, of near Crittenden, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. J. W. Harris, of Bradentown, Fla., is expected home May 1st, after spending several months in Southern Florida, enjoying the tropical fruits, beautiful sunshine, and delightful sea breezes.

W. T. Loomis, of Kenton county, was here Saturday on business. He is spending most of his time at Lexington in arranging the settlement of the affairs of the Burley Tobacco Company, and it will be about next November before the matter is completed.

Ross Chapman of near Verona, was here Saturday, and accompanied by Dr. B. K. Memefee went to Covington to enter a hospital for special treatment for an abcessed bone in his left thigh from which he has been suffering severely for some time.

Bruce Dudgeon has announced that he intends going out of business with his daily market, giving as a reason the high prices of meats and the difficulty of getting a supply so as to make a profitable business. He was a good merchant and his retiring from business is regretted by all of our citizens.

See John Fink, Walton, Ky., for your spring painting and paper hanging. A full line of uptodate wall paper now on hand; can be seen at my residence or will gladly call and submit estimate on your work. First class work at very reasonable prices.

JOHN FINK,
April 17-4t. Walton, Ky.

Judge J. G. Tomlin and Jno. L. Vest were in Newport this week arranging for the trial of the case of Mrs. M. T. Wilson against Wm. Littrell for $2,000 damages alleged to have been sustained by Mrs. Wilson by the shooting and killing of her husband by William Littrell near Verona about a year ago. The case will be called for trial in the Campbell Circuit Court at Newport on Friday.

Walton Lodge, F. and A. M., will have a special attraction at the regular meeting next Friday night, May 2d, when Bro. B. W. Stallard, of Cincinnati, will by special invitation make an address on "The Principles of Masonry." Bro. Stallard is an entertaining speaker and his address will be one of a most pleasing nature. The Fellowcraft degree will also be conferred. All of the members are expected to be present, and a cordial invitation is extended to all of the brethren to attend.

Jas. W. Chambers and Wm. W. Garner of Winchester, were visitors here Tuesday making the trip from Cincinnati to Winchester in an automobile they had bought there. Mr. Chambers was born and reared at Warsaw, and his grandfather, Dr. A. B. Chambers represented this district in the State Senate during the civil war, and is related to some of the prominent people of the country. Mr. Chambers recently sold his controlling interest in the telephone lines at Winchester and Maysville, and is now interested in Alabama lands of which he speaks most encouragingly.

The students of the Walton High school covered themselves with glory at the school tournament at Dry Ridge, last week, winning many prizes in the contests and much merited praise. There was a very large attendance from Walton, and the affair was a great success. The contests were very satisfactory to Walton as in the departments in which the school took part it lead its nearest competitor by 27 points the total count being Walton 132, Dry Ridge 105. The points made in athletics put Dry Ridge in the lead, but in this Walton took no part because of the inclement weather.

One share of the capital stock of the Equitable Bank and Trust Company, belonging to the estate of Mrs. Anna Glinn, was sold last Wednesday at public auction so as to settle the decendent's estate, Chas. Strother, attorney for the administrator, crying the sale at the door of the Walton Bank and Trust Co. There were several bidders. The first bid was $125 and it was finally sold to D. E. Dudley at $130. The bank has been in operation five years and in that time twenty-seven per cent in dividends have been paid, being semi-annual dividends of three per cent each. The book value of the stock is $118.

Johnson Family Reunion.

The sixth annual reunion of the T. A. Johnson family was held at the hospitable home of Mrs. Maranda Cottons, three miles northwest from Verona, April 25, 1913, this being Mrs. Cotton's 60th birthday. The day was ideal for the occasion and as the morning sun rose and kissed the sparkling dew drops on the lawn of the beautiful Cotton homestead, a lone but sunny faced widow stood on the piazza to welcome eight sisters and their families to her hospitable home. And while Mr. Cotton, a man of many friends, who lying in the silent tomb, yet two sons that are following in the footsteps of their father, were present, to see that all went well. Thirty-five of the immediate family arrived before noon with baskets filled with delicacies to suit the most fastidious appetite. The children made the premises ring with their gleeful noise while their mother thoughts ran back to an old cottage home that stood on the brow of the hill and the many things that it used to take to make up the one happy home. And well does the writer of this article remember some of these never to be forgotten scenes of the jestful father and that serious mother.

In the afternoon different games of croquet were indulged in until the hour of departure arrived, when all began to wend their way homeward, regretting very much that their youngest sister, Mrs. G. B. Powers, was not able to attend on account of serious illness.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Elizabeth Arnold's on the Pollitt farm near Crittenden, August 25, 1914. G. B. P.

Glasgow.—A strange disease has broken out among the cattle in this county and a number of them have died. The disease is prevalent mostly among the milk cows. They become suddenly ill and a few hours are paralyzed and unable to move their tongues and eyes. Veterinarians have saved a number of them by pumping oxygen into the udder. In a short time the process enables them to stand on their feet and a few hours later they seem perfectly well. Just what the disease is or what causes it is unknown.

Miss Ella Taliaferro closed her school of Expression here last Saturday evening with a very interesting Dramatic Recital. The entertainment furnished by the class, showed hard and capable work on their part and excellent instruction on the part of Miss Taliaferro. Mrs. J. J. Garrison and her music class assisted with beautiful selections of classical compositions.

The only way to build good roads is to have the people in each locality look after their own roads. No nation wide highway will ever accomplish the purpose, unless it is made up of units, county by county. The strip of road between the barn and the railroad station is the most expensive transportation the farmer has to endure, and yet there is hardly a farmer but who thinks that he could go to the legislature and run the railroads.

PETERSBURG.

Gardens looking nice.

The work of grading the wharf began last week.

Farmers are busy planting their corn and melon crops.

Little Bennie Long is very low and his recovery is doubtful.

Richard McWethy is on the mend, we are glad to report.

Mrs. J. W. Berkshire has been quite indisposed for the past week.

Miss Lena Sparks left Saturday for Indianapolis, to visit her aunt.

John Jarrell is still improving. We hope to report him entirely well soon.

R. E. Gordon purchased George Ruth's building on the corner he now occupies for $600.

W. S. Acra and daughter, Mrs. Essie Burns, of Bullittsville, were guests of Stephen Burns, Saturday.

E. A. Stott has several thousand strawberry, raspberry and blackberry plants put out on his farm below town, known as the McClellen place.

Lawrence Chambers will devote his entire time to plowing lots, gardens, hauling freight and trans ferring persons to any place in the county they wish to go.

Bill Nick Alloway sold his house and lot to Harry McWethy for $300. Mr. Alloway has a position in a distillery in Penn., and will leave for their new home on the 26th.

C. H. Acra begun this Monday, to clean off cemetery lots and fill sunken graves, and those wishing their lots taken care of can have them attended to by seeing or sending him an order.

Boys, we have a lot of fine gentlemen before us as candidates for county offices, but be sure you pick a true Wilson, Marshall and Bryan progressive man. Lets keep old Democracy pure. I have been a voter since 1868, and have found democracy all wool and a yard wide.

The local Odd-Fellow's lodge has purchased of W. A. and Mrs. Nannie Gaines the corner property now occupied by J. W. Berkshire and Son's store. The lodge has also purchased of the distillery company the large brick building known as warehouse No. 2, and will use the material for re-roofing a three story building on the lot they purchased. It will be a modern building with a commodious hall in the third story to be used for lodge purposes. The building will add considerably to the appearance of the town and will be a credit to the lodge.

WORDS OF THANKS to the Revs. D. H. Starns, Kirtley Johnson, and Wm. McMilan, to Dr. J. L. Price, to the undertakers, Messrs. S. H. Crutcher and O. Vallandingham, to the agents and officers and operators of the Q. & C. Railroad Co., and of the Citizens Telephone Co., to each of the good neighbors and friends in Grant county, and to each of the neighbors, friends and relatives in Boone county who were so kind and thoughtful at the good old Big Bone Baptist church and at the grave sides, we hereby tender this expression of our deep appreciation of the many courtesies shown us during the sad hours attending the sickness, death and burial of our daughter and sister, Mary Belle Adams, and wife and mother, Nancy Frances (Clements) Adams.

Robert Adams and Family.
May 1st, 1913.

JUDGE GEORGE E. DOWNEY

Nominated For Comptroller of U. S. Treasury.

The many friends of Hon. Geo. E. Downey, of Aurora, Judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit of Indiana, were delighted to learn on Monday evening that President Wilson had that day sent his name to the U. S. Senate to be controller of the treasury to succeed Robert J. Tracewell, of Corydon, who has served in that capacity for the past 16 years.

The appointment of Mr. Downey was made on the recommendation of Senators Kern and Shively, Representative Dixon and many other notable Indiana Democrats. Senator Works, of California, who also stands near to the President, added his personal influence. The position carries with it a salary of $6,000 and necessitates his presence in the national capital. The nomination will probably be confirmed by the Senate today, Thursday, in which event Mr. Downey will telegraph his resignation as Judge to Governor Ralston, and with Mrs. Downey depart for Washington the latter part of the week to select a home. He will, however, retain his legal residence here among the friends to whom he has endeared himself personally and politically.

Judge Downey entered upon his second term in his present official capacity Oct. 22, 1909. It will become the duty of the Governor to appoint his successor to serve out the unexpired term, or until Oct. 22, 1915. As the Ohio county court will convene on the first Monday in May—next Monday, quick action will have to be taken.

It is understood there are several applicants for the vacancy, all attorneys of experience and gentlemen of high character and integrity, any of whom would wear the judicial ermine with becoming dignity.—Lawrenceburg Register.

THE CALIFORNIA SIDE.

Why the American Householder Would Be Rid of the Japanese.

(New York Times.)

The objection to the Japanese invasion of California is that the first skirmish will eventually be a world-wide race war between the yellow and the white races. If you had lived in California for any length of time you would be in a position to feel the throttling hand in every line of endeavor and the gradual elbowing of the masses into the most secluded corners of the state. If you were a family man and your little daughter of five or six years old were obliged to go to a public school and sit 300 days in the year at a desk with a Jap 22 years old in front of her and a Jap 25 years old back of her, would you like it? If you owned a house which you had bought for the purpose of becoming your home and had paid for it out of your hard-earned money, would it appeal to you to find some bright morning that 20 Jap families occupied the house next door and intended staying there? Naturally, you would sell your house, and the buyer would be a Jap. Then within a few months your entire neighborhood would be infected and real estate value would decline as a result about 50 per cent to 75 per cent in valuation. If you owned a fruit ranch in the northern part of the state and were paying $1.50 a day to white labor, should a Jap—a better laborer to be sure—offer to do the work for less than half the amount, what would you do? Do those who look upon California's attitude as arrogant and impulsive realize what Californians have endured for the last 20 years?

Some of the greatest industries of the state are virtually controlled by the Japs, who live on practically nothing, hoard their money, and send it back to Japan, or reinvest it in lands adjoining, for the purpose of establishing Japanese colony and an eventual foothold for the imperial Government.

A few years ago we had an old faithful Japanese servant. He had been with us 20 years or more, and finally decided to go back to Japan and die. After he left, while we were cleaning out his room, the maid found an old box securely locked and thrust in an obscure corner of the room, evidently with the idea of having it hidden. Inspection proved the box to contain a series of maps outlining every seaport and every indentation on the California water front from the northern boundary down to San Diego. For his Emperor!

Those who think California rash think it over.

Six Legged Lamb.

Carlisle, May 5.—The freak lamb, which was born on the farm of Wm. Roberts, near here, with six legs, was sold to Ed Lester, of Missouri, and will be shipped by Mr. Lester to his home there at once. The lamb is perfect in every way except it has the two extra legs. The freak mule colt owned by H. N. Rankin and others now two weeks old and having only three legs, is pronounced one of the greatest curiosities ever seen here. It runs and plays about as if it had its four legs. It was born with only one fore leg.

LAST PILGRIMAGE OF CONFEDERATES

Reunion This Month at Chattanooga Will Have a Sentimeutal Interest all Its Own.

Perhaps the last pilgrimage they will make as a body to the famous battle grounds of Lookout Mountain, Chickamauga and Mission Ridge, will be the 1913 Reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, May 27-29. The railroads of the Southeastern Passenger Association have made a thirty day rate of a cent a mile. The War Department has loaned the requisite number of tents and cots in order that Chattanooga may suitably care for the 15,000 Veterans who are expected to attend, and who will be lodged and fed free of all cost.

The United Sons of Veterans will hold their reunion at the same place, May 27-29. They will bring with them the usual bevy of beautiful Southern women, as sponsors, maids of honor and chaperones, all of whom will be lavishly entertained by the citizens of Chattanooga.

Enthusiasm and interest never ran so high in the South over the annual reunion of the battle scarred veterans whose spectacular parade at Chattanooga is expected to be viewed by over one hundred thousand visitors in that city of like population.

MANY HORSES SICK.

"Pink Eye" and "Black Tongue" Prevalent Near Lancaster

Lancaster, May 5.—Horses thruout this section are suffering from various maladies, some being afflicted with what is known as the "pink-eye," others with a very serious ailment called the "black tongue disease," and still others with a violent form of distemper. Many farmers and owners of equines are having their animals vaccinated against the last named affliction. Some of the veterinarians diagnose the supposed "black tongue" disease as a very severe attack of distemper that generally terminates fatally; they state that the malady results from heavy colds contracted by driving the animals until they are overheated.

CONFEDERATE PENSION ACT

Held Constitutional By Judge Stout, of the Franklin Circuit Court.

Frankfort, May 3.—Judge Robert Stout, of the Franklin Circuit Court, today handed down an opinion in the case of James Harp against State Auditor H. M. Bosworth upholding the constitutionality of the Confederate pension act. An appeal was granted and will be immediately prepared and taken before the court of appeals. Jas. Harp was granted a writ of mandamus requiring the State Auditor to issue warrants for the February pensions.

For House Cleaning.

There is nothing better, or more effective for the destruction of household insects than hot alum water. Put two pounds of alum in three or four quarts of water and let remain over night so that the alum will be all dissolved; or you may use boiling water, pouring it over the alum if you are in a hurry, stirring until it melts. Then apply boiling hot, with a brush, or swab made of anything handy; every joint, crack or opening in the closets where water bugs ants, cockroaches intrude. In the bedroom, apply to every place about the bedstead, floors cracks, about the window frames, mantlepiece, and doors, wherever a bug can conceal itself or lay an egg, and you will find a great scarcity of the pests right shortly afterwards. Do this every few days for a while, as newly hatched eggs will keep up the supply as long as there are any bugs to lay the eggs, or eggs to hatch. The solution should be kept boiling hot while applying. This should not be used where there is varnish or paint to be damaged, but it can be used in all openings if applied with an oil can by dropping the solution with the tube or spout.

Another excellent remedy is varnish—a good coat spread over the openings will hermetically seal the hiding places. The only way to get rid of such things is to clean thoroughly and fill all hiding and nesting places with some sort of exterminator. Strong carbolic acid solution is good for floor cracks, and openings, or woodwork, and this can be applied with a spouted vessel, or a syringe used without the spray.

Before putting away woolens, furs, feathers or hair goods, see that there are no eggs already deposited. Put the articles away in wrappings of paper into which no moth can penetrate, and put in the folds a few lumps of camphor. A covering of strong close-even muslin is excellent for this purpose.

Green cut bone is the finest kind of a meat food that can be had in the winter. It is palatable and much relished by the birds, contains from 11 to 16 per cent of protein and costs about one-third as much as beef scrap. It should always be fed in limited quantities; about one pound to thirty hens is the right amount when fed in addition to beef scrap.

CHICKENS FOR A FARM

American Breeds Meet Demand for General Purpose Fowl.

Best Recommendation for Plymouth Rock Is Excellent Growth of Chicks, In Which Quality They Are Without Superior.

(By E. O. EBE.)

The American breeds of chickens have been made by the mixing of certain types. They have been formed to meet the demand for a general purpose fowl and they fulfill this demand better than any other breed.

These breeds are more variable in traits than breeds with more years of uniform ancestry to their credit. If strict selection is not maintained the American varieties are inclined to vary and revert to ancestral types.

The barred variety of the Plymouth Rocks is the original Plymouth Rock, and is, perhaps, all things considered, the most popular breed in this country at the present time.

Its origin is commonly given as a cross between the Black Java and the American Dominique. Besides the Java other Asiatic blood has probably been used in making the breed.

The Plymouth Rock is more like the Asiatic than like the European chicken. It approaches in size and fattening qualities the Cochin or Brahma, but has lost the excessive feathering, slowness of growth and general clumsiness of those breeds.

The best recommendation for the Plymouth Rock on the farm is the excellent growth made by the young chickens. In this quality they have no superior. The Plymouth Rock pullets are good layers, but as yearling hens are prone to turn into fat rather than eggs.

Another objection to the barred variety is the difficulty in keeping the breed true to the standard type. The pure-bred type birds are required to have even and distinct bars of the same shade in male and female.

These are difficult points to maintain, and resort is often made to double mating or the keeping of two breeding pens, one to produce cockerels and the other pullets.

The white and buff Plymouth Rocks are later products than the barred variety. Much of what has been said will apply to them also. The following differences might be noted:

The white variety is free from the color objection of the barred type, but the objection to the fattening tendency applies to hens of this variety perhaps more forcibly than to the barred.

Buff Plymouth Rocks will probably average smaller than the other varieties of the breed. Although a solid-colored bird, they like all buff breeds, except the buff Cochins, will be found difficult to breed to one color, owing to the tendency to possess black or white in the wings and tail.

GIVE THE VEGETABLES ROOM

Much Garden Truck Has Been Ruined by Not Thinning Out at Proper Time—Nerve Needed.

Do not be afraid to thin out your plants—they must not be crowded. Probably more garden stuff has been ruined for want of being thinned at the proper time than by any other cause.

However that may be, one of the most puzzling things for the beginner to find out is whether any particular vegetable should be thinned or transplanted, and how far apart the plants should stand afterward.

He will get some help from the catalogues as to the distances, but whether he should transplant or thin is the kind of thing that is not in the book.

It requires a great deal of nerve to pull up and destroy the unnecessary seedling—more nerve than the amateur possesses. They say that a person never becomes a good gardener until he steels his nerve to this ruthless sacrifice.

A vegetable must have plenty of room to develop its best size and flavor, and one can take no pride in small commonplace vegetables.

Beware of Drafts.

Whatever your scheme of ventilation in the poultry-house, let no drafts reach the roosts.

Meat Food Necessary.

All laying and growing chickens must have some kind of meat food in order to do their best.

TRAIN YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS RIGHT

Don't Let Them Waste Time on Useless Studies.

WHAT CAN YOU EXPECT?

A Boy Trained For a Profession Is Not Apt to Be Contented or Successful as a Farmer—Yet Agriculture Is Quite as Important as the Classics or the "Learned" Professions.

Could you expect to rear a fine trotting horse or a good steady farm animal if you sent the beast in its early youth to a man who trained a stableful of fancy saddle stock? Can you expect your boy to go through the ordinary rural high school and have him "stay hitched" on the farm? These propositions are identical. The average county high school holds up ideals and teaches topics that will necessarily lead the boy to sigh for a city career in the learned professions, so called.

Are you and I to blame? Of course we are. It is only necessary for the parent, the taxpayers, the everyday folks who hold the purse strings to say: "Here, we have had enough of an education that is so old that it is musty—an education that is all books. Give our children an education that fits them for life here at home."

This new education that will fit people for life is coming, but it is coming too slowly in the country. Our very best young blood is being siphoned out of the country and into the city. The cities do not need this fine new blood; the country does.

It is quite easy to say that the cry is rising, "Back to the farm." But it is not at all easy for the city man to go—in fact, the city man, the man bred and born in a big city, can hardly go back to the soil with any degree of certainty that he will succeed. He lacks the technical part of farm work that comes through daily contact with live, growing things, that contact which the country boy has had since the day he first began to notice things.

If these statements seem at all too strong simply pick up the Kentucky Educational Directory of 1912. Turn to the list of county high schools on page 34 and run through them. Out of about 180 approved high schools 114 are classical or English high schools and only thirty-six are scientific high schools.

Just so long as our country boys are pushed through schools that are classical in their tendencies just so long will our rural population drift cityward, for their education has developed them most carefully for that life.

IF YOUR BOY IS TO FARM TRAIN HIM FOR A FARMER.

IF YOUR BOY IS TO BE A PROFESSIONAL MAN TRAIN HIM IN THAT DIRECTION.

THIS IS 1913.

Would you plant and harvest as in 1850?

Would you light your house as in 1850?

Would you cook over the fire as in 1850?

Would you use a "muzzle loader" as in 1850?

Would you breed razorbacks as in 1850?

If everything on your farm and in your home bears the mark of 1913 why will you insist upon a school that was planned in 1850?

If your children are to live and earn a living in 1913 would it not be better to give them a 1913 education?

BY ALL MEANS.

Superintendent Barker has the right idea. He proposes to establish an agricultural course in the West Liberty high school. That should have been done at the outset. Wonder if there be any who are so shortsighted as to oppose? We hope not. An awful howl would be raised if some one should propose to take history, grammar or civics out of the curriculum. Agriculture is just as important as either of these.—Editorial Licking Valley Courier.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,

H. G. COLLINS, Erlanger, Ky.

MAJIC J.

is a roan horse, 16 hands high, weight 1200 pounds, is a son of the great Jay Bird, dam Magic Wilks, has been handled very little for speed, and showed a mile in 2:30, has proven himself a breeder of good general purpose horses. Fee $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Jim Wilkes

2:17¾

Is a mahogany bay, 15¾ hands high, weight 1200 pounds, sired by Threekell's Jim Wilks, dam Conner's Almont. This horse has proven himself a good breeder of both size and speed. Season fee $15.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

THE FINE JACK, MIKE.

The fine Jack has proven himself a great breeder, many of his mules selling from $700 to $1000 at weaning time. Mike is a black Jack, 15 hands high, heavy bone, large head and ear, sired by Mike a 16 hand jack, first dam Bourbon Belle by Bourbon Chief. Seasons fee $10.00 to insure a colt to stand and suck. This stock will be at the service of the public at Dr. W. J. Tanner's barn in Florence, Ky., on the Burlington pike. Season money due when colt is foaled, mare sold, traded or transferred to other stock without permission, care will be taken to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur. Lien retained on all colts until seasons money is paid. For further information address

The Young Clydesdale Stallion,

THE KNIGHT,

Recorded Vol. 17 and 33.
His Scottish and American Stud Book numbers (16140) (16143)

THE KNIGHT is a dark brown with gray hairs, blaze face, four white legs, white spot on belly; foaled April 27, 1908, bred by James S. Stenhouse, Fod Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Leitch & Sons, Lafayette, Ill. in the fall of 1911. He was sired by Baronson (10981); 1st dam Princess of Fod the 1st, (17117) by Mains of Aries (10379); 2d dam Lady Madge (14553) by Gallant Poteath (8638); 3d dam Lady Darnly (7272) by Darnly (222).

This horse is a low set, thick well built horse, over 16 hands high, and weighs 1670 lbs. He stands on the best of feet and legs with a splendid top; he also has rare good action.

This horse was a prize winner last fall at the Indiana and Illinois State Fairs — word to the wise. Remember that the Clydesdale is the coming popular horse for the American farmer, the result of experience and education.

I will give a cash prize of $15.00 for the best weanling colt regardless of sex, sired by The Knight and to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home in the fall of 1914.

This horse will be allowed to serve a number of good mares at the nominal sum of $15.00 to insure a live foal, money due when the fact is known or mare parted with. He can be seen at all times at the place of Wm. Ackmyer, one mile west of Bullittsville on the Bullittsville & Dry Creek pike.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Don DeGozee

The Belgian Draft Horse, foaled in 1908, will make the present season Monday and Tuesday of each week, after April 21st, at W. J. Rice's stable, Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at E. J. Aylor's stable, one and one-half miles from Hebron, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.

Description and Pedigree.

Don DeGozee, despite his great size and weight, is well balanced throughout, gently proportioned and symmetrically built. He has as light action as a stallion of much smaller type, and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad, flat foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than another draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle, kind workers.

Don DeGozee's dam, Della Wire, brown mare, the great draft show mare of Campbell county, Ky., sired by Bayard DeGozee No. 2188, whose Belgian Stud Book number is 21670. bred by Mr. Bailleux E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (312), he by Brilliant (709), out of Coatte (703), dam Catherine DeGozee (21083), she by Lion (760) out of Marie (2421).

Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

LEARNING AGRICULTURE

Christian County Farmers Are Practically "Going to School" to An Expert Who is Teaching Them.

Hopkinsville.—Christian county is making a new and rather expensive investment this year, but which already shows that it is a wise and most judicious one and promises to yield big dividends. This investment is not one in land nor goods to be sold for a profit, nor in stocks and bonds, on which a certain per cent. is to be paid. But it is in the employment of a trained agriculturist, a man who has studied and experimented with farming in all its branches, from a scientific standpoint, and who has proved by his works that he is entitled to be called an expert, and to teach better methods to those farmers who have cultivated their crops and run their business in a more or less haphazard manner.

This expert has only been in the field now for about a month. Yet he has taken hold of his work with such energy and enthusiasm that he has worked wonders, and by the time crops are harvested in the fall, it is believed that they will show such an improvement in quantity and quality, and the farmers will have learned better and cheaper methods of farming, that will convince the most skeptical of the great good to be thus secured, and that next year and the years to follow, not only will the man be employed, but possibly assistants, and that the work will be enlarged and diversified along many lines.

Like most of the other counties in Kentucky, Christian county is naturally an agricultural county. Now the people have waked to the fact that the best use they can make of their money is to develop their own resources, so instead of turning every effort to trying to locate factories in their midst, these people will this year at least, spend a part of their money educating their own people along this important line.

The movement to this end originated with the Hopkinsville Business Men's Association, and it required little agitation to secure the co-operation of enough farmers to form the Christian County Crop Improvement Association. This is an entirely separate and distinct organization from the Hopkinsville Business Men's Association, it is officered and managed entirely by farmers. After this was put through the Fiscal Court appropriated $1,500, and another $1,000 was secured from the American Council of Grain Exchanges, of Chicago, and this $2,500 is the capital upon which the new experiment is being run this year. As soon as the money was provided the directors of the Crop Improvement Association, after considering several application, decided upon Geoffrey Morgan, of Madison county, and a contract was soon closed.

Mr. Morgan, who is not an old man by any means, took up agriculture when he was 18 years of age and has followed nothing else since. He has conducted experiment work in Virginia, Rhode Island and Georgia for the German Kali Works, and has also worked for the government. He bought an old wornout farm in his own county, and by putting it up to a high state of civilization, and it is now known as one of the model farms of that section.

Mr. Morgan is now on the job, and he is one of the busiest men in all the county. He is subject to call of any individual farmer at any time that he is not otherwise engaged, and so numerous have these calls become that already his time is engaged for two and three weeks ahead. He is provided with a horse and buggy, and there is hardly a neighborhood that he has not visited in the short time he has been here. When it is known that the county line is twenty four miles north of Hopkinsville, twenty miles south, twelve miles east and the same distance west, some idea can be had of the traveling Mr. Morgan has already done.

Before he came the chief objection was that the farmers themselves would not take advantage of the opportunity given them, and some of them seemed to bear this out by openly stating that no man could teach them anything about running their own farm; that they had lived on for so long and knew the strength or weakness of every acre of the land and what it could produce best. But the fallacy of this has been proven decisively, even this early, for the farmers as a whole have swamped the agriculturist with requests for visits to their farms, and the very men who were most outspoken about being perfectly able to take care of their places, have gone to him for advice. And in most cases these very fellows have received the most radical suggestions for changes in their methods.

And in addition to his duties among the farmers themselves, Mr. Morgan is teaching a class of boys in the Hopkinsville Public High School. This class meets each Tuesday afternoon, and no matter where he may be or what other calls he may have, Mr. Morgan is always on hand. And the boys, too, deserve credit for taking up this work, for the class does not meet until after the regular session of the school is out for the day, and they are giving their own time in order to learn about agriculture.

Neighborhood farmers' clubs are a hobby with the agriculturist, and he is organizing them all over the county at the rate of three and four a week. So far he has had a remarkable attendance at every appointment, and never fails to organize an enthusiastic club with large membership, president and secretary and board of directors. These clubs are to hold meetings as often as they desire, but once a month at least. At these meetings Mr. Morgan is present, if possible, but the farmers themselves are in charge and make talks and exchange ideas and experiences. These neighborhood clubs are considered better than a county club, for the reason that the interest and attendance is better maintained in the smaller organization than the larger. Sometimes these meetings are held in a church, a school house, a barn, or even under the shade of the trees, but the interest is always manifest, and that is what counts.

But the men are not the only ones who call on the agriculturist. The farmers' wives, who generally raise the chickens, turkeys and other fowls, who have charge of the milk and butter and who look after the gardens, have many perplexing questions, and they are quick to seek advice. And they always get something worth while when they come to Mr. Morgan.

Harrison Prince, 3340.

Will make the present season at the stable of G. T. Gaines, one mile from Burlington, Ky., on the Petersburg pike, at $15.00 to insure a living colt.

HARRISON PRINCE is a chestnut stallion, 16 hands high, 4 years old, has a large blaze face, two white feet, and is the perfect type of a saddle horse with fine finish and action a champion in his class from a colt. Harrison Prince comes from a family of show horses on both sides, and is a show horse himself. His sire is Dandy Jim, 2d, 1531, the well known show horse by McChief, 1451, by Rex McDonald, 83, by Rex Denmark, 840, he by Crigler's Denmark by Old Denmark Chief. His dam, Mary Neal, 1605, also a show mare, by Boyd Wilkes by Favorite Wilkes 2d dam, Skiddies, by Washington Denmark, Jr, by Washington Denmark 64.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

In 1914 a premium of $10 will be given for the best and $5.00 for the second best colt of this year's get of Harrison Prince.

His colts were shown the first time last season and were never defeated in the ring. H. T. GAINES,
Burlington, Ky.

The Impt. Germam Coach Stallion,

PLUTARCH

The savings made by a DE LAVAL Cream Separator

A De Laval will save enough over any gravity setting system in quantity and quality of cream, sweet skim-milk, labor, time and trouble to pay for itself every six months.

A De Laval will save enough over any other separator in closer skimming, in running heavier and smoother cream, skimming cool milk, greater capacity, easier cleaning, easier running and fewer repairs to pay for itself every year.

An up-to-date De Laval saves enough over De Laval machines of five, ten, fifteen or twenty years ago in closer separation under all conditions, greater capacity, easier running and greater mechanical perfection to pay for itself every two years.

Remember that these are not mere claims. We are always willing to let you try out a De Laval for yourself on your own place.

A former stock buyer informs us that he and his partner used to ship scores of carloads of stock from this station every year, but now, he says there are not more than ten or fifteen loads shipped from this station in a year. Many of our farmers used to raise from fifty to 500 bushels of wheat and our bread was raised at home, but now the unloading of scores of carloads of wheat, corn and flour tells another tale. The time was when the farmer heavily loaded his pocketbook with money from the sale of his two and 3-year-old steers, a business that seems to be weakening yearly. We are nearing the line where our consumption will exceed our production and where the Sheriff's voice will be heard.—Munfordville News.

Objections to Washed Money.

Many of the bankers of the United States it seems, do not take kindly to Uncle Sam's washed money. A Senator announced the other day that he had accumulated protests from nearly 600 bank presidents and cashiers some of whom characterized the laundered greenbacks, as "the counterfeiter's delight." An effort was made to have these protests printed as a public document, but there was objection and the letters will remain unprinted.

The process of laundering money has been hailed as a great stroke of economy, but if it makes things easier for counterfeiters it may "cost more than it comes to" and prove a mistaken policy. Currency which passes through many hands accumulates dirt and germs. It was claimed that washing in the Treasury laundry made a bill almost as good as new, provided the bill was not too badly worn. Evidently there are many bankers who do not like the work of the Treasury laundrymen and who believe that tainted money should be sent to the macerating machine and made into souvenirs for foolish tourists to purchase from the curiosity shops on Pennsylvania avenue.

Bankers are popularly supposed to know good money and to have that superior knowledge which avoids taking in bad money. In matters of this kind it is rather safe to depend on the banker's judgment, and if washing a treasury note makes it resemble a Confederate bill of the vintage of 1863 the washed currency is not likely to be in high favor with the great common people.—J.

Nancy Frances Adams.

Daughter of Wm. and Nancy Clements. One of the thirteen children, of whom only two, Wm. P. and Richard Clements, survive. Born near South Fork church, in Gallatin county Ky., on Feb. 23, 1838. Died at her home near Sherman, Grant county, Ky., on Friday morning, April 25, 1913, at six o'clock, after a lingering illness of several weeks' duration, terminating in a period of comparative unconsciousness, resulting from a partial paralysis. Age seventy-five years, two months and two days.

Wife of Robert Adams, to whom she was married on Oct. 4th, 1855. To this union were born twelve children, three of whom, an infant, Wm. C. Adams, and Mary Belle Adams, preceded their mother in death, the last dying on March 22, 1913, during mother's last illness and without mother knowing of her death. Deceased is survived by her husband, Robert Adams, and seven sons, O. W., H. O., Lee A., Byron A., B. D., Ira D., and C. C. Adams and two daughters, Mrs. Laura A. Rogers, of Dayton, Ohio, and Mrs. Nannie A. Stephens, of Crittenden, Ky., all of whom were present during mother's last sickness and followed her remains on the sad journey to their last rest.

Deceased was a firm believer in the Christian faith, having in early girlhood joined the ten-mile Baptist church at Napoleon, in Gallatin county; being an active member of the Big Bone Baptist church in Boone county, for thirty years in middle life, and at the time of her death was a loyal member of the Crittenden Baptist church in Grant county.

On Saturday afternoon, April 26, 1913, in her late home, in the presence of the family, friends and neighbors, brief funeral services, of song, prayer and discourse, were conducted by the pastor of her church, the Rev. Kirtley Johnson, and on the Sunday morning following, the remains were taken to the Big Bone Baptist church in Boone county, where in the presence of the entire family, in the church where the deceased so often worshipped in this life, filled with her neighbors, friends and relatives, a most impressive funeral service of song, reading, sermon and prayer was directed by the pastor, the Rev. Wm. McMillan.

A striking co-incident was that each of the pastors, without the knowledge of the other, selected as the text for his discourse the 15th verse of the CXVI Psalm, which is as follows, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

After the services the remains by the hands of those whom they were precious, the living children, were borne to the beautiful cemetery at the side of the church, and there gently placed by the side of the children who had gone before, with them to await their resurrection.

A Spirted Contest.

Frankfort, May 4.—A spirited contest over the removal of the Presbyterian church, an edifice in which President Taylor, Jefferson Davis and numerous Governors of Kentucky have worshiped, was renewed today and resulted in a "dead heat," the congregation voting 100 to 100 on whether the church shall be removed to the south side of the city.

The church is the only one in the South whose congregation did not divide during the Civil War. In the days of 64-65 sympathizers of both sides in the old structure and worshiped side by side.

It is due to this sentimental reason that opponents of removal have waged such a strong contest. The wealthy element in the church desires to remove to a more fashionable district and have agreed to purchase a lot and donate it to the congregation but the "Old Homesteaders" have declined all overtures.

Washington, April 30.—The fiscal system of the U. S., governing deposits of Federal funds in national banks was revolutionized today by Secretary McAdoo, of the Treasury Department, with an announcement that all Government depositaries whether active or inactive, would be required to pay interest at the rate of two per cent per annum, beginning June 1st, upon deposits of the Government.

This little coolness on the part of the weather will pass for snowball winter.

The thermometer registered 92 in Cincinnati last Monday. Pretty good summer weather.

Rev. R. E. Stralton, of Cincinnati, will preach at Bullittsville next Sunday at 11 a. m.

Allen Black is pitching for the Lexington team this season, and appears to be in good form.

Farmers are too busy to give the candidates much time. Talk fast and pass on Mr. Candidate.

Tobacco plants are coming on rapidly and it will push some planters to be ready for them.

Albert Conner has been confined to the house for a week by a lame back, which has caused him great pain.

W. T. Stott, candidate for the Legislature, and Lewis Clore, candidate for Assessor, were in Burlington, last Saturday.

It is said that candidates are becoming so common out in the rural districts that the dogs refuse to bark at them.

The lamb crop has improved rapidly the past two weeks, and some of the early lambs will soon be ready for the market.

Dr. Yelton was called last Sunday to Pendleton county to see a patient, who has been quite ill. He returned home Monday.

The Burlington and Hebron teams will play at Burlington next Saturday and at Hebron the following Saturday afternoon.

Burlington High School ball club and the St. Xavier team of Walnut Hills, will play at the Burlington park, this, Thursday afternoon.

Farmer Chas. Clore, who resides out on the East Bend road, was in town Tuesday and said he would begin plowing corn the next day.

Elmer Fowler and Kenneth Kirkpatrick were gigging down on Gunpowder creek last Monday night, and captured a long string of nice fish.

Rev. Hudspeth, evangelist, is conducting a very interesting meeting for the local Christian church. All are invited to attend the services.

Very few except the candidates were in Burlington, last Monday. Farmers were too busy planting and getting ready to plant corn to lose the fine day.

E. E. Kelly bought a team of nice 2300 pound bay horses of James Taylor, of Big Bone neighborhood last week, paying a good long price for them.

The Recorder has on hands the petitions necessary for the candidates to circulate in order to get their names on the ballot at the primary election in August.

B. B. Hume has sold about twenty Ford autos since he became agent for it. He sold two last Friday, one to Dr. Glacken, of Richwood, and one to John C. Bedinger, of Walton.

For the first time in the town of Erlanger women voted Saturday at an election for School Trustees. John Erret was elected for a term of three years and M. J. Corbin for two years.

There is an abundance of material in the streets in Burlington for creating dust this year and it may be unusually bad—at least it will appear that way after having had no dust for two years.

Covington is coming to the front and now has a league base ball team. Here is hoping she will capture the penant. Several of the leading business men of the city are large stockholders in the club.

Lame back is usually caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the back for which you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly. Adv.

C. L. Kirkpatrick has been elected president of the Indianapolis Water Company, at Indianapolis, Indiana. Mr. Kirkpatrick has been a very successful business man for many years, and continues to advance.

Tobacco plants are growing nicely. Many farmers tell us that theirs will be ready to set out about the 15th of May. This will be several weeks earlier than the season last year. The cut worms are plentiful, though, and are beginning to get in their work.—Blue Grass Clipper.

Burlington Masonic Lodge had an interesting meeting last Saturday night at which Attorney Sidney Gaines was initiated into the mysterics of the order.

The Boone County Mutual Fire Insurance Company has purchased of G. G. Hughes the office building and lot he used as a law office. This is a good move on the part of the company, and the building will be repaired and improved in looks.

An auto driven by strangers struck the buggy of Rev. Campbell on the pike near Bullittsburg school house one day last week. The vehicle was damaged considerably, but, fortunately Mr. Campbell nor the horse attached to the vehicle were hurt.

Miss Laura Frances Riddell took the medal in English Composition at the Educational Tournament held at Dry Ridge, Grant county, week before last, but in some way her name was omitted from the list of successful competitors published in last week's Recorder for which it apologizes whether it was or was not its fault.

The effort to raise money with which to oil the streets in Burlington again this year failed. The price of oil has advanced since last year and it was desired to oil a greater distance than last year, requiring about $160 about half of which amount was subscribed with five or six persons yet to see, consequently the effort was abandoned.

It would surprise you to know of the great good that is being done by Chamberlain's Tablets. Darius Downey, of Newberg Junction, N. Burlington High School was defeated by St. Xavier College at Cincinnati, Friday, by the small score of 4 to 3. Burlington outplayed Xavier in every department, but loose base running was the cause of the defeat. The features of the game were Dix's pitching and the batting of the entire Burlington team. The same teams play at Burlington next Thursday and a good game is expected.

To those who are interested in the wool pool of Boone Co:

The pool will close on May 12th. The members of board are requested to send in their reports to the Secretary L. T. Clore, at Burlington, immediately thereafter. This wool will be offered for sale at the Emery Hotel, in Cincinnati on May 28th, 1913.

Sales Committee—J. H. Stephens, Geo. McGlasson and L. T. Clore.

By order of the President J. H. Stephens.

Dirty surroundings, like a run-over shoe, speak plainly of the traits of shiftlessness, carelessness and general lack of pride, civic, personal or in any other form. We do not believe we have many people in Bowling Green who possess these undesirable qualities. If so, they will show up quickly when clean-up time starts this week. Don't run the risk of being put in the wrong class by inattention to this most important matter. Take the rake in both hands and go to work.—Bowling Green Times Journal.

The Belleview base ball team came up last Saturday afternoon and skinned the Burlington team 4 to 3 in a loosely played game on both sides, but it was made evident that the Burlington boys will have to improve considerably before they will be able to defeat Belleview. Rogers held Burlington to 10 hits while Belleview made 8 hits—7 off of Tolin in seven innings and one hit off of Huey in two innings. Deck's catch of Conner's long fly was the feature of the game and saved his team considerable trouble. It looks like the Belleview boys will have but little trouble defeating the county teams this year.

The Boone county delegates to the K. E. A. at Louisville last week won the silk banner for the largest attendance from the 6th district. They were also awarded five dollars in gold in the State contest. There were 26 enrolled teachers and many from Boone county who are teaching in other places.

The division boards will meet the first Saturday in June for the election of rural teachers for the ensuing year. The first examination for teachers will be held Friday and Saturday of next week.

The examination for Common school graduates will be held at both Walton and Burlington on Friday and Saturday of this week.

EDGAR C. RILEY.

Judge Tracy empaneled a special grand jury in the Kenton county Circuit Court, Tuesday, to investigate the charges the Kentucky Post has been making against him and Judge Harbeson and others. Judge Tracy told the jury that if he and Judge Harbeson are guilty of charges made by the Post they are not fit to hold the offices of judges of the courts and should be indicted, on the other hand, if after a thorough investigation they were found to be not guilty of the charges as made by the Post that Editor Bronner is guilty of criminal libel and they should indict him. The result of the investigation is anxiously awaited by the citizens of Covington who have been worked up considerably by the charges the Post has been making daily for some time.

THE STENOTYPE

A MARVELOUS INVENTION USED IN PLACE OF PENCIL AND NOTE BOOK IN TAKING DICTATION.

Printing of Plain Letters on Strip of Paper Is the Latest Method of Recording Rapid Speech by Stenographer.

The attention of the stenographer, and his or her employer, has recently been attracted to a new office device, designed to take the place of the pencil and note book in taking dictation. The "stenotype" is a little eight-pound machine constructed along the lines of the typewriter, but so designed as to admit of the striking of the keys on the keyboard in multiples instead of one at a time.

The writing is in plain type letters on a strip of paper similar to that used on adding machines, the paper being automatically fed with each stroke of the keyboard, from a roll carried inside the machine. Printing is effected through a ribbon, which is automatically operated, as in the modern typewriter.

The interesting feature of this machine is the system whereby with a keyboard of 22 keys, the English language can be written on an average of a word at a stroke. As will be seen from the illustration, the keys are arranged in pairs, so that each finger has a pair of keys to operate. Instead of printing at a common printing point, the type are located in a straight row, side by side, close to and in front of the platen (the travel of the type being only one-sixteenth of an inch the operation of the machine is noiseless). If all the keys on the keyboard were struck at one time, a row of characters would be printed across the strip of paper as follows:

STKPWHRAO*EUFRPBLGTSDS

The Keyboard of the Machine.

To write a certain word, therefore, the letters necessary to print that word are selected from the keyboard and struck. The word "starts" would be written by selecting the letters and would appear as here shown across the strip of paper. If the reverse of this should be written, it would then appear as follows:

ST RA TS

By observing the sequence of letters as they occur on the keyboard and correspondingly on the type at the printing point it will be seen how these words may be written. The keyboard is divided into three groups; the initial consonants writing at the beginning of the line, the vowels in the middle and the final consonants at the end. In the words above written the initial consonants were written with the fingers of the left hand, the vowels with the two thumbs and the final consonants with the fingers of the right hand. All the initial consonants, vowels and final consonants do not appear on the face of the keyboard. The missing letters are obtained by the use of arbitrary combinations of letters on the keyboard that do not occur in a sequence such as is found in any word in the language. To illustrate: The combination of "TK" among the initial consonants represents the initial "D" in words. "Darts" is written as follows:

TK A R TS

All figures, marks of punctuation, proper names and foreign words are written with absolute accuracy.

Specimen of the Record.

The fact that plain type letters are written, not subject to misinterpretation because of poor penmanship, and the fallibility of hand-made shorthand notes, insures an absolute legibility. Any person familiar with the system of characters, can read the notes of any operator.

As the paper leaves the machine it is automatically rewound on a spool attached to the rear of the machine. This spool is transferred to a copy holder, which reverses the paper so that the first notes written are on the outside and feeds the paper forward as the transcription is being made on the typewriter.—Scientific American.

THE RURAL SCHOOLS

Grange Should Have a Vital Interest in Its Developement.

A great responsibility is resting upon those who have the direction of our rural schools. And yet the responsibility is not wholly theirs. The kind of rural schools which any school district may have will depend very largely on the kind of school the people in the district want. The community spirit or the community ideal will determine this matter in the last analysis. There are some, even many, who favor the consolidated school, but without discussing practicability and value of consolidation as a remedy it may be said that there are and probably always will be very many country districts from which it will be impossible to transport the children, and the maintenance of a school for the benefit of the children living in the district therefore remains a necessity. That the standard of such schools should be as high as the combined wisdom of patrons and teachers can make it will not be denied, but an increasing interest must center about the affairs of the school and the future welfare of both the pupils and community if this desirable end is to be attained.

The grange of all agricultural organizations should have a vital interest in our rural schools. It is the champion of rural progress and better education. Its influence is not actively urging the adoption of model educational methods and reforms, but in creating the progressive rural spirit, is the greatest influence that can be brought to bear in the interest of improved schools and better school surroundings in very many rural comunities. It is therefore under a certain obligation to the community to use that influence in every way it can. As a recent writer has well said: "Every grange should demand that there be a teacher employed who is in sympathy with farm interests, who has some knowledge of the work which the children are supposed to do later in life and who will coo-operate with the grange in interests of the community. The school cannot do this work alone. Neither can the grange. Co-operation is essential."

A course of study which does not include the knowledge of agriculture and the work of the farm home is not the course of study that is now demanded. Many teachers have not had the training which will enable them to teach the essentials of agriculture. The grange can assist in this by securing practical talks for the school and literature and equipment for the teaching of agriculture. Otherwise it must be expected that the boys and girls trained in the rural schools will not have the interests of the farm at heart. The grange should have a standard for hygienic conditoins and artistic surroundings, which will help to make the schoolhouse a place that one can point with pride. The grange can arouse public opinion in favor of truly attractive school surroundings. In a score of it can determine the character of the pupils who attend upon that instruction and in so doing will determine the character of the community in which the school exists.

Parcel Post Making Good.

The Courier-Journal's Washington bureau reports that officials of the Post-Office Department say the parcel post has been a great success.

After about four months of operation it is noted that the business is increasing at the rate of ten million packages a month. Furthermore, there are indications that it will expand rapidly in the future. Merchants are making preparations to extend their buisness into new fields and the number of farm products sent by parcel post is growing steadily. These statments from the department officials leave no room for doubt that the new branch of the bostal service is making good.

The new Postmaster General is said to be desirous of encouraging the growth of the package business. To that end he "has construed every liberally the regulations relating to parcel post." He is to be commended for taking this attitude. To serve its best purposes and to be in its widest sense a convelence to the people the parcel post should be as free as possible from red tape and, from regulations which are perplexing or troublesome to the great mass of patrons. In other words, it should be made as easy to mail a package as it is to send a letter. This will be accomplished in time and the parcel post then will come fully into its own.

The United States, even with the good example of other countries before it, was a long time making up its mind to engage in the parcel post business. This was not because the people did not want the parcel post. The results of four months' operation have shown it to be a popular innovation and one which should have come sooner.—Courier-Journal.

Things Worth Knowing.

Give the hen wide range.

Tomatoes should be started early.

Potatoes are a highly specialized crop.

Cows should be kept comfortable at all times.

Weeds rob the soil of food elements required by other plants.

The milch cow needs a shelter from the summer storms and heat.

A pig that is fed grain all his life usually fails to pay expenes.

Potatoes require considerble nitrogen and a large amount of potash.

The pigs should have a clean, dry yard to exercise in during the day.

A cheap and effective way of dehorning calves is with potash caustic.

By judicious choice of varieties carrots may be enjoyed for a ong season.

The oat crop as a money maker on the farm is liable not to receive the attention it deserves.

One of the chief reasons for butter becoming rancid at an early age is the fact that it is not washed thoroguly.

It is surprising how few farmers have cement floors in their stables, and as a rule they do not realize the loss they sustain by having the earth floor or a leaky, filthy plank floor.

Farm Notes of Interest.

Clover is rich in protain.

Feed young turkeys bread crumbs.

Poultry is quite a large factor with many.

The brooder must be kept free from droppings.

The use of summer silos is growing more common.

The sows and pigs should be put on pasture as soon as possible.

The seed well treated will treat the farmer to a disease free crop.

Some horses have learned to balk by being overloaded and abused.

Potatoes will do their best on a well-manured, well-prepared clover sod.

Peas, beans and onions were first known in Egypt many centuries ago.

The intelligent care of trees is a great aid in our battle with the insect.

Old grass and clover pastures are much benefited by a dressing of plaster and ashes.

One of the "unfailing" signs of an ignorant or careless feeder is a bunch of scouring pigs.

Weeds sometimes injure by killing farm stock, or by rendering their product unsalable.

The soil on cultivated fields on or rolling land will wash less if plowed well and extra deep.

The brood mare in foal should be handled by a firm, steady hand not an excitable, rash hand.

Better to put up a new fence or mend the old than to spend the rest of the summer chasing pigs.

With the high cost of feed, a little tankage added to the ration of hogs every day will pay big.

When the cream runs off the spoon like oil and has a slight acid taste it is usually ripe for churning.

It has been found that denatured sugar forms a valuble and economical addition to skim milk for calves.

Some dairymen are finding it quite convenient to have the milking room hold four cows only at one time.

Young geese do not lay as many fertile eggs or produce as many goslings in the first breeding season.

Stimulate the soil to a vigorous production by means of thorough cultivation and liberal use of fertilizer.

In deep setting, with plenty of ice, the cream is all up in 12 hours in any of the good family creameries now in use.

The age of seed has much to do with the vitality or germinating power. Young, bright, shiny seed are best.

Hogs have often been tided over a season of shortage and kept in a thrifty, growing condition, for weeks on mangels alone.

Milk readily absorbs bad odors such as arise from onions, garlic or decaying vegetables, hence don't set the milk pan near them.

Grading of cream is receiving more attention by the dairy press and dairymen than it possibly ever has in the history of the dairy business.

A good stand of clover cannot be had when sown on fall or spring grain where only a few hundred pounds of cheap fertilizer is drilled to the acre.

The worst feature of cucumber culture is the insect pests, but thes emay be controlled by dusting with dry insecticides or even with bone dust.

The same laws that have sent the prices of beef and pork products almost out of reach of the workingman will also hold the prices of poultry products.

Where one has plenty of land, or land that is too hilly or rocky for regular field cultivation, the pasture affords the cheapest feed that can be grown on the farm.

For market purpose a stock bird large-breasted, firmly set on short legs, surmounted by large thighs, will prove valuable, especially if belonging to a family of egg producers.

Up to 1862 the average person in the United States spent only 25 cents a year for postage. In 1891 the average man expended 97 cents while today the habit of letter writing has grown to such an extent that the average expenditure is $2.60 a year.

Many a laborer is too tired to think at the end of a day's work. But only by thinking can he hope to free himself from the chains of the system.

There never was a time when people appreciated the real merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than now. This is shown by the increase of sales and voluntary testimonials from persons who have been cured by it. If you or your children are troubled with a cough or cold give it a trial and become acquainted with its good qualities. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

SEASON 1913

I wish to call the attention of the breeders of High Class Saddle and Harness Horses of Northern Kentucky in regard to

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS,

2844 A. S. B. A.
Bracken Chief (2148)
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Mambrino Le Grande 99

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1,200 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet,

By BRACKEN CHIEF 2148

by Harriron Chief 1606 by Clark Chief (89), dam, Kit Hardy (2830) by Indian Chief 1718).

1 dam Miss Berry 4084 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99)

2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112.

3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor)

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1908 and sold for $3,600, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show, Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmons? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest price Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief's and his sons and grand-sons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzsimmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible should any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Best's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners,
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

The Fine High Bred Percheron Stallion,

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1913 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs., and is 17¼ hands in height. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

PRINCE OLSEN was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., where he was foaled in 1907, and from whom he was purchased by me in 1911, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses over in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olson was a high bred registered Percheron mare. I feel that farmers and breeders will make no mistake in breeding to Prince Olsen as it means a good, strong colt that will meet every requirement on the farm. One of the lacking features of our horses is the size and strength. With the well bred Percheron like Prince Olsen these essentials are fully incorporated.

Come and see the horse and inspect his good points and you will breed to him.

Two Fine Young Jacks,

Ben and Dewey.

BEN is a black jack with meaty points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ears, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Kentucky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $325 at weaning time. Service fee $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine jack, five years old, and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Take a look at them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

JOSEPH READNOUR,
apr3 6t Walton, Ky.

Stop Walking In Your Kitchen

Save Your Strength, Health and Beauty with a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet

THE HOOSIER SPECIAL

Every physician will tell you that long hours of INDOOR WALKING AND STANDING are extremely injurious for housekeepers as well as for women in the business world.

You spend hours on your feet every day walking back and forth between pantry and cupboard and kitchen table collecting supplies and cooking utensils and standing over the kitchen table.

You are wearing yourself out needlessly, for we have a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet ready to deliver into your home today.

In the Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet everything you need in cooking is within reach of your own arm. You can get it, use it, and return it to its place while sitting on a comfortable stool.

Your flour is in a handy bin with a sifter attachment; your sugar in another; other supplies in the convenient glass container with which the Hoosier is equipped.

Dishes go in one cupboard; pots and kettles in another; bread and cake are kept in a splendid metal lined special drawer.

There are clean towel and cutlery drawers; hooks for small utensils; a bracket to hold your rolling pin and a clock-face want list to keep you from forgetting necessary supplies.

A beautiful aluminum topped table, 40 inches square, is kept clean by simply wiping with a hot cloth—no staining, rusting or discoloration.—Another little feature that lightens labor.

This business management of your kitchen saves hours of time—women who own a Hoosier have the rest and recreations that make life worth living.

Instead of wearing themselves out they are rested and happy. They have made housework the pleasant, congenial, comfortable occupation it ought to be.

Call at our store and let us show you the Hoosier and explain it to you. You incur no obligation—we are glad to demonstrate.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

Gives the Farmer a Big Boost in making His Farm Prosperous

Did you ever notice that a prosperous farm is invariably well fenced, and is usually divided into small fields by a fence "horse-high, hog-tight and bull-strong"? Why is it?

Because the prosperous farmer realizes that good fences are as necessary to successful farming as fertile seeds, efficient labor and proper machinery. But the wise farmer investigates before he invests. Others just buy and are often "sold." "Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence is made with but one end in view—to give best service for the longest time at least cost. Investigating it costs nothing. Investing in it pays.

Made in Different Styles for FIELD, FARM, RANCH, LAWN, CHICKEN, POULTRY and RABBIT YARD and GARDEN

Every Rod Guaranteed

Ask your dealer for "Pittsburgh Perfect" and insist on his furnishing it. Do not allow him to persuade you that some other fence is just as good. If he doesn't sell it, write us direct.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Brands of Barbed Wire; Bright, Annealed & Galvanized Wire; Twisted Cable Wire; Hard Spring Coil Wire; Fence Staples; Poultry Netting Staples; Regular Wire Nails; Galvanized Wire Nails; Large Head Roofing Nails; Single Loop Bale Ties; "Pittsburgh Perfect" Fencing. Vallandingham, Mrs. Julia Adams-Rouse, Miss Helen Dickey, Miesses Nannie and Jean Chambers attended the educational meeting at Louisville, last week, the school trustees giving a week's vacation for that purpose. Much valuable information was obtained and a very pleasant visit enjoyed.

Hon. John J. Howe, of Carrollton, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney for this judicial district will address the voters here at the opera house next Friday night, May 9th, at 7 o'clock. Mr. Howe is a polished speaker and an excellent gentleman and the voters should give a good sized audience.

The Walton Social Club had probably the last meeting of the season at the opera house last Saturday night owing to the approaching warm weather. Twenty-two couples were present at the last meeting and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all. At the conclusion of the program a very delightful and much enjoyed lunch was served.

Walton Lodge, F. and A. M., had a delightful meeting last Friday night when the fellowcraft degree was conferred on Geo. J. Grubbs, after which Bro. B. W. Stallard delivered a very entertaining and interesting address on the "History of Masonry." There was a good sized attendance. A nice lunch and cigars followed the exercises, and a very enjoyable evening was spent together. Among the visitors were Bros. J. Sam Noell and W. C. Johnson, of Big Bone Springs, Jos. C. Hughes, of Richwood, Wm. Ransom and S. H. Henderson, of Wilmington.

Monday, Wm. D. Bagby, fourteen year old son of Wm. H. Bagby, residing about two miles south of Walton, met with a horrible accident, and his escape from death was simply miraculous. He was working in a wagon shed and fell to the ground, a distance of about twelve feet, alighting on a lot of tobacco sticks, and one of them with a sharp point entered his thigh, penetrating his body to the left breast, burying itself in his body to the length of twenty-six inches. Dr. Rankins was called and extracted the stick and gave the boy the necessary attention, and he is rapidly recovering. The boy exhibited wonderful nerve during the trying ordeal, and remained conscious during the entire time. There is every indication that young Bagby will get well as no vital organ was touched by the stick in its entire passage into his body.

NOTICE.

The stockholders of the Walton and Verona Turnpike Company are requested to meet at the Equitable Bank and Trust Co., in Walton, Ky., at two o'clock p. m., on Saturday, May 17th, 1913 (third Saturday), for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year. Attend in person or by proxy.

C. L. GRIFFITH, President.

HATCHED ON MOTHER'S BACK

Queer Method by Which Toad Family Is Raised—Sometimes Scores at a Time.

At a recent scientific convention in London a paper was read describing the curious process by which the young of certain species of frogs and toads are developed from the egg. What is known as the Surinam toad was cited as the most remarkable of these animals. The Surinam toad gets its name from Surinam, in Dutch Guiana, in which region the species is not uncommon. The adult toad is about a foot long and is one of the largest of the toad family.

After the eggs are laid a friendly toad takes them and spreads them on the mother's back. They adhere to the skin by a peculiar sticky substance which surrounds them. Gradually the toad's skin wrinkles up and forms a series of cells and in each cell there is an egg. In a day or two more the eggs become covered over with a membrane, to protect them from the air.

The heat of the mother's body then incubates the eggs, and unlike a setting or sitting hen she is put to no inconvenience in the way of sticking to a nest, but may roam about at will. In due course the eggs hatch into tiny tadpoles, but they do not emerge yet. They remain in their comfortable quarters till they have passed into the second or fully developed toad stage, whereupon they break the membranous cover of their cell and come out into the world.

The number of young produced at once in this way may be as many as a hundred. In certain species of South American treefrogs the eggs are hatched all together in a pouch in the mother's back, but in this case the little ones come forth while still tadpoles.—The Plaindealer.

Customs at the Table.

When taking one's seat at table the chair should not be drawn too close, for nothing gives more awkward appearance than for a person to be seated too near to the table.

As soon as seated take up the napkin and if a roll is within it put the roll down at the left. The napkin is then partly unfolded across the lap. On rising from the table the rule is to leave one's napkin unfolded unless the hostess fold hers. At a hotel or restaurant the napkin, is, of course, left unfolded.

Grapefruit and oranges are eaten iwth a spoon, which would be at the right. Oysters on the shall are eaten whole, if possible, not cut in half, and are eaten with an oyster fork, which usually is at the right.

It is not good manners to crumble bread or to eat bread between courses as tho one were hungry.

For fish, if there is not a special fish knife, one may take a small piece of bread in the left hand and use it to separate the bones from the fish. Two or three forks are usually at the left of each place, the fork farthest from the plate being taken up to use as each course is served.

Care should be taken to hold the knife and fork properly. Old ways of holding the fork are not good form. When raising the fork to the mouth it is lifted sideways, never pointed toward the mouth. When cutting meat the forefinger should rest on the handle of the knife. A small piece of meat is cut as required. When eating vegetables the knife is laid down the blade resting near the center of the plate, never across the edge of the plate. The knife and fork are placed side by side near the center of the plate when one has finished. This custom is followed also if one's plate is sent for a second serving.

Vegetable foods are important to the health of the fowl; they induce increased eating and increased egg production. Fowls eat more grain when fed green foods than otherwise. Mangles, cabbage, turnips, rape, potatoes, lettuce and onions are good vegetables for poultry. Potatoes are best fed boiled.

Feed some meat to the hens, but not too heavy. Too much meat acts as a laxative for laying hens.

The graded school here has just closed after a very successful term under the regime of Prof. Throop. The professor deserves great credit for his untiring efforts to make our school a success. No sacrifice was too great for him to make if it would promote the welfare of our school or help in any way to advance the cause of education. It was a great disappointment to both pupils and patrons when the trustees failed to secure his services for another year, as he has been employed to take charge of the school at Corbin, for next year. However, our loss is Corbin's gain and it is with a feeling of genuine regret that we will witness his departure from here and more will we miss his influence with our young folks by whom he was both loved and respected.

The commencement exercises which were held at the Belleview High School Friday night were a complete success and was attended by a very large crowd. Forty-eigth years ago on the 3d inst., the writer got home from the war after being gone from home nearly four years in the rebel army. There is but one man in Petersburg Orvill Alloway, who lived there then and Burlington a day or two this of the town—John Smith, N. S. Walton and John W. Berkshire. Of course there are many old men who have lived here all of their lives but they were boys at that time.

BASE BALL.

Manager Kirkpatrick is arranging for a game of ball at Burlington between the Juniors and a Florence team of youngsters next Saturday afternoon.

The St. Xavier base ball team came out last Friday afternoon and cleaned up on the B. H. S. to the tune of 8 to 2. The Burlington team put up a very rotten specimen of ball while the visitors were in the game all the time playing nice ball. Dix struck out thirteen men and the visiting pitcher, 17.

Several Boone county base ball fans went to Covington, last Friday to assist in opening the Federal League season here and to root for Ed. Sandford, who is pitching ball for the Covington team, but he was not on the mound that day, which was a disappointment to the Boone county rooters. Nothing was doing in Covington that afternoon but the base ball performance.

The Hebron base ball team hooked up with the Burlington team on the latter's grounds, last Saturday, and was defeated by a score of 16 to 2. The feature of the game on the part of the visitors was the work of Tanner in the left field, where he cut down several drives that looked good for three sacks. He also led his team at the bat. Huey was on the mound for the home team and struck out 17 men and allowed seven hits scattered through the nine innings. The Hebron pitchers struck out seven men and allowed eight hits. These teams will play at Hebron next Saturday afternoon. The antique members of the Burlington team have begun to show some life on the diamond, and manager Tolin is confident that by the 4th of July they will be there with bells on.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Will be Most Interesting and Instructive at the Boone County High School.

While the number to graduate from the County High School is not so large this year as last every effort is being made to make the exercises entertaining and profitable. The first commencement event will be the annual school play, given on Saturday evening, May 24. The play entitled "The Sophomore" hinges on a great foot ball game between Burlington and Walton. The standard of previous years has been kept up in the preparation and presentation of the play. Don't fail to attend.

The Baccalaureate sermon will be preached at the Baptist church by the Rev. Campbell, the Baptist minister. This will be on Sunday morning, May 25, and will be a pleasing part of the commencement exercises.

Commencement proper will be on the following Tuesday evening. Harlan Collier Runyan who is so well known and so popular among our people has been secured to deliver the commencement address. The graduates will all have something also, the complete program of which will be announced next week.

It is probable also that some time during this week a play will be given by and for the benefit of the Athletic Association. This also will be fully announced next week.

OAT SMUT CAUSED BIG LOSS

Subject Gaining Importance Because Farmers Failed to Use Simple Formalin Treatment.

Oat smut, which was practically eradicated from the state by the campaign carried on by the agronomy department of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin, is again assuming importance, through the failure of many farmers to use the simple formalin treatment to prevent the disease. The fact that oat smut caused serious losses last summer in some fields in the state should convince farmers that safety lies only in the treating of their seed oats.

One pint of formalin, or formaldehyde, which may be obtained at any drug store, will treat thirty bushels of oats. This solution should be made by using one pint of formalin to thirty-six gallons of water in a tank or barrels. The oats should then be put in gunny sacks, filled only two-thirds full, and submerged in the formalin for only ten minutes.

When the sacks of oats are withdrawn from the barrels or tank they should be allowed to drain, thereby saving considerable solution that would otherwise be wasted. The oats are then emptied on a threshing floor, and covered with blankets an hour or two, so as to make the treatment more effective. After this the oats are allowed to dry. Oats treated with the formalin solution will usually dry sufficiently for sowing in one or two days. After treatment the oats swell considerably, and it is necessary for the seeder or drill to be set so that it will sow about one bushel more per acre.

Oats can be treated effectively several weeks or months previous to sowing if desired, and if properly dried the germinating power will not suffer. For the average farmer just previous to sowing will prove most convenient.

QUALITIES OF FLY-CATCHER

Examination of Stomach of the Little Bird Showed 99 Per Cent. of Animal Matter.

(By F. E. L. BEAL.)

The western yellow-bellied fly-catcher occupies the western part of the United States from the Pacific coast eastward as far as the eastern foothills of the Rockies and as far north as ALASKA. It is found in its summer range about eight months of the year and during the winter in Mexico.

For the study of this bird's food, 150 stomachs were examined. The food was found to consist of 99.31 per cent. animal food to 0.69 per cent. of vegetable.

From this it is evident that the good qualities of the western yellow-bellied fly-catcher far out-weigh the bad—if indeed it can be said to have any bad ones. It eats predaceous beetles, but the percentage is so small that no great harm can be done. The other insects are mostly those that we are glad to lose. The bird is too small to injure fruit or grain, and it is of a confiding and domestic nature, inclined to live about the abodes of man, where it can do the most good.

DAIRY NOTES

There is no special method that need be followed in raising a bull calf.

Bad ventilation in the cow stable is responsible for many diseased cattle.

It is every dairyman's business to ask each cow what she does with her feed.

Do not hurry the cows in moving them about the place or to and from the barn.

It is better to grow beets, commonly known as mangels, rather than carrots for cows.

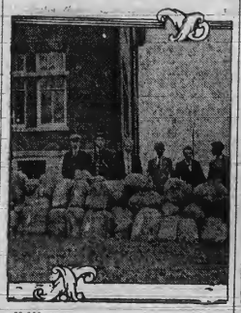
The Babcock test for a cow's production is often an acid test of her owner's gumption.

No feed returns as much profit as that which puts a cow in good condition just before calving time.

If your cows are not paying for their feed hold a little examination and see if you are to blame.

Repeated croppings of corn have a tendency to wear the land. Better rotate and use some grass crop.

Calf raising is a necessity on every dairy farm. It is the only economical and safe method of keeping a herd.



DEPARTING FROM OLD TRADITIONS

High Schools Aid In Developing Kentucky Fruit Growing.

60,000 TREES IN ONE PLOT.

Extensive Apple Growing Associations Launched In Rowan and Hardin Counties—Movement Means Wider Use of Agriculture and Horticulture In Rural High Schools of the State.

The present year has seen a great impetus given to the fruit growing interests in Kentucky. Two different sections of the state have launched extensive co-operative apple growing associations. Both in Rowan and in Hardin counties the work has been helped and developed by our state department of agriculture. The department has furnished these counties with four standard varieties of apple trees free of charge and has also agreed to advise and train the members of the association in the care and general cultivation of the young trees and orchards during the next five years.

When the newly grafted young trees were received by the association in Rowan county they were divided among the members, to be placed in home gardens for the summer's growth. In Hardin county it was decided best to plant and cultivate the 60,000 young trees in one nursery plot. While plans were being discussed as to the best place and manner of caring for this nursery work the agricultural class of the county high school offered to take the trees and carry them through the summer until transplanting time next autumn.

Just next to the high school at Elizabethtown a fertile piece of sod land was broken and carefully prepared for the tender young stock. The day the planting took place was made something of a gala day for the students, especially as two experts from the state agricultural station, a government expert and a Louisville newspaper man came to inspect the work.

When the 60,000 trees, enough to set 1,500 acres, were stacked in the side yard they did not look as if they would require much time to plant. But after the bundles were opened and tiny bunches that could be held in one hand were seen to contain seventy-five or a hundred small trees the boys started first at the bundles and then at the well worked ground.

The splendid part of this work lies in the fact that the high school is stepping outside of the old, narrow, musty limits of educational tradition and is doing something of very definite value for the community. It will undoubtedly be of great benefit to the boys who do the work, their fathers, their friends and neighbors, in gaining a new viewpoint of what education will mean in the coming years.

The development of Kentucky's resources should be the first aim of every citizen, and when the enormous practical value of this work is realized it will give a great impetus to every form of agricultural endeavor.

If this work is a pronounced success this year it will naturally mean a wider use of agriculture and horticulture in our rural high schools over the whole state. When this comes it will also mean that each community will be willing to put much larger sums of money into its school than it has in the past. Let us hope that many high schools will follow this splendid start.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

I recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 8,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

The Young Clydesdale Stallion,

THE KNIGHT,

Recorded Vol. 17 and 33.
His Scottish and American Stud Book numbers (16110) (16143).

THE KNIGHT is a dark brown with gray hairs, blaze face, four white legs, white spot on belly; foaled April 27, 1908, bred by James S. Stenhouse, Fod Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Leitch & Sons, Lafayette, Ill. in the fall of 1911. He was sired by Baronson (10981); 1st dam Princess of Fod the 1st, (17117) by Mains of Arles (10379); 2d dam Lady Madge (14553) by Gallant Poteath (8038); 3d dam Lady Darnly (7272) by Darnly (222).

This horse is a low set, thick well built horse, over 16 hands high, and weighs 1670 lbs. He stands on the best of feet and legs with a splendid top; he also has rare good action.

This horse was a prize winner last fall at the Indiana and Illinois State Fairs—word to the wise. Remember that the Clydesdale is the coming popular horse for the American farmer, the result of experience and education.

I will give a cash prize of $15.00 for the best weanling colt regardless of sex, sired by The Knight and to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home in the fall of 1914.

This horse will be allowed to serve a number of good mares at the nominal sum of $15.00 to insure a live foal, money due when the fact is known or mare parted with. He can be seen at all times at the place of Wm. Ackmyer, one mile west of Bullittsville on the Bullittsville & Dry Creek pike.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Don DeGozee

The Belgian Draft Horse, foaled in 1905, will make the present season Monday and Tuesday of each week, after April 21st, at W. J. Rice's stable, Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at E. J. Aylor's stable, one and one-half miles from Hebron, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.

Description and Pedigree.

Don DeGozee, despite his great size and weight, is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He has as light action as a stallion of much smaller type, and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad, flat foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than another draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle, kind workers.

Don DeGozee's dam, Della Wire, brown mare, the great draft show mare of Campbell county, Ky., sired by Bayard DeGozee No. 2188, whose Belgian Stud Book number is 21670, bred by Mr. Bailleux E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (312), he by Brilliant (709), out of Coatte (703), dam Catherine DeGozee (21088), she by Lion (766) out of Marie (2421).

Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

DISEASE OF POTATOES

Dry-Rot Fungus Causes Blight and Wilt of Crop.

History of Fusarium as Field Trouble Is of Comparatively Recent Record—Preliminary Symptoms Are Green Color.

(By T. F. MANNS.)

The dry rot of potatoes has long been known as a storage trouble. At intervals since 1824 there has been found associated with this rot by different investigators a fungus of the genus Fusarium, which has been variously designated, but the history of the disease as a field trouble is of comparatively recent record.

On badly infected soils the disease is characterized as follows: The stand is uneven, though few of the hills are missing. The early growth is somewhat slow. When the plants reach a height of 10 to 14 inches, there is an apparent cessation of growth. The first indication of the disease is usually conspicuous at this time. The preliminary symptoms are a light green color of the foliage, particularly the lower leaves; this is accompanied during the heat of the day by a partial wilting and an inward and upward rolling of the upper leaves. The color gradually changes to a sickly yellow, which slowly and evenly covers the affected vines. The wilting and rolling of the leaves extends to all parts of the affected plants. As the disease progresses the field takes on a mottled yellow to light green color. The growth of the foliage is greatly restricted, the wilting becomes more pronounced and there is associated much tip-burn owing to the failure of the leaflets to fully recover at night from the wilt of the mid-day. Occasionally hills will show only one or two vines afflicted. Plants which early succumb to the disease pull up easily, manifesting a badly rotted condition of the root. As a rule the blighted stems do not fall, but remain quite erect, except for the drooping top.

There is much evidence to indicate that many growers are practicing potato rotations of too short a duration. Most of such growers have attempted to maintain a three-year rotation of wheat, clover and potatoes, but longer than a three-year rotation should be practiced.

Sick fields should not be planted in potatoes again for at least five or six years, and even longer time may be required to work the parasitic fungus from the soil. Grass and grain crops will undoubtedly eliminate the fungus from the soil quicker than will manuring and cultivated crops.

The work of the dry-rot in improper storage causes an excess of moisture, due to the drying up of the rotting tubers. This excess moisture condition, together with the added facility with which bacteria and decay fungi may enter the already infected tubers, brings about much complication in the form of soft or wet rots, for which the Fusarium disease is primarily responsible. Under the average cellar storage conditions it is quite safe to estimate the loss from dry-rot and its complications at from one to five per cent.

When Soils Cease to Produce.

The trouble with soils when they cease to produce as they did when new is not that elements of plant food are actually exhausted from the soil, but the necessary forces for the liberation are exhausted. One of these forces is bacteria. It is estimated that in the common soil there are 150,000,000 bacteria to the ounce. These bacteria must have for their food, humus, then they will liberate food for the growth of plants. To be a good farmer one needs to grow legumes and other cover crop plants to turn under for humus, and to encourage these beneficial bacteria to perform their functions in the soil.

Success Further Down.

In many instances the yield of gardens can be increased by simply getting down a few inches deeper with fork or spade. The French gardeners can give Americans many lessons in this respect. The soil should be pulverized, but work should not be commenced too early. Plowing the ground while it is too wet will cause the soil to pack in solid lumps. Good land is almost ruined in this manner.

SEE and TRY a DE LAVAL Cream Separator

We do not believe that a farmer who knows anything about farm machinery could be induced to buy any separator other than a De Laval after he had seen the latest improved De Laval machine and had given it a trial.

It is a fact that 99% of all separator buyers who do SEE and TRY a DE LAVAL machine before buying, purchase the DE LAVAL and will have no other. The 1% who do not buy the DE LAVAL are those who allow themselves to be influenced by some other consideration besides real genuine separator merit.

If you are thinking about buying a cream separator we will consider it a favor if you will permit us to set up a De Laval for you on your own place and have you give it a fair trial.

You will be under no obligation to buy the machine if it does not make good all our claims, and should you decide to keep it and cannot conveniently pay cash, you may do so on such easy terms that it will actually save its cost while you are paying for it.

FOR TEN DAYS

Beginning Friday, Mav 16th.

KENTUCKY NEWS.

Bedford, Ky.—A small tobacco crop may be expected of Trimble this year. The plants are being destroyed by a worm which is cutting the plant off at the ground.

There is quite an epidemic of whooping cough in this community at this time and the disease is in a very severe stage and is hurting the victims very bad. —Dirigo Cor. Adair News.

As an example of what close attention to poultry will do, Mrs. Allie Knowland, of near Paris, has 225 young chickens, all hatched by hens, and has 18 hens yet setting. She has in four weeks sold 138 dozen eggs, and has used 37 dozen eggs for the family table.—Nicholas Democrat.

Carlisle, Ky.—The wool and lamb market is dragging here. Some dealers, who this time last year had purchased heavily, say they have not bought a pound of wool and but few lambs, the farmers refusing to take 18 to 20 cents for wool and 6 to 6½ cents for lambs.

Mrs. Chas. Tinsley had the misfortune of losing 150 hens and eggs and eighteen turkey eggs last Wednesday. Mr. Tinsley's calf did not get enough hay, so the calf went to the hen house and ate the straw in the hen nests. The straw did not stop the calf's hunger, so it broke up ten setting hens and one turkey and ate the eggs.—Allen County Times.

Mr. Geo. Kreitz, one of the progressive agriculturists in this section, who owns over a hundred acres of the choicest Mason county land, and knows how to cultivate it properly, too, predicts fine crops this season. He says all the farmers here are well up with their work, and conditions are satisfactory with the one exception of tobacco plants, which are not doing very well.—Maysville Bulletin.

...come from the Western ...about Beulah ...that

One of the popular and talented young ladies of Jackson, about two weeks ago, played a very cruel joke on her mother, which we think for the real spice involved should be repeated to our readers. She accidentally found a love-letter that her father had written to her mother in their halcyon days of courtship, and, going to her mother's room all aglow with the happiness that comes to one in the act of pulling off an excellent joke she took her seat near her mother and told her of receiving the letter from her sweetheart and began to read to her mother, substituting her own name and the name of her lover for the names of her mother and father. Her mother raved with anger and stamped her feet with disgust, forbidding her daughter to have anything to do with the man who would write such nonsensical stuff, and snatched the letter from the young lady's hand. Suddenly the home became so quiet that even the mother could hear the snow flakes falling in the back yard on that April morning. —Jackson Times.

RAISING DRAFTERS.

Success With Horses Demands a Wise Selection of Breeding Stock.

In raising draft horses a wise selection of breeding stock is of the most importance. Drafters of heavy weight, good action and proper conformation cannot be produced from undersized, inferior or unsound breeding stock, writes M. Watson in the National Stockman. First of all, a good brood mare should be sound and free from all defects. A sound mare of fairly good, wide drafty type, even though she may not be so very large, if mated with the right kind of stallion will produce drafters of a high order. Such a mare, however, should not be bred to a stallion of extreme weight. Better results will follow if she is bred to the rugged, heavy boned stallion of medium draft size and the fillies from ...crossbred to the heavy ...es the ...importcount of ...es that ...nportant ...be of ...ne, and ...should be ...It is a ...t farmers ...on to this ...g a stal...ing their ...to select ...hey would ...ced almost ...and appear...d too little ...the feet and ...le to have ...without good ...und and well ...r was a time ...d, undersized draft stallion was so poor an investment as now. The big, strong boned, shapely fellows are these that will make the money. When I speak of size I do not mean weight alone. Too many farmers are deceived by mere weight. A draft horse at maturity in good condition should weigh from 1,800 pounds to a ton.

In the highest type of draft horse of late years much more attention has been given to quality and action. There is good reason for this. The drafter of good action is much more useful on the farm than the horse whose greatest qualification is simply weight. While the drafter is not a driver and never will be, he should be a good walker and go free and straight at the trot in order to be of the greatest use on the farm. A man who has a pair of mares that move in a straight line and have a good walk does not complain that he cannot get enough work out of his team. Quality is also very desirable. It always attracts the attention of the buyer and makes the horse a ready seller. Not only is it important that the drafter should be wide awake and active for farm use, but it is equally important in the drafter that goes to the city.

Something to Sell.

We know of farmers who never have anything to sell except their crop of tobacco and if they fail on this crop then they hunt up some one to sign their note for a little money to live on or they press their merchants to wait on them for supplies until their hard luck is over. Now if anything happens to this class of people to set them back a few hundred then they have their nose to the grindstone for years. Why, just because they depended upon one money crop as a source of money thru the entire year. Better have a little thought of tomorrow; better work a little harder and use brains a little more. I know other farmers who have something to sell every season in the year, in fact they go to market every week in the year. They never run a bill, and are always buying something for the home and are never behind with their bills. The opportunities of these two different classes are the same. So there must be some difference in their system of management. One family never does anything without counting the cost—the other family has few high ideals they never make any comparison to learn wherein they fail to succeed. They never make an excursion across the country looking for new methods. They need to wake up and plan to always have something to sell.—Owen Co. Democrat.

The streets in Burlington are getting very dusty.

The continued dry weather is putting the hay crop in jeopardy.

The weather the past week has been very favorable for the production of cut worms.

For Sale—A good, large, aged work horse. Apply to G. T. Gaines, near Burlington.

The music at the school play soon to be given will be worth going miles to hear.

If you have a bed of nice tobacco plants take good care of them for your neighbor may need them if you do not.

Ed. Hawes has the largest poultry yard in this vicinity, and is getting a large quantity of hen fruit daily.

Burlington is now in possession of its full shade for protection against the scorching rays of the summer sun.

For Sale—Four year old saddle and harness horse, 15 hands high, perfectly safe. Apply to G. W. Gaines, Bullittsville.

William Gaines, carrier on R. D. No. 3, is taking his annual vacation—that is he is farming for a few days while his brother Chas. is subbing for him.

When Donerail came out in the lead in the derby at Louisville, last Saturday, the talent went up in the air as he was not considered in the contest.

The ground is getting too hard to be put in condition for planting corn, and some of the farmers will have to suspend that work until it rains again.

Two hundred and fifty-four suits have been brought against the Adams and American Express Companies in Hardin county for alleged violation of the Webb law.

The Hebron Masonic and Grange lodges have combined and will give a strawberry supper on the night of June 7th for the purpose of buying a new carpet for the hall.

Several of the local gardeners are preparing to plant the second time, the frost last Saturday and Sunday nights having killed all the truck they had growing.

Hon. R. B. Brown, of Warsaw, participated in an automobile accident several days ago. Fortunately no one was injured altho one of the rear wheels was torn off of the machine.

Lame back is usually caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the back for which you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly. Adv.

The protracted meeting at the Christian church will continue this week. The gentleman who is doing the preaching is entertaining and instructing his congregations. All are invited to attend the services.

Now is the time to get rid of your rheumatism. You can do it by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and massaging the parts freely at each application. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

John J. Howe, candidate for Commonwealth's Atty. will speak in Petersburg, at 7 p. m., Monday, May 19th, in Belleview at 7 p. m., Tuesday May 20. All candidates for that office are requested to be present

The candidates for the various county offices have their petitions and are now canvassing the county obtaining signatures of the voters. The voters are kicking about the petitions, saying that they destroy the secret baliot.

B. B. Hume's race mare has another fine Dick Wells colt by her side for which he would ask a long sum if any person should try to buy it. He expects his coming two year old to show what she can do on the track in the next few months.

The turkey trot is about as popular in Cincinnati as the turkey walk which has become so fashionable since the street car strike began last Saturday night. A general strike on the part of the street car men is about as inconvenient as a flood while it lasts.

The town of Florence is considerably worked up over the elopment of Harry Tanner with the wife of his neighbor, Geo. Swim, last Friday afternoon. Mr. Tanner leaves a wife and four children. At last accounts all efforts to locate the parties had been fruitless.

Warning to candidates and others! The carriers on country mail routes say that it is positively against the law for any one to put cards, advertising matter, etc., in mail boxes. Uncle Sam will make an example of one or more soon if the practice is continued.—Ex.

J. E. Smith lost a fine Castillion three year old mare one night last week. She was worked all day Friday and was turned out in the pasture after being fed at night and the next morning she was found dead in the pasture, supposed to have died from an attack of colic.

It is rather embarrassing to a candidate to have to ask voters to sign his petition in order that he may get his name on the ballot for the coming primary election. That part of the primary election law is tomfoolery of the rankest brand, and shows what useless measures legislators will place upon the books.

The water in the creeks has been very clear the past ten days and those who have visited the streams during that time report seeing hundreds of fine fish but in no instance were they able to induce them to take the hook, and the fishermen are looking forward to great sport when the fish take a notion to begin biting again.

It is thought that the Senate will not get through with the tariff bill before the first of August. There will be some able and warm discussions of the bill before a vote is taken by the Senate, and it now appears that the margin by which it will be adopted will be very small, and the Democrats will breath easier when they know the measure is safe.

You don't have to understand foot ball to like the play to be given by the High school as announced in another column. If you understand what it means to be tempted and stand squarely for the right, if you appreciate the healthy association of young lives toushed by tender sentiments, if you enjoy good, clean, wholesome fun wherever found, you will like this play.

It would surprise you to know of the great good that is being done by Chamberlain's Tablets. Darius Downey, of Newberg Junction, N. B., writes, "My wife has been using Chamberlain's Tabiets and finds them very effectual and doing her lots of good." If you have any trouble with your stomach or bowels give them a trial. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

County Judge Cason devoted last Thursday to the trial of the suit of John Jones, of Idlewild, against Huey Aylor, of Hebron. The suit was brought for the recovery of pay for hauling milk, Mr. Jones claiming that Mr. Aylor had made himself responsible to him for the pay for hauling of milk for a company for which Mr. Aylor had acted as agent in securing the milk of several of the farmers in the Idlewild neighborhood. The court heard the evidence in the case and arguments of counsel and then took the case under advisement.

The pony driven by Master Joseph Hogan and sister, of Hebron neighborhood, scared at an auto standing on the side of the street in Burlington, last Saturday afternoon and in attempting to pass the buggy in which Mr. and Mrs. Hogan were riding, struck one of the rear wheels on the vehicle and mashed it down. In the muxup the pony was thrown and Master Joseph manifested great distress, thinking his pony was killed. No doubt the collision prevented the pony from running off with the children.

Last Sunday County Judge Cason was notified from the North Bend neighborhood that the body of a drowned woman had been caught in the river at that point. The message called to mind the drowning of some Newport parties the Sunday before and Mr. Cason recalled that the name of one of the women was Ada Hitzman. Getting a description of the woman and her clothing the Judge was soon in communication with the authorities in Newport, who claimed the body was Ada Hitzman, and requested Judge Cason to have the persons who had charge of the body to hold it for them, which was done.

Noah Scales, colored, killed another colored man on the street in front of H. G. Blanton's stable in Erlanger last Sunday about five o'clock. The negroes were drinking and the one who was killed and Scales had some words and in spite of Scales' warning not to crowd upon him he kept coming when Scales struck him across the forehead with a large club, crushing the skull. The negro survived several hours after receiving the blow. Scales made his escape and has not been captured. According to reports Scales acted in seifdefense. Scales has been in numerous troubles before but had never inflicted any serious injuries on anyone before.

The old Dr. Elijah Grant home in Petersburg was destroyed by fire last Thursday morning about two o'clock. The property was owned and occupied by Doc Rice and was one of the most desirable locations for a residence in the town. Mr. Rice was awakened about two o'clock by a noise in the kitchen and when he went to ascertain the cause he found all that portion of the building in flames. The citizens of the town responded promptly to the alarm and worked hard to save a portion of the building but in vain, although about all the contents were saved. The property was valued at $2,000 and $1,000 insurance was carried on the building and contents. The origin of the fire is unknown but supposed to have resulted from a defective flue.

FOURTH-CLASS POSTMASTERS

Must Stand Competitive Examinations to Hold Their Jobs.

Washington, May 7.—All fourth-class postmasterships, except those paying less than $180 a year, were thrown open to competitive examinations by an executive order issued today by President Wilson These positions are retained in the classified service, but about 50,000 incumbents who were "covered" into the classified service by executive orders of previous Administrations will have to meet all comers in competitive examination in order to hold their positions with civil service protection.

In a statement making this order public Postmaster General Burleson announced that it was the purpose of President Wilson and himself to extend the classified service to include presidential postmasters of the second and third classes probably within a year. This may require legislation by Congress, he said. His plan, which will be laid before the President, will provide for a qualification test for incumbents and applicants "in keeping with the importance of the offices."

Burning The Trash.

There is always more or less of it, and a good way to dispose of old paper and other light rubbish is to have a cylinder of poultry wire, large enough to hold a good sized accumulation made by fastening the ends of the cut wire together, and into this the trash can be piled, a section of the wire laid over the top, and the match applied with perfect safety. This cylinder can be carried about, and the trash burned wherever liked. Spring is a good time to begin to keep things clean. Put whatever will decay in the manure heap, bury the bones and burn the rest. It is being generally preached now that the manure heap must be covered with screen wire, to keep the flies from breedling in it; but there are disinfectants and other methods of killing the eggs and maggots. Clean up the premises now, and give the spring a chance to beautify your surroundings.

The County Candidate.

People, behold the candidate. He cometh forth like a flower in the early morning, sweet, refreshing and entertaining; he retires at the end of the campaign tired, dusty, quiet and busted.

In the early part of his campaign, his friends fill him up with water, hope and the general atmosphere. Thus early in the campaign, he swelleth up like a toad he walketh abroad in the land like he owned the earth and as though all things were his'n.

He smiles upon all man and woman kind, and sloppeth over with good humor and pleasant jokes. He kisseth the children and scatters microbes among the innocent babies of the country.

Privately speaking he cheweth cloves when he meeteth a preacher, and as he converseth with him in pious tones, he standeth to the leeward and curbeth his breath with a strong bite, talks of the fallacy of infant baptism to one, advocates immersion to another and approves close communion to all.

He slappeth a man on the back in love and friendship, shakes the hand of the pretty woman and begs the support of both. He goeth home late at night to his weary wife and with beery breath, he hiketh forth without breakfast saying: "One of my strong supporters is in town and I must needs see him before he getteth away."

He is gone but a short time, but long enough to have his leg pulled and the dead-beat made happy. He giveth liberally to the church. he contributeth to the man whose house is burned, he bestoweth alms, he signeth a note for a friend, he sendeth a small keg hither and a large keg thither, he yieldeth up his substance with apparent alacrity, he sitteth in the amen corner at church, grunts with the brethren, and sings 'Amazing Grace,' as dolefully as if he was attending a funeral in the Mississippi swamps. In one neighborhood he is a Methodist; in another a Baptist; in another a Christian; in another a Catholic; in another a sinner. He walketh through the corn and tobacco fields, sitteth on the fence, he talketh of the corn, wheat and tobacco; he sitteth on a log in the woods, and speaks of the wonderful growth of the forests and the richness of the land.

He tells secrets to nearly everybody he meets and talks of his opponents and tells the voters of the shortcomings of his opponents, but impresses upon them the importance of keeping it a secret.

This goes on from the day he announces himself a candidate until the close of the election.

After the election, with a downcast countenance, he goeth back of the barn away out in the field, where nobody can see him, and there he kicketh himself and teareth his hair, and throweth his hat up against the wall, and calleth himself bad names, jumps and kicks and goes on until he wearies himself, offers up a prayer and asks the Lord to forgive him for the many lies he has told during the campaign and promises never again to run for office.

He then goeth back to the house, kisses his wife and children and begins life anew.—Ex.

If Japan Fought Us.

Some of the people who are worrying about the drubbing the little brown men are going to give Uncle Sam might feel different would they make a study of the hard times that are now prevailing in Japan. After the war with Russia, the Japanese government set out to create economic independence, partly thru a protective tariff and ship subsidies, but more particulary by direct government aid to manufacturing. Companies with capital aggregating hundreds of millions were organized. The government guaranteed the interest payment on many of these.

For the time being this created a factitious appearance of prosperity. Within the past year, however, it is seen that a nation, like an individual, can't lift itself by its own bootstraps. The growth of manufacturing towns has led to the depletion of the agricultural districts. There are great sections where there are abandoned farms like those on the worn out hills of New England. The result has been a distressing advance in the cost of rice, and half rations among the poor. The condition of the Japanese farmer has become pathetic. In bad years his rice field brings him in $24 per acre, which it cost $36 to produce. Even in exceptionally good years he does not clear more than $1.50 per acre. Eighty five per cent of the farms are mortgaged.

The income of the Japanese people average about $23 per capita. Their taxes take $4.40 out of this $23. They are not in very good shape to invest in the costly playthings of war! It will take the Japs a generation to carry off the burdens of the Russian war, and to adjust themselves to the costly scale of living of modern civilization.

Von Moltke once said that he knew a thousand ways to get a Germany army into England, but not one to get it out. How much true this would be in case of a Japanese attack on this country.

There never was a time when people appreciated the real merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than now. This is shown by the increase of sales and voluntary testimonials from persons who have been cured by it. If you or your children are troubled with a cough or cold give it a trial and become acquainted with its good qualities. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

UNION, KENTUCKY.

Large Crowd Expected.

St. Louis, May 11.—Four thousand delegates and visitors from sixteen States and the District of Columbia are expected in St. Louis this week to attend the Southern Baptist Convention, which will open here Wednesday. Among the prominent guests expected is Geo. W. Norton, of Louisville.

Meeting here at the same time and auxiliary to that convention will be the Women's Missionary Union of the Baptist church. The sessions will be continued until next Monday. Most of the downtown hotels already have stopped taking reservations for the delegates.

One of the propositions to come before the convention is the raising of $1,000,000 as a centennial fund to celebrate the work of Adoniram Judson, the missionary to Burmah. More than $1,000,000 have been raised during the past year by the boards of home and foreign missions.

New Insurance Rates.

The first insurance rates ever promulgated by the State were made effective beginning May 1, by the State Insurance Rating Board. In a communication sent to all the fire, tornado and lightning insurance companies doing business in Kentucky, the board announces, that having waited thirty days after fixing the rates last month and receiving no protest, it now declares the rates finally adopted. These rates are those promulgated as a result of a compromise of the suits in the State and Federal courts to enjoin the previous action of the board. They affect country property and dwellings in the cities. The board declared they will effect a reduction of 17 per cent on premiums in the cities and 20 per cent in the country. They amount approximately to a cut of five cents on all fire rates for city dwellings.—Falmouth Outlook.

The hens that laid so well during the winter, are lower in vitality this spring. They should have special feed and care to build up their strength.

Oil Fields Booming.

Barbourville, Ky., May 11.—Greater activity is now being shown in Kentucky's petroleum fields than during any previous month for two years. At the beginning of the month a total of thirty-five rigs were up and wells drilling in the established divisions of the State, while a large number of rigs were located in spots remote from the proven areas, in an advance movement to widen the area of production. Many new operators have come into the State from the older fields of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, taking leases in most instances in the new districts. Foremen of these new districts are Morgan county, Eastern Kentucky, and Ohio county, Western Kentucky. Developments in these counties have passed the initial stage and there is no doubt about the staying qualities of the wells drilled.

Wayne county continues the standby of Kentucky in production. Recent completions are small in caliber, but the chances of landing a producer, when drilled with regard to the proven area are brighter, perhaps, than in any other pool in the State. Of four recent completions three are in the producing class, while one failure resulted.

TOBACCO GROWERS

Decide to Form National Organization to Protect Common Interests.

Louisville, May 7.—More than 50 delegates to a conference of tobacco growers, held here today, decided unanimously in favor of the formation of a national organization, which will have as its object the protection of their common interests. It is proposed to organize the association by consolidating a number of existing societies. Half a dozen organizations were represented at the meeting. The delegates agree as to the advisability of forming the association, but differ slightly as to the plans. A committee of five was appointed to arrange the details, and this committee will call a meeting when ready to report. C. S. Barrett, President of the Farmers' Union was among the delegates.

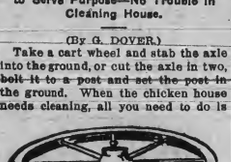
VALUABLE CROP FOR SWINE

Hogs of All Ages Relish Cut Alfalfa When Fed in Slop and Make Excellent Growth.

I have found that alfalfa makes one of the most valuable crops for the hog grower, whether it is pastured or cut up finely and fed with ground feed, writes John H. Dunlay in the Farm, Stock and Home. Last winter when middlings were selling around $30 per ton I cut alfalfa in a cutting box and fed with the warm slop to all my hogs that did not have access to blue grass or the rye fields. Hogs of all ages relished the cut alfalfa when fed in the slop and they made a fine growth.

The alfalfa was cut to about one-half an inch in length and then scalded before being mixed with the ground feed. I usually put the cut alfalfa in a large galvanized tank and pour boiling water over it. It is then left to stand over night and if covered will be warm the next morning.

I want to purchase a feed grinder that will grind alfalfa into a coarse meal, and if I do this I think the hogs will find it even more palatable. Alfalfa contains about the same amount of protein as found in the best middlings and at the same time it seems to act as a tonic for all the hogs that have access to it.



It is not too late to sow alfalfa and it will pay you to sow at least a small patch even if you only feed the hogs the cured hay during the winter months, when they do not get green feed. When there is a good supply of alfalfa, it makes the best of forage crops for hogs of all ages. Alfalfa, when pastured, should be allowed to get a good start and should not be pastured the first season. In this way it gets a good start and is able to stand pasturing better the next year. It is well to ring the hogs or take them from the alfalfa field if the ground gets wet or muddy.

to lift the wheel off and it is out of the way. Then, too, if there is a chicken on the other side from you that you wish to catch, just turn the wheel around.

SUMMER RATION FOR HORSES

Good Combination is Corn, Bran and Little Oilmeal—More Carbohydrates and Less Protein.

If corn must be fed to the horses, grinding it will not pay, unless the horses have poor teeth, in which case it might be advisable. Feeding the ear or shelled corn would be the more desirable method of feeding.

Crushed corn and cobmeal is not as good because of the cost of crushing, and the amount of food value secured from the cob is so small that it does not make up for the energy required to digest so much crude fiber.

A combination of corn, bran and a little oilmeal make a good summer ration for horses. Feeding a 1,000-pound horse about ten pounds of corn and three pounds of bran per day would be equivalent to fourteen pounds of oats, although it contain a little more carbohydrates and less protein, thus making a little wider ration. A small amount of oilmeal would offset this, however.

GENERAL FARM NOTES

Rotate your garden crop.

Give the radishes just a little shade.

Plant early smooth peas. Alaska is a good early variety.

The farmer is known by the amount of clover seed he sows.

A set of steel drills will soon pay many times their small cost.

One way to increase the profits of your farm is to build a silo.

Fine cabbages follow beans but do not grow well after potatoes.

Alfalfa pasture and hogs make a combination that is hard to beat.

Sweet peas should be planted as soon as the ground can be worked.

Do not plant your potatoes in the same old place and invite the scab.

Save muscle and time when cutting bands by having a keen-edged knife.

Plant radishes remote from the track infested by the wire-worm last year.

When short of room, train squash vines on trellises or wire fence; they are good silmbers.

Plant cucumbers in level rows; in dry seasons they do better than when grown in elevated beds.

Onions, beets, spniach, radishes and lettuce may be sown as soon as the ground can be worked easily.

Lettuce should not be where the soil is too dry or light. Parsley will stand such soil a little better.

No. 30,400.

Tr. Rec. Over Half Mile Track 2:19

Season 1913, at H. G. Blanton's stable, Erlanger, Ky. Walter Winans' service fee for 1913 will be $10.00 to insure a living colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with after being bred.

Walter Winans is a solid chestnut sorrel, is 16 hands high, weighs 1,250 lbs. and if right fat would weigh 1,300, his disposition is perfect. His colts are uniformly good size and color, and the only one of his get that has been raced has a record of 2:11.

Walter Winans' breeding is fashionable, and is in line with the greatest sires in the world, being a half brother to the great Cresclus, 2:02½, and the fine breeder, Wilstar, 2:17½, whose colts always sold for high prices throughout Indiana and Ky.

Walter Winans sired by Robert McGregor 647, dam Rilee, (dam of Kate Ham, 2:28½, etc.) by Hotspur, Jr., 3612; grandam Tugles by Mainbrino Gift, 584, etc. (see Rilee Vol. 18) bred by Geo. H. Ketcham, owner and breeder of the celebrated Cresclus.

Robert McGregor 747 was sired by Major Edsall, 2:11, dam by Nancy Whitman.

Colts by Walter Winans from good mares will be large, and if not great trotters, will make fine road Horses, Persons living at a distance can secure pasture for mares.

SEASON 1913

I wish to call the attention of the breeders of High Class Saddle and Harness Horses of Northern Kentucky in regard to

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS,

2844 A. S. B. A.
Bracken Chief (2148)
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Mambrino Le Grande 99

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1,200 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet,

By BRACKEN CHIEF 2148

by Harriron Chief 1606 by Clark Chief (89), dam, Kit Hardy (2830) by Indian Chief 1718),

1 dam Miss Berry 4084 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99) 2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112. 3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor)

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1908 and sold for $3,600, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harried and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show, Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmons? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest price Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief's and his sons and grand-sons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzstmmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible should any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Best's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners,
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

The Fine High Bred Percheron Stallion,

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1913 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs., and is 17¼ hands in height. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

PRINCE OLSEN was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., where he was foaled in 1907, and from whom he was purchased by me in 1911, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olson was a high bred registered Percheron mare. I feel that farmers and breeders will make no mistake in breeding to Prince Olsen as it means a good, strong colt that will meet every requirement on the farm. One of the lacking features of our horses is the size and strength. With, the well bred Percheron like Prince Olsen these essentials are fully incorporated.

Come and see the horse and inspect his good points and you will breed to him.

Two Fine Young Jacks,

Ben and Dewey.

BEN is a black jack with mealy points. 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ears, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Kentucky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. Service fee $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine jack, five years old, and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Take a look at them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Stop Walking In Your Kitchen

Save Your Strength, Health and Beauty with a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet

THE HOOSIER SPECIAL

Every physician will tell you that long hours of INDOOR WALKING AND STANDING are extremely injurious for housekeepers as well as for women in the business world.

You spend hours on your feet every day walking back and forth between pantry and cupboard and kitchen table collecting supplies and cooking utensils and standing over the kitchen table.

You are wearing yourself out needlessly, for we have a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet ready to deliver into your home today.

In the Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet everything you need in cooking is within reach of your own arm. You can get it, use it, and return it to its place while sitting on a comfortable stool.

Your flour is in a handy bin with a sifter attachment; your sugar in another; other supplies in the convenient glass container with which the Hoosier is equipped.

Dishes go in one cupboard; pots and kettles in another; bread and cake are kept in a splendid metal lined special drawer.

There are clean towel and cutlery drawers; hooks for small utensils; a bracket to hold your rolling pin and a clock-face want list to keep you from forgetting necessary supplies.

A beautiful aluminum topped table, 40 inches square, is kept clean by simply wiping with a hot cloth—no staining, rusting or discoloration.—Another little feature that lightens labor.

This business management of your kitchen saves hours of time—women who own a Hoosier have the rest and recreations that make life worth living.

Instead of wearing themselves out they are rested and happy. They have made housework the pleasant, congenial, comfortable occupation it ought to be.

Call at our store and let us show you the Hoosier and explain it to you. You incur no obligation—we are glad to demonstrate.

Rev. Edgar Riley, of Burlington, candidate for re-election as school superintendent of Boone county, spent Friday here in the interest of his candidancy, and made a splendid address at the opera house that night.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Holman, of Owenton, were guests of her parents Judge and Mrs. Charles Strother a part of this week, coming from Harrodsburg, where they had been attending the funeral of Mr. Holman's mother.

W. P. Beemon, of near Burlington, who so efficiently served as the deputy county assessor last year, was here the first of the first of the week in the interest of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for county assessor.

Dr. and Mrs. Robt. H. Herndon, of Ludlow, spent the past week here with his brother-in-law J. G. Tomlin, returning home in their auto Tuesday. Dr. Herndon is having a handsome residence erected at Ft. Mitchell, where he will reside and confine his practice.

Hon. J. T. Earl, who represented this district on the State Board of Equalization, mentions that the Boone county assessment this year showed up in fine shape, and was one of the few counties not raised in assessment, and he states that the Boone county showing was better than the general average.

S. W. Bevarly, the efficient and popular agent of the L. & N. Railroad Company at Walton, is taking a vacation for a couple of weeks on account of a severe attack of rheumatism. His position as telegrapher is being filled by Leslie Minor, of Sparta, while the general business is being carefully looked after by the old reliable John W. O'Neal.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Boutwell left Saturday, for Baltimore, Maryland, where he will attend the National Telegrapher s Association as delegate from the council for this quarter. Mr. and Mrs. Boutwell will visit New York, Washington and other interesting points east. Jed Henderson of Delphi, West Virginia, is filling Mr. Boutwell's place as station agent of the Q. & C. Railroad at Walton, expecting to be here for a couple of weeks.

The case of the children against Wm. Littrell for $2,000 damages alleged to have been sustained by the killing of their father M. T. Wilson by Littrell about a year ago, was tried in the Campbell Circuit Court at Newport last week and resulted in a hung jury. The case will come up for trial at Newport again in the fall. J. G. Tomlin and Jno. L. Vest are representing the Wilson children, and L. F. Graziana of Covington, is representing Littrell.

Mrs. Lucian Ryle, of near Verona, died at the Speers hospital in Darton, last Friday, where she went for special treatment recently. Her little baby lived and was brought to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Readnour near Verona, where also the remains of the daughter were taken, and the funeral took place Monday, the services being conducted at the New Bethel Baptist church by the Rev. Kirtley Johnson in the presence of a large number of sorrowing friends. Mrs. Ryle was but eighteen years old and had been married a little over one year.

Walton Chapter Eastern Star had a very enjoyable session last Thursday night when the Grand Worthy Matron of Kentucky, Mrs. Anna O. Young, of Ashland, visited the Chapter and gave an address for the good of the order, stimulating the members by excellent suggestions along the line of improvement of the conferring the degree and other interesting features. After the exercises light refreshments of cake and ices were served.

Hon. John W. Howe, of Carrollton, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney for this the Fifteenth Judicial District, addressed a good sized audience at the opera house here last Friday night, outlining the value of the enforcement of the law and his desire to efficiently discharge the duties of the office if selected as the public prosecutor. Mr. Howe made a good impression and was well received. He was introduced by W. W. Evands, who formerly resided at Carrollton, and his introduction was very complimentary. Following Mr. Howe's address, Temp Graves, of Bullittsville, made his maiden speech, in response to numerous calls, and in a pleasing manner told the audience what he wanted and how pleased he would be if the Walton people would assist him to secure his desire. Mr. Graves also made a number of friends who were glad to meet him.

Jno. L. Vest spent part of the past week in Washington, D. C., in regard to the case of Frank Houston, a former resident of Boone county, who is employed on the Panama Canal, and about five months ago is said to have killed a man whom he charged with invading the sanctity of his home. Houston is charged with manslaughter, and under the present law in the canal zone a man charged with an offense less than first degree murder must be tried before a judge and not a jury. Houston wants a jury trial, and has even been willing to have the charge against him changed to first degree murder in order to get it. But the court denying his appeal, he importuned Representative Rouse to intercede for him with the authorities at Washington, and also employed Attorney Vest to assist in the matter. Under the new Panama Canal administrative act, passed by Congress last summer, Houston would be entitled to a trial by jury, but that act has not yet been put in operation, but Representative Rouse and Attorney Vest succeeded in getting the Washington authorities to cable Col. Goethals, who is in charge of the Panama operations, to advance the operations of the law so as to give Houston the benefit of a jury trial, and unless there are serious objections on the part of Col. Goethals, Mr. Houston formerly resided in the Verona neighborhood and is a son of Robt. Houston who is also located in the Canal Zone.

Later—A telegram was received from Congressman A. B. Rouse, Wednesday morning, stating that a cablegram just received from Panama conveyed the information that Houston was tried May 1st and given 10 years imprisonment.

In as weird an exhibition of the the national sport as was ever seen at the local park the Erlanger ball club defeated the locals last Saturday by a score of 10 to 6. All the breaks from the day before the game was played, were against the home club, Bobby Brady, the Belleview crack shortstop and pinch hitter, was out of the game, while Elza Scott, one of the local catchers, was in Cincinnati, trying to break up the street car strike. Pat Sandford, who had been out of the game several years, and had had no practice at all, was put in to catch and made a grand foozle just as he told the boys he would, and this gave the visitors a chance for a running start. The Erlanger team worked like a machine, and Bentley, who played right field for the visitors, by his sensational fielding, cut off two sure two baggers for the locals. Several timely hits by the visitors aided by the errors of the locals' recruits enabled the visitors to pile up a large score. Several bone-head plays were pulled off by both teams which would have made a considerable change in the final count.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hodges take this means of extending their sincere thanks to their many friends and neighbors for their kindness, to Bro. Nelson for his consoling remarks, and to R. A. Steele, the undertaker, for all their kindness during the sickness and death of their son.

The barn on the farm Hugh Stephens bought of Oscar Hodges was struck by lightning last Thurs day afternoon, and it was burnt to the ground in a very short time. Mr. S. had just put eight horses and mules in out of the rain and had just time to get them out of the building before the roof fell in. He lost 3,500 tobacco sticks, a load of fertilizer and some corn. The building was insured for $200 in the Boone county company.

Owen Hodges died May 10th. He was the only son of Frank and Laura Hodges and was born June 24th, 1892. His funeral was held at the East Bend Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Nelson, before a large concourse of relatives and friends on last Monday afternoon. He was the only child which makes it so much harder for his parents to give him up. He had been a patient sufferer for years, and never did he complain in all his sickness. Surely the sympathy of the neighborhood goes out to the bereved parents in their loss, but they know the one above does all for the best and they can by their walk in life, meet their boy on the other shore where there is no sorrow nor suffering.

IT TAKES MONEY

To Build and Repair Roads and Lots of It.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

We in looking over the various newspapers quite often find lengthy articles on the good road question, and whenever the writer goes into detail as to what it takes to make good roads and the question of raising the necessary funds is discussed, the average reader loses all interest in the article simply because he thinks the next thing is a tax for that purpose. Now, my friends, you can not build good roads nor repair and place them in good condition without taking money and lots of it. I am not going to devise a plan to build these roads nor to raise funds for same, but let me say it would not be difficult to devise a plan the equal of the present law now in force. It appears to me that the people of the State of Kentucky should wake up and take a few lessons at least from our sister States on this road question and see if we can't profit thereby. As a metter of fact, they the people of Ohio and Indiana have had to go deep down into their pockets to build and maintain these roads, but they have something to show for it. The little mite that is being spent on our roads has kept them in a traveling condition provided the weather was good at all times.

The spring rains left the roads of Boone county almost in an impassible condition and remaining in that condition at so long a time is a disgrace to the people of Boone county and state as well. One, for instance, is the road leading from Petersburg to Belleview along the Ohio river. A washout in the above named road near Willoughby creek necessitates a bridge of no small dimension and if I have been correctly informed there is no public money with which to build it. We, the people living near by, could go down into our pockets and make this improvement but the road belongs to the public and is used by the public, and it is the public's place to make these improvements. We have for one become reconciled to the fact that the only way to have good roads is for the people of Kentucky to go down into their pockets and bring forth the coin by the tax route. Our neighboring states across the Ohio are building and repairing their roads by the tax system and by being taxed for such purposes has not made paupers out of them, but on the other hand, has had a tendency to make their people more enterprising, energetic and successful. Good roads, good improvements no doubt create a greater enterprise among the people. Now don't you think it time for the people of Kentucky to arise from their slumbers and keep pace with other states, a place she rightly belongs?

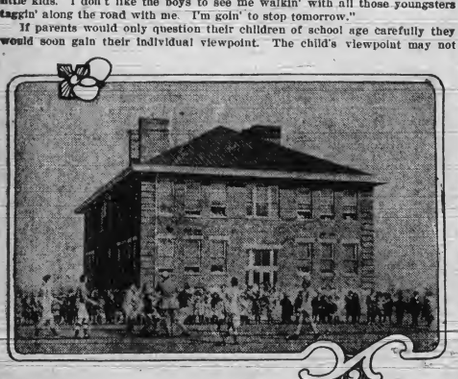
Kentucky's Consolidated Schools

CHILDREN are very much like their parents. They do enjoy a good time with congenial people of their own age. In any one room schoolhouse, no matter how fine it may be, the chances are that there will be very few children in the upper grades. These older children crave companionship and often drop out of school for no other reason. In fact, it is not at all unusual to overhear conversations like the following:



"What's the matter? You ain't going to stop school?" "Yes; I'm goin' to stop. I'm past fifteen." "But you ain't through school yet?" "No; I know I ain't, but I'm tired to death of goin' to school every day with a big bunch of little kids. I don't like the boys to see me walkin' with all those youngsters taggin' along the road with me. I'm goin' to stop tomorrow."

If parents would only question their children of school age carefully they would soon gain their individual viewpoint. The child's viewpoint may not be well taken; but, nevertheless, it is his or her viewpoint and therefore has value. It is always good policy to SUGAR COAT EVERY EDUCATIONAL PILL. The small school can never afford the pleasure and the exhilaration which large numbers of children of the same school age can give. The big consolidated schools are particularly strong in this hold upon the older pupils.

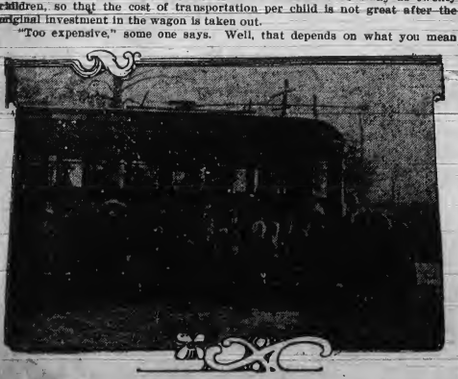
How Can They Get to School?

WHENEVER any one speaks of the consolidation of several schools the above question is at once asked, as though it settled the whole matter for all time to come. There is an almost universal feeling against consolidation in many rural districts. There is a feeling that the children should get to school as their parents and grandparents did.



In several sections where consolidated schools have been established in this state (and there are many such sections at this writing) the pupils go back and forth to school on the interurban cars. Naturally, this plan is a very great success. In other sections where there are no trolley lines wagons are used. Some of these wagons are built to accommodate as many as twenty children, so that the cost of transportation per child is not great after the original investment in the wagon is taken out.

"Too expensive," some one says. Well, that depends on what you mean by expensive. It may cost a little more money to get the children to and from school, but there will be fewer colds and coughs to contend with. There will be fewer children behind in their studies because they could not get to school on account of the weather. It is at least worth looking into, especially as some neighborhoods in the state are using transportation with great success and satisfaction to the general public.

TRANSPORTATION TO GREENDALE SCHOOL, FAYETTE CO.

A Mother's Influence.

There is something about the ties of a mother's love that ever draws the child to the paths of right and rectitude. We mean the mother whose nursery songs and rhymes still ring in the ears of the grown up child. We mean the mothers whose pies and cakes and ham and eggs that she use to cook are still fresh in the memory of her grown up children. We mean the mother who was home every night with her busy fingers at work for the family and whose good night kiss as she tucked the quilt around the child is fondly remembered. These are mothers who have moulded and made the magnificent citizenship of America and these are the mothers whose influences are worth so much to the world.

These are the mothers whose angelic impress has always championed the right and yet we think these good women would epurn the right to vote and the opportunity mix up in politics. We have always thought that a woman loses her power for good insults her dignity, divorces herself from her children and weakens her influence whenever she begins to tamper with politics. We may be wrong but we never thought politics a woman province and believe that when she enters this field she leaves one for which she is better fitted and begins to lose a better influence by having entered the new field.

The earth's sensible atmosphere is supposed to extend forty miles into space, and probably further.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 55 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,

The Young Clydesdale Stallion,

THE KNIGHT,

Recorded Vol. 17 and 38.

His Scottish and American Stud Book numbers (16110) (16143)

THE KNIGHT is a dark brown with gray hairs, blaze face, four white legs, white spot on belly; foaled April 27, 1908, bred by James S. Stenhouse, Fod Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Leitch & Sons, Lafayette, Ill. in the fall of 1911. He was sired by Baronson (10081); 1st dam Princess of Fod the 1st, (17117) by Mains of Arles (10379); 2d dam Lady Madge (14563) by Gallant Poteath (8638); 3d dam Lady Darnly (7272) by Darnly (222).

This horse is a low set, thick well built horse, over 16 hands high, and weighs 1670 lbs. He stands on the best of feet and legs with a splendidd top; he also has rare good action.

This horse was a prize winner last fall at the Indiana and Illinois State Fairs—word to the wise. Remember that the Clydesdale is the coming popular horse for the American farmer, the result of experience and education.

I will give a cash prize of $15.00 for the best weanling colt regardless of sex, sired by The Knight and to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home in the fall of 1914.

This horse will be allowed to serve a number of good mares at the nominal sum of $15.00 to insure a live foal, money due when the fact is known or mare parted with. He can be seen at all times at the place of Wm. Ackmyer, one mile west of Bullittsville on the Bullittsville & Dry Creek pike.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Don DeGozee

The Belgian Draft Horse, foaled in 1908, will make the present season Monday and Tuesday of each week, after April 21st, at W. J. Rice's stable, Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at E. J. Aylor's stable, one and one-half miles from Hebron, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.

Description and Pedigree.

Don DeGozee, despite his great size and weight, is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He has an light action as a stallion of much smaller type. and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beaut ful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad, flat foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than another draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle, kind workers.

Don DeGozee's dam Della Wire, brown mare, the great draft show mare of Campbell county, Ky., sired by Bayard DeGozee No. 2188, whose Belgian Stud Book number is 21670. bred by Mr. Bailleux, E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (312), he by Brilliant (709), out of Coatte (703), dam Catherine DeGozee (21083), she by Lion (766) out of Marie (2421).

Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

HOED CROPS IN THE ORCHARD

Practice Results in Severe Damage to Annual Plantings—How to Reckon the Distance.

One of the most prolific causes of loss of nursery stock after transplanting, or for several years thereafter is this common practice of too close growing of hoed crops. This practice, says Rural Life, results in severe damages to the annual plantings. The loss amounts possibly to 10 per cent. The too common practice is to allow no more space between the tree row and the inter-crop rows than between two inter-crop rows, be the inter-crops cabbage, beans, potatoes or corn. Such distances vary from 30 inches to 3½ feet, according to crop used or planted.

In the first place, the distance should be reckoned from the expanded top of the tree, rather than from the trunk at base. The outside of top is a limiting factor, since the allowance should be made for leaning of the same, or possibly all of the tree on the leeward side.

The nearest row to the tree row should be far enough from the row to permit the horse in cultivating to pass freely and without letting harness catch into or come in contact with branches of tree. It will surprise those who have never given the subject much thought, the difference that the lean or incline of a tree makes, when it deviates from a plumb or to a vertical line. In the writer's opinion the space between tree row and the nearest winter-crop row should not be less than four feet the year trees are planted, if two years old, or branched trees are used, and farther each succeeding year.

PAPER POT IS INEXPENSIVE

Little Device Easily Made and Successfully Serves Many Purposes in Starting Seeds.

Here is a little device, so inexpensive and so easily made, and which successfully serves so many purposes in starting seeds and plants, that every one should avail himself of its help.

Take a piece of stiff paper (not necessarily cardboard) and on it draw two circles, one within the other; the outer circle should be six inches radius and the inner one three. Cut out the portion of paper inside the smaller circle, and bring to the line of the outer circle, thus having a shape like a doughnut. Cut this round piece of paper into three equal arcs (or it may be halved for large plants). Use one of these parts as a pattern, and cut as many like it as you want.

On one end of the arc cut into the outer end, three-quarters of an inch from the end, a slit half way across the paper; on the other end cut the same from the inner edge. Then bend the strip and lock the slits together to hold each other as fastenings to the pot.

The little paper pot will be bottomless and will have set in sand or soil, whichever is to be used as ground to grow the things in, and filled as any pot, putting the seed, cutting or plant it in the usual way.

The soil into which the pot is plunged must, of course, be kept moist. When the plant is ready to be shifted to a larger, or transplanted, the paper can be torn off, leaving the ball of soil undisturbed, and the plant will feel no shock of removal.

Many plants cannot stand transplanting by the usual way, and for such these little paper pots are found to be invaluable. Give them a trial.—H. W. M.

POULTRY NOTES

A sick hen is never a paying investment.

Dry coops are cheaper than sick chicks.

For the egg eating habit try darkening the nests.

Little and often is a good feeding rule for chicks.

Poultry success depends more on condition than on breed.

Crossing breeds is a step backward in the chicken business.

If chickens are worth raising at all they are worth raising well.

It is better to cut a chicken's head off than to let him eat it off.

Sell, kill or confine all male birds when the hatching season is over.

Overheating is responsible for more incubator troubles than underheating.

Disinfecting the incubator between hatches is a precaution worth taking.

Feed the little chicks what they need, not what you happen to have on hand.

Don't forget to have a row of sunflowers; the seeds are excellent for poultry.

Remember that water glass solution will keep this summer's eggs until they double in price.

A half pint of carbonic acid in two gallons of water makes a good disinfectant for any purpose.

Removing the cause of disease is more satisfactory all around than doctoring the chicken afterward.

COVINGTON, KY.

Harrison Prince, 3340.

Will make the present season at the stable of G. T. Gaines, one mile from Burlington, Ky., on the Petersburg pike, at $15.00 to insure a living colt.

HARRISON PRINCE is a chestnut stallion, 16 hands high, 4 years old, has a large blaze face, two white feet, and is the perfect type of a saddle horse with fine finish and action a champion in his class from a colt. Harrison Prince comes from a family of show horses on both sides, and is a show horse himself. His sire is Dandy Jim, 2d, 1531, the well known show horse by McChief, 1451, by Rex McDonald, 833, by Rex Denmark, 340, he by Crigler's Denmark by Old Denmark Chief. His dam, Mary Neal, 1605, also a show mare, by Boyd Wilkes by Favorite Wilkes 2d dam, Skiddles, by Washington Denmark, Jr., by Washington Denmark 64.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

In 1914 a premium of $10 will be given for the best and $5.00 for the second best colt of this year's get of Harrison Prince.

His colts were shown the first time last season and were never defeated in the ring.

H. T. GAINES,
Burlington, Ky.

The Impt. Germam Coach Stallion,

PLUTARCH
No. 3183.

Will make the season of 1913 at my stable one mile west of Idlewild, Boone county, Ky., at Ten Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

Will be at W. J. Rice's stable near Burlington, every Saturday.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1912 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

The Fine Black Jack,

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at the same time and place at Eight Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Lanky Bob is 4 years old, 15.3 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur. Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season. No business done on Sunday. Will give mares special attention and pasture furnished at $1.50 a month.

T. E. RANDELL.

THE FINE SADDLE AND HARNESS OR GENERAL PURPOSE STALLION,

HARRY WILLIS,

Is a handsome blood bay stallion with star in forehead, stands 16¼ hands high, was foaled in 1907, and weighs 1,150 pounds. His conformation, individuality, breeding and reproductive qualities all combined in one horse go to make that desire of all conservative breeders—an ideal stallion. He is the personification of pefection, has a fine head and neck, strong, deep shoulders, short back very fine quarters, clean flat legs, good bone, fine mane and tail.

He has a good disposition and fine action, and is an unparalleled breeder.

He will make the season of 1913 at the farm of C. T. Northcutt one and a half miles east of Belleview, Boone county, Ky., at TEN DOLLARS to insure a colt to stand up and suck, the money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

Those who know buy DE LAVAL Cream Separators

Creamerymen—Because they are experts in the handling of cream and know by long experience that the De Laval skims cleanest and wears longest. That is why 98% of the World's creameries use the De Laval exclusively.

Experienced Dairymen—The De Laval is the universal favorite among big dairymen. They know that no other separator will give them such satisfactory service.

Old De Laval Users—Whenever a man who has used an old model De Laval decides to purchase a later style machine he invariably buys another De Laval.

Men Who Investigate—If anyone takes the time to investigate the merits of the various cream separators, either by finding out from other users what kind of service their machines have given or by testing other machines out against the De Laval, the chances are a hundred to one that his choice will be the De Laval. More De Laval machines are in use than any other make. There is a reason. Come in and we will tell you why.

More than 1,500,000 DE LAVALS now in use.

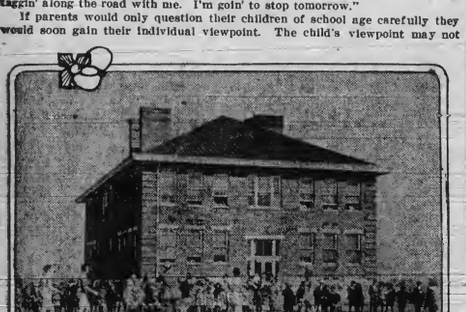
Kentucky's Consolidated Schools

CHILDREN are very much like their parents. They do enjoy a good time with congenial people of their own age. In any one room schoolhouse, no matter how fine it may be, the chances are that there will be very few children in the upper grades. These older children crave companionship and often drop out of school for no other reason. In fact, it is not at all unusual to overhear conversations like the following:



"What's the matter? You ain't going to stop school?" "Yes; I'm goin' to stop. I'm past fifteen." "But you ain't through school yet?" "No; I know I ain't, but I'm tired to death of goin' to school every day with a big bunch of little kids. I don't like the boys to see me walkin' with all those youngsters taggin' along the road with me. I'm goin' to stop tomorrow."

If parents would only question their children of school age carefully they would soon gain their individual viewpoint. The child's viewpoint may not be well taken; but, nevertheless, it is his or her viewpoint and therefore has value. It is always good policy to SUGAR COAT EVERY EDUCATIONAL PILL. The small school can never afford the pleasure and the exhilaration which large numbers of children of the same school age can give. The big consolidated schools are particularly strong in this hold upon the older pupils.

ATHLETICS, MAYSLICK CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL, MASON CO.

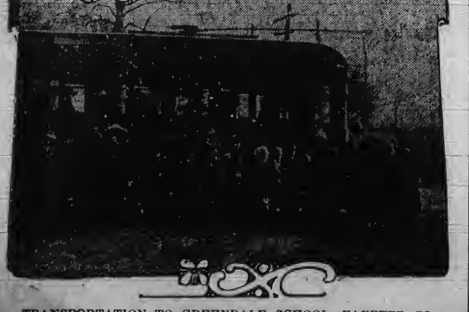
How Can They Get to School?

WHENEVER any one speaks of the consolidation of several schools the above question is at once asked, as though it settled the whole matter for all time to come. There is an almost universal feeling against consolidation in many rural districts. There is a feeling that the children should get to school as their parents and grandparents did.



In several sections where consolidated schools have been established in this state (and there are many such sections at this writing) the pupils go back and forth to school on the interurban cars. Naturally, this plan is a very great success. In other sections where there are no trolley lines wagons are used. Some of these wagons are built to accommodate as many as twenty children, so that the cost of transportation per child is not great after the original investment in the wagon is taken out.

"Too expensive," some one says. Well, that depends on what you mean

TRANSPORTATION TO GREENDALE SCHOOL, FAYETTE CO.

by expensive. It may cost a little more money to get the children to and from school, but there will be fewer colds and coughs to contend with. There will be fewer children behind in their studies because they could not get to school on account of the weather. It is at least worth looking into, especially as some neighborhoods in the state are using transportation with great success and satisfaction to the general public.

A Mother's Influence.

There is something about the ties of a mother's love that ever draws the child to the paths of right and rectitude. We mean the mother whose nursery songs and rhymes still ring in the ears of the grown up child. We mean the mothers whose pies and cakes and ham and eggs that she use to cook are still fresh in the memory of her grown up children. We mean the mother who was home every night with her busy fingers at work for the family and whose good night kiss as she tucked the quilt around the child is fondly remembered. These are mothers who have moulded and made the magnificent citizenship of America and these are the mothers whose influences are worth so much to the world.

These are the mothers whose angelic impress has always championed the right and yet we think these good women would spurn the right to vote and the opportunity mix up in politics. We have always thought that a woman loses her power for good insults her dignity, divorces herself from her children and weakens her influence whenever she begins to tamper with politics. We may be wrong but we never thought politics a woman province and believe that when she enters this field she leaves one for which she is better fitted and begins to lose a better influence by having entered the new field.

The earth's sensible atmosphere is supposed to extend forty miles into space, and probably further.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

The Young Clydesdale Stallion,

THE KNIGHT,

Recorded Vol. 17 and 38.
His Scottish and American Stud Book numbers (16110) (16143)

THE KNIGHT is a dark brown with gray hairs, blaze face, four white legs, white spot on belly; foaled April 27, 1908, bred by James S. Stenhouse, Fod Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Leitch & Sons, Lafayette, Ill. In the fall of 1911. He was sired by Baronson (10881); 1st dam Princess of Fod the 1st, (17117) by Maine of Aries (10379); 2d dam Lady Madge (14553) by Gallant Poteath (8638); 3d dam Lady Darnly (7272) by Darnly (222).

This horse is a low set, thick well built horse, over 16 hands high, and weighs 1670 lbs. He stands on the best of feet and legs with a splendidid top; he also has rare good action.

This horse was a prize winner last fall at the Indiana and Illinois State Fairs—word to the wise. Remember that the Clydesdale is the coming popular horse for the American farmer, the result of experience and education.

I will give a cash prize of $15.00 for the best weanling colt regardless of sex, sired by The Knight and to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home in the fall of 1914.

This horse will be allowed to serve a number of good mares at the nominal sum of $15.00 to insure a live foal, money due when the fact is known or mare parted with. He can be seen at all times at the place of Wm. Ackmyer, one mile west of Bullittsville on the Bullittsville & Dry Creek pike.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Don DeGozee

The Belgian Draft Horse, foaled in 1908, will make the present season Monday and Tuesday of each week, after April 21st, at W. J. Rice's stable, Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at E. J. Aylor's stable, one and one-half miles from Hebron, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.

Description and Pedigree.

Don DeGozee, despite his great size and weight, is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He has as light action as a stallion of much smaller type, and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad, flat foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than another draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle, kind workers.

Don DeGozee's dam, Della Wire, brown mare, the great draft show mare of Campbell county, Ky., sired by Bayard DeGozee No. 2188, whose Belgian Stud Book number is 21670, bred by Mr. Bailleux E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (312), he by Brilliant (709), out of Coatte (703), dam Catherine DeGozee (21083), she by Lion (766) out of Marie (2421).

Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

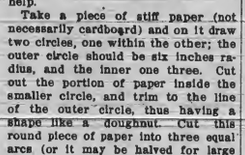
HOED CROPS IN THE ORCHARD

Practice Results in Severe Damage to Annual Plantings—How to Reckon the Distance.

One of the most prolific causes of loss of nursery stock after transplanting, or for several years thereafter is this common practice of too close growing of hoed crops. This practice, says Rural Life, results in severe damages to the annual plantings. The loss amounts possibly to 10 per cent. The too common practice is to allow no more space between the tree row and the inter-crop rows than between two inter-crop rows, be the inter-crops cabbage, beans, potatoes or corn. Such distances vary from 30 inches to 3½ feet, according to crop used or planted.

In the first place, the distance should be reckoned from the expanded top of the tree, rather than from the trunk at base. The outside of top is a limiting factor, since the allowance should be made for leaning of the same, or possibly all of the tree on the leeward side.



The nearest row to the tree row should be far enough from the row to permit the horse in cultivating to pass freely and without letting harness catch into or come in contact with branches of tree. It will surprise those who have never given the subject much thought, the difference that the lean or incline of a tree makes, when it deviates from a plumb or to a vertical line. In the writer's opinion the space between tree row and the nearest winter-crop row should not be less than four feet the year trees are planted, if two years old, or branched trees are used, and farther each succeeding year.

PAPER POT IS INEXPENSIVE

Little Device Easily Made and Successfully Serves Many Purposes in Starting Seeds.

Here is a little device, so inexpensive and so easily made, and which successfully serves so many purposes in starting seeds and plants, that every one should avail himself of its help.

Take a piece of stiff paper (not necessarily cardboard) and on it draw two circles, one within the other; the outer circle should be six inches radius, and the inner one three. Cut out the portion of paper inside the smaller circle, and trim to the line of the outer circle, thus having a shape like a doughnut. Cut this round piece of paper into three equal arcs (or it may be halved for large plants). Use one of these parts as a pattern, and cut as many more as you want.

On one end of the arc cut into the outer end, three-quarters of an inch from the end, a slit half way across the paper; on the other end cut the same from the inner edge. Then bend the strip and lock the slits together to hold each other as fastenings to the pot.

The little paper pot will be bottomless and will have set in sand or soil, whichever is to be used as ground to grow the things in, and filled as any pot, putting the seed, cutting or plant it in the usual way.

The soil into which the pot is plunged must, of course, be kept moist. When the plant is ready to be shifted to a larger, or transplanted, the paper can be torn off, leaving the ball of soil undisturbed, and the plant will feel no shock of removal.

Many plants cannot stand transplanting by the usual way, and for such these little paper pots are found to be invaluable. Give them a trial.—H. W. M.

POULTRY NOTES

A sick hen is never a paying investment.

Dry coops are cheaper than sick chicks.

For the egg eating habit try darkening the nests.

Little and often is a good feeding rule for chicks.

Poultry success depends more on condition than on breed.

Crossing breeds is a step backward in the chicken business.

If chickens are worth raising at all they are worth raising well.

It is better to cut a chicken's head off than to let him eat it off.

Sell, kill or confine all male birds when the hatching season is over.

Overheating is responsible for more incubator troubles than underheating.

Disinfecting the incubator between hatches is a precaution worth taking.

Feed the little chicks what they need, not what you happen to have on hand.

Don't forget to have a row of sunflowers; the seeds are excellent for poultry.

Remember that water glass solution will keep this summer's eggs until they double in price.

A half pint of carbonic acid in two gallons of water makes a good disinfectant for any purpose.

Removing the cause of disease is more satisfactory all around than doctoring the chicken afterward.

Harrison Prince, 3340.

Will make the present season at the stable of G. T. Gaines, one mile from Burlington, Ky., on the Petersburg pike, at $15.00 to insure a living colt.

HARRISON PRINCE is a chestnut stallion, 16 hands high, 4 years old, has a large blaze face, two white feet, and is the perfect type of a saddle horse with fine finish and action a champion in his class from a colt. Harrison Prince comes from a family of show horses on both sides, and is a show horse himself. His sire is Dandy Jim, 2d, 1531, the well known show horse by McChief, 1451, by Rex McDonald, 833, by Rex Denmark, 840, he by Crigler's Denmark by Old Denmark Chief. His dam, Mary Neal, 1605, also a show mare, by Boyd Wilkes by Favorite Wilkes 2d dam, Skiddles, by Washington Denmark, Jr., by Washington Denmark 64.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

In 1914 a premium of $10 will be given for the best and $5.00 for the second best colt of this year's get of Harrison Prince.

His colts were shown the first time last season and were never defeated in the ring.

H. T. GAINES,

The Impt. Germam Coach Stallion,

PLUTARCH
No. 3183.

Will make the season of 1913 at my stable one mile west of Idlewild, Boone county, Ky., at Ten Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

Will be at W. J. Rice's stable near Burlington, every Saturday.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1912 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

The Fine Black Jack,

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at the same time and place at Eight Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Lanky Bob is 4 years old, 15.3 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur. Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season. No business done on Sunday. Will give mares special attention and pasture furnished at $1.50 a month.

Those who know buy DE LAVAL Cream Separators

Creamerymen—Because they are experts in the handling of cream and know by long experience that the De Laval skims cleanest and wears longest. That is why 98% of the World's creameries use the De Laval exclusively.

Experienced Dairymen—The De Laval is the universal favorite among big dairymen. They know that no other separator will give them such satisfactory service.

Old De Laval Users—Whenever a man who has used an old model De Laval decides to purchase a later style machine he invariably buys another De Laval.

Men Who Investigate—If anyone takes the time to investigate the merits of the various cream separators, either by finding out from other users what kind of service their machines have given or by testing other machines out against the De Laval, the chances are a hundred to one that his choice will be the De Laval. More De Laval machines are in use than any other make. There is a reason. Come in and we will tell you why.

Rearing Young Chicks.

The death rate among young chicks in this state is very high. A large percentage of this loss is due to mismanagement. At the Experiment Station we have had splendid success in raising young chicks.

The vitality of the young birds depends very largely on the vigor of the birds that lay the eggs. We have found that we get the best results from eggs that are produced at that time in the spring when the flock is allowed considerable range on grass and other green crops. During the winter it is a common practice among poultrymen to house their birds closely. At this time fertility and vitality are very low, while later when the birds get out of doors, these qualities increase.

We have found that, in comparison with the incubator and brooder, the hen can very satisfactorily hatch the eggs and care for the chicks. We make the nests out of hay or some material that is fine in texture. Straw is rather coarse, and allows the heat of the broody hen to escape, while the hay holds the heat in the nest.

When the chicks are hatched we keep them in the incubator, or allow them to stay with the mother twelve hours before feeding anything. Then we feed a fine chick grit and supply luke warm water. The next day we give the first feed of fine cracked chick feed. Rolled oats are valuable, but we have had splendid results from feeding nothing but chick feed and grit for the first week. At the end of ten days we feed a finely powdered "grow feed" which has in it beef scrap fish scrap, wheat shorts and other ingredients. The young birds are very fond of this and it makes them grow rapidly. We also sprinkle powdered charcoal in the feed once a day. Clean water is supplied in a sanitary fountain. The water is changed several times a day, as the chicks require a very large quantity of water. When the chicks are about two weeks old we pull a handful of green material where the little chicks can pull off the leaves. Too much green feed will cause scours, but some of it is needed.

The earthworm serves as a host for the gape worm. Therefore chicks that are allowed to roam over infected ground will contract gapes. By keeping our young chicks on ground that has not become infected, we have never had a case of gapes at this Station.

When the chicks are with the hen we provide a warm nesting box separated from the remainder of the flock. If we are brooding the birds under a heated hover we are very careful to keep the temperature at 103 degrees F. while the chicks are young. If the young birds become chilled they will be weakened. Any deformed or weak chicks are killed during the first twelve hours of their lives. It is not a good practice to take weak chicks from the incubator and allow them to run with their stronger mates, because they will contract diseases and infect the entire flock.

If there are no trees in the yard where we put the young birds, we provide shade by making an awning out of feed sacks, or cotton cloth. Sunflowers also make a good shade. If the young birds when they are a month old can run in a cultivated field, it gives them exercise and furnishes considerable feed.

By following these methods we have had a splendid success in the rearing of young birds.

Professor of Animal Husbandry, College of Agriculture.

Spraying Demonstrations.

The perfecting of field methods for the control of truck crop diseases, and the demonstration of these methods in communites where the culture of some crops is rendered unprofitable by outbreaks of disease, has been shown by experience to be one of the greatest aids the Department of Agriculture can render the, truck growers. The leaf blight of cucumbers and cantaloupes has been successfully controlled in Florida. The same work is now being repeated in New Jersey. The spraying of celery has been begun in New York in connection with studies of the problem of keeping the crop in winter storage. Celery spraying in southern Florida, potato spraying in northern Florida, and the repetition of the cantaloupe demonstration are also being carried on under the auspices of the Bureau of Plant Industry. This work is to be extended to other communities and crops as rapidly as men can be trained.

The Six Annual Kentucky Baptist Summer Assembly will be held at Georgetown June 30-July 4. The session will be held in the college buildings, while Rucker Hall will be used as the lodging house. Very low rates have been granted for the meeting, which, with the unusually fine program offered will no doubt attract a large crowd. Rev. J. P. Scruggs, of Midway, is Secretary-Treasurer of the Assembly. He will be glad to give any further information desired.

Representative Stanley has invited Ex-Governor Beckham to assist him in the opening of his campaign, and if the Governor accepts the invitation the opening will be a warm number as they will more than likely go after eachother without using gloves. It looks, from this distance, like the next campaign for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator in this State will be the hottest the party has ever experienced.

Get Busy Teachers.

Under the new law the division Board in each educational division shall meet for the consideration of applicants and the election of teachers, on the first Saturday of June. Therefore, teachers desiring to teach school in the county this year should file their applications at once, with the chairman or secretary of the educational division in which they may desire to teach, so that it may be approved by their trustees.

Governor Johnson, of California, could not be prevailed upon to veto the bill passed by the legislature of that State to prohibit the Japanese owning land in California, and now it is up to Uncle Sam and the Japanese government to determine what shall be done about it. Some think that it will only result in strained relations which will soon be adjusted. The people in Cala., have been knocking the Japanese and the Chinese for a long time and those who have sojourned there any length of time say they have good cause or not wanting them as citizens as they are not at all desirable.

Many of our people will remember the dun pony used by the late Uncle John Hooday, of Harrison Creek, near Claysville, when he carried the mail between Claysville and Mt. Olivet twenty years ago. That same pony, looking as young and active as it did in the long ago, was driven here Friday in a buggy by Mrs. Sallie F. Rogers and daughter, Miss Jennie, who reside on Claysville & Sunrise pike. Quite a number of people called at Hieatt's stable to take another look at the pony, which doubtless felt complimented at the unusual attention showered upon it.—Mt Olivet Tribune Democrat.

Dr. Nunnelly, of Bulittsville, discovered a stranger prowling about his barn lot, last Tuesday, and upon attempting to interview him he discovered he was demented, but was able to tell that his name was Sam Oschner, and that he resided in Ludlow. Dr. Nunnelly informed Judge Cason who got busy with the telephone and soon had Chief of Police Callahan, of Ludlow, coming after the unfortunate.

The drouth is becoming serious, and unless there is a copious rainfall in a very short time all crops and vegetation of every sort will be greatly damaged. The ground is very hard, making cultivation difficult and unsatisfactory. The drouth has retarded the growth of tobacco plants, and the planting of the crop is being delayed. The weather man offers no immediate relief.—Blue Grass Clipper.

Outing parties are now in order.

Several farmers have sheared their sheep.

Some of the farmers are reporting a splendid stand of corn.

In the larger part of this county rain is badly needed.

The blackberry drizzle will be along in time to be recognized as such.

Cut worms are said to be going after the tobacco plants that have been set out.

The Limaburg neighborhood was visited by a fine rain last Thursday afternoon.

There is a fine black locust bloom this year, an indication of a good crop year.

Rev. H. M. Currey will preach at Mt. Pleasant next Sunday morning May 25th, at 11 o'clock.

Don't begin killing the young squirrels too soon. Give them time to acquire some size.

Livestock has been doing nicely the past month as the grass has been of excellent quality.

David Haley requests his Recorder changed from Walton to Covington, to which city he has moved.

Asa McMullen is having considerable wire fence built on the farm he bought of P. A. Ryle several months ago.

The local painters are all pretty busy this spring and the whitewasher is getting in his work in numerous places.

It is about time that the poor man's fruit crop, the blackberry, be making known what may be expected of it this year.

The black bird nuisance has struck the town again, one disadvantage of having so many nice shade trees along the streets.

Some of the farmers are about ready to begin plowing their corn while there are others who are not done breaking land for planting corn.

Public Sale—Mrs. Ada Love will sell at public sale at her residence in Union next Saturday afternoon, a lot of household and kitchen furniture.

It will be worth while to attend the commencement exercises of the High School at Burlington, the program for which appears in another column in this issue.

The Hebron common school leads the other schools this year in the matter of graduates, putting five in the list, while Constance comes second with three.

A heavy wind storm visited the Petersburg neighborhood last Thursday afternoon, leveling trees and demolishing telephone poles. Very little rain accompanied the blow.

The woods are said to be full of young squirrels this spring, and as soon as the law will permit hunters will become numerous and the crop will be reduced at a rapid rate.

The Florence fair board had a meeting last Friday afternoon and disposed of considerable business preliminary to the holding of the annual fair during the last days of August.

The receipts at the local creamery has been increasing in a very satisfactory manner in the past ten or fifteen days. In fact the creamery did a pretty good business all last winter.

Hon. G. E. Carroll, of Walton, passed thru Burlington, one day last week, enroute home from a tour of the northern part of the county, during which he invaded the enemy's bailiwick.

The southern part of the county was visited by a fine rain last Friady afternoon, and, as a result, several of the growers who had their ground ready, got their entire crop of tobacco set out.

Circuit Clerk Maurer is busy making a copy of the record in the suit to settle the estate of Jamerson Aylor, deceased, for the court of appeals. It is going to be a considerable record.

Some of the candidates have made a complete canvass of the county, but they will keep up the fight until the primary election decides their fate, and that will be a little better than three months hence.

The candidates are having no trouble getting persons to sign their nomination petitions, some of them having received more than the required number in two or three days after they began presenting them.

County Supt. of Schools Edgar C. Riley has three commencement addresses to deliver in the next few weeks—One at Independence Kenton county, one at Morehead, Rowen county, and the other at Verona, this county.

The colored Baptist church baptized one convert in the creek near the creamery, last Sunday. A procession was foimed at the church and proceeded to the water while the choir sang, making the music for the procession to march by.

The first of June H. T. Gaines will ship his fine young stallion to Georgetown, Scott county, to be handled by Brock Bros., and those who desire the services of this fine young animal must avail themselves of the opportunity before that date.

Wm. Bentler and Harry Ryle, of Erlanger, put their large auto buses in the passenger traffic in Cincinnati, last week, and made big money hauling passengers. They had a regular route and kept the wheels on their cars turning.

Congressman A. B. Rouse is said to be one of the busiest men in Washington. He gives every appeal to him his personal attention, never ignoring a request no matter how insignificant nor from whom it comes. He recognizes fully his obligations to his constituents.

The sheep-shearing season was inaugurated last week and quite a number of flocks lost their fleeces. The wool growers are at a loss as to what price to expect for their wool this season on account of the reduction of the tariff on wool, which the House has made, the tariff bill now being before the Senate.

W. C. Johnson, of Beaver and candidate for assessor, was in Burlington, last Monday morning, and was about the best pleased man who has struck the town in a long time, and all because of the fact that of the 69 Democrats in his precinct who voted for Woodrow Wilson for President 68 of them had signed his nomination petition.

There never was a time when people appreciated the real merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than now. This is shown by the increase of sales and voluntary testimonials from persons who have been cured by it. If you or your children are troubled with a cough or cold give it a trial and become acquainted with its good qualities. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

The next local event of importance is the high school commencement. There will be three graduates this year, Misses Pauline Kelly and Carrie Porter, of Burlington, and Robt. McGlasson, of Hebron. Arrangements are being made for a lively commencement week and it is hoped that the public will show its appreciation of the local high school by attending the exercises.

Hubert Bachelor's little boy who was so badly hurt one day last week by a horse is recovering nicely. The father was attempting to take the little fellow off of a fence and place him on a young horse behind him, when the animal became frightened and the little boy was dropped. The horse fell and in getting up struck the child inflicting injuries which for a day or so it was thought would prove fatal.

Peter Hager, of East Bend, was in Burlington, last Friday, and reported that a very hard wind storm visited that neighborhood last Thursday afternoon, doing much damage to timber and orchards. Rain enough fell to make a pretty good tobacco season but no one was ready altho some had plants large enough to set out. Mr. Hager is of the opinion that the only way to make the East Bend and Rabbit Hash road passable again is put the road on entirely new ground.

The following is a list of common school graduates who will receive diplomas this year:

Horace Cleveland, Pt. Pleasant.
A. F. Millines, Pt. Pleasant.
Lena Hood, Constance.
Alma Dolwick, Constance.
Lulu Regenbogen, Hebron.
Norma McGlasson, Hebron.
Frances McGlasson, Hebron.
Mary M. Gordon, Hebron.
Floyd Crigler, Hebron.
Thos. M. Riley, Bullittsville.
Katie Hodges, Rabbit Hash.
Walter Brown, Burlington.
Galen Kelly, Locust Grove.
Mary Ransom, Verona.
Fay Ransom, Verona.

The Rouse medal will be presented to Horace Cleveland for the highest grade, and the second honor for which a set of books will be presented was won by Mary Ransom, of Verona.

Wilbert Westbay, son of Timothy and Adda Westbay, died at the home of his parents in Covington, on Wednesday of last week after a few days illness of pneumonia. He was 27 years old on the 8th day of last November and was dearly beloved by his parents and was most highly esteemed by a large circle of acquaintances in Covington as well as in Burlington, his old home. The funeral services were conducted at Highland cemetery chapel at 3 p. m., last Friday, after which the remains were interred in a nearby lot. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful, an impressive testimonial of the numerous friends of the deceased. The bereaved parents, brother and grandmother have the sympathy of many friends and relatives in Burlington and vicinity.

HOW TO GET RID OF THE HOUSE FLY.

The fly is a nuisance beside being a carrier of infectious diseases, and the attempt to exterminate it needs no justification. How can one make one's home, town or city flyless is described by C. F. Hodge, of Clark University, Worcester, Mass. He says that the American public spends $10,000,000 a year for window and door screens in a futile attempt to exclude a lively insect which insists on getting into the house every time the doors are opened. He believes also that the method of swatting the flies, using fly-paper or indoor traps or poisons is ineffective, but may help. His method is to make use in various ways of the conical wire-mesh trap which is familiar to almost every one, in such a way as to turn the tables on the flies and "put them in jail and let ourselves out." The plan involves, of course, the abolition as far as possible of all breeding or feeding-places for flies and the application of the fly-trap mentioned above to garbage-can, to the screens on windows, to the covers on manure-bins, etc., all of which can be done by a little mechanical ingenuity. Garbage-cans are on the market which have a cover larger than the can and not fitting down closely on it so that the flies gain access to the can under the cover and escape through a hole in the cover over which is fixed a fly trap. In fighting the fly, Hodge has found that the essentials of a successful campaign are to transfer the fight against the fly from the house to outdoors, and then to exterminate it. Another essential feature in a town or city is that the households must cooperate. One ignorant or careless home can breed flies enough to vitiate the best endeavors of a whole town. Hodge has succeeded in practically eliminating flies; he uses no screens in windows and doors, and can sit out doors or have windows or doors open at any time without molestation. As flies begin to breed early in the spring and as they breed with marvelous rapidity, the time to arrange for a fly-campaign is in the winter.

Now is the time to get rid of your rheumatism. You can do it by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and massaging the parts freely at each application. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

An Important Piece of Litigation

The suit that will be filed shortly by Mr. Percy N. Booth, John B. Baskin, Mr. Alex G. Barret and Mr. R. A. McDowell attacking certain features of the Thompson Eaton direct primary law is a most important piece of litigation. These attorneys appear nominally for Mr. Gardner, but in fact for the people, who find themselves deprived of some of their most valued privileges. Instead of being a progressive measure, the direct primary law, as now understood and applied, is in some particulars a most reactionary measure. The compulsory nomination of candidates at direct primaries is well enough and is in conformity with the spirit of the time, but the section in the act which seeks to prohibit every man calling himself an Independent from holding office in Kentucky and to prohibit the political parties from naming for any office any but partisans, breathes a bigotry and intoierance that even Tammany Hall has abandoned.

The case will go through the Louisville courts and subsequently to the Court of Appeals. It is brought upon the part of Mr. Gardner, who last year registered as a Democrat, but who now considers himself a Progressive, and who wishes to offer for a Progressive nomination. The only question that should be considered is whether the Progressives want to nominate Mr. Gardner, but the law, as written, provides that if every Progressive in the district wants Mr. Gardner he cannot have the nomination.

The Gardner suit will not, as we are informed, attack the primary law as a whole, but will seek to invalidate only those provisions which call for the violation of the secrecy of the ballot and which stifle the will of the voters.

A suit of a similar character was filed last week in Johnson county by United States District Attorney Geo. DuRelle, Judge Homer Batson and Judge R. H. Winn, acting in behalf of the Republican party, but this is not a party question, and the relation of the parties to it is only a form and has no significance.

These attorneys have as their clients in these cases every forward looking man in Kentucky. The first battle will be in the courts. If relief cannot be secured there the contest will be taken to each succeeding legislature until this law is reconstructed.—Louisville Post.

Isn't it pretty? Dosen't everything match beautifully in color and design? Best of all, look how thoroughly every piece is made, how carefully each piece is jointed, and let me show you with what ease I can pull these drawers out, and hasn't everything got an elegant finish? Do you like the Golden Oak finish in my bedroom furniture, and my Early English Dining Room?

Of course, they have an immense assortment of other woods and designs, such as that new Circassian Walnut you hear so much about, or either Polished or dull finished Mahogany that I thought was so pretty, but I like this the best.

I suppose you are supprised to see this Brass Bed, after I said that I wouldn't own one because of tarnishing. I have cast all my fears to the winds, for I have here an insurance policy that they gave me that guarantees this bed from tarnishing for five years. Dine's carry the Pittsburg Hickson Line, the only brass bed factory who uses that New Lachuer Process called the Damard that will stand the acid test.

I am sure I did much better at Dine's for I had been to several other stores and I finally decided that DINE'S PRICES WERE LOWER and the QUALITY OF THEIR GOODS MUCH BETTER.

I was also pleased in the manner I was treated by the salesman, who was very courteous, and it seemed to be his delight in showing everything and explaining all that was necessary. Now, if you are going to housekeeping, be sure to go to DINE'S. They are well established and you can certainly depend on what they tell you.

Tobacco Plants Damaged.

Carlisle, May 12.—Tobacco growers, gathering here today, report heavy losses from the frost in this section last night. Many tobacco plants were killed and all beds are damaged. All gardens are ruined and will have to be replanted. Ice was in evidence everywhere.

Local fishermen have been "working" hard at Dix river and several good strings have been brought in. We have not seen any of the big ones, but judging by the stories told some of the fish caught would make Jonah's whale look like a sardine.—Danville Messenger.

Last week a jury fined a camper on the river one cent for beating his sister while he was drunk. There is entirely too much sympathy for drunken acts. Because a man is drunk should be no excuse for brutal acts, and a jury that condones such acts cannot be praised for upholding law and order.—Green County Record.

KEEP FARM FLOCK HEALTHY.

Sheep Thrive Much Better When Their Skins Are Clean—Good Dip Also Improves Wool.

Dipping is essential to good flock management. No farmer should attempt to raise sheep without planning to dip them at least annually and in most cases twice a year, according to the advice of H. E. Alien of the Indiana Agricultural college. When sheep are brought to the farm from other flocks, and especially when transported there by railroads, they should be thoroughly dipped before allowed to mingle with the rest of the flock.

Experience has taught sheepmen that sheep thrive much better when their skins are clean, and it has been clearly demonstrated that a good dip increases the quanity and improves the quality of the wool. It is impossible for lambs iufested with ticks or other parasites to thrive properly, owing to the constant irritation set up. In triping to get relief lambs often nibbie at the fleece and swallow small portions of wool with fatal results. A good and regular system of dipping the entire flock is money well evpended. Hence most of the leading flockmasters dip twice in the year—once in the spring and again in the fall.

The object of dipping is to destroy the parasites in the fleece, such as scab mites and sheep ticks and lice, and to prevent subsequent attacks from the same. In England where sheep raising has attained its highest state of perfection, dipping is required by law at least twice a year.

While dipping may not be done at any season, it should, if possible, be avoided in cold weather for obvious reasons. The most favorble time for the spring dipping is a few days after shearing time. By this time the ticks will have largely transferrd from the owes to the lambs. At this fime comparatively little material is needed. If the flock is badly infested it is important to repeat the operation in ten days in order to destroy the insects that have hatched during the interval. The flock should again be treated in the fall, so as to go into winter free from parasites.

Plant Bed Notes.

Plants scarce in some parts of Ohio county.

Some plants in Shelby county, are being set out.

Boyle county, has a healthy looking lot of plants.

Some are fixing tobacco ground in Marshall county. Plants are a little scarpe.

There is some complaint in Anderson county about insects eating up tobacco plants.

A number of tobacco beds in Marion county, have been destroyed by an insect.

Tobacco plants are fine in Breckenridge county, save where eaten by small black bugs.

Some farmers have begun to transplant in Woodford. Cut worms have begun to get in their work.

Reports as to the condition of tobacco plants in Montgomery county, are somewhat discouraging.

There seems to be a general complaint of the scarcity of tobacco plants in Taylor county. Some already having abandoned the idea of planting a crop.

Farmers throughout Madison county, are complaining about the scarcity of tobacco plants. Many plant beds have been completly ruined by a small bug; somewhat resembling a flea, and called the "flea bug."

Reports from over Central Kentucky generally, are that tobacco plants are doing fine, and that with a good season there will be a good acreage transplanted by May 20th.

Tobacco plants in Larue county, seem to be doing fine and are very plentiful. Notwithstanding the low prices received for the last crop of tobacco, there will probably be the usual amount raised there.

It is the opinion of some farmers of Scott county, that there will be an attempt made to put out an unusually large tabacco acreage. The one significant and indisputable fact is that new barns are springing up all over the country. There seems some likilhood of this increased acreage bringing down the prices on tobacco this season.

The Garrard planters are making preliminary arrangements to setting out an extensive acreage in tobacco this season; while the plant-beds are in fine condition with every indication of a good supply at the time of of transplanting, some of the growers of the Hustonville vicinity and over the boundary line in Boyle county, are not so fortunate; it seems a strange bug has made its appearance and is destroying tobacco plants in the beds in an iucredibly short space of time; whole beds are completly demolished in a single night; the growers of the above-mentioned districts assert that if the pests continue their ravages that the tobacco acreage will be materialy reduced in their immediate locrlities because of a consequent shortage of tobacco plants.

Paying One's Debts.

I'll tell you about this thing of paying one's debts. Very few men do it from a spasm of morality. They do it because it pays best in the long run. No man who makes a practice of being dishonest and repudiating his just accounts ever amounts to a hill of beans. In the commercial world they would not get to the quarter pole. The successful business man thinks more of his credit than he does of his wife, for he knows that if his wife leaves him he stands some show of getting another one, but if his credit forsakes him, he is up against it. He can have but one credit. A successful business gambler always makes his word good and keeps his credit inviolate. It is his only stock in trade. It seems strange with all this in mind, young fellows will start out by beating little bills will even borrow fifty cents from a friend and refuse to pay it back. That class of fellows wear a banner that can be seen all over town and everybody is "onto" them. when it comes to paying debts, honesty is the best policy.—Bert Walker.

High Bred Trotting Stallion,

Walter Winans

No. 30,400.

Tr. Rec. Over Half Mile Track 2:19

Season 1913, at H. G. Blanton's stable, Erlanger, Ky. Walter Winans' service fee for 1813 will be $10.00 to insure a living colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with after being bred.

Walter Winans is a solid chestnut sorrel is 16 hands high, weighs 1,250 lbs. and if right fat would weigh 1,300, his disposition is perfect. His colts are uniformly good size and color, and the only one of his get that has been raced has a record of 2:11.

Walter Winans' breeding is fashionable, and is in line with the greatest sires in the world, being a half brother to the great Crescius, 2:02¼, and the fine breeder, Wilstar, 2:17¼, whose colts always sold for high prices throughout Indiana and Ky.

Walter Winans sired by Robert McGregor 647, dam Rilee, (dam of Kate Ham, 2:28¾, etc.) by Hotspur, Jr., 8612; grandam Tugies by Mambrino Gift, 584, etc. (see Rilee Vol. 13) bred by Geo. H. Ketcham, owner and breeder of the celebrated Crescius. Robert McGregor 747 was sired by Major Edsall, 2:11, dam by Nancy Whitman.

Colts by Walter Winans from good mares will be large, and if not great trotters, will make fine road Horses. Persons living at a distance can secure pasture for mares.

H. G. BLANTON, Owner
Erlanger, Ky.

If the little ducks are chilled during the first day or two, digestive trouble arises that usually prove fatal. Over-heating is almost as serious.

SEASON 1913

I wish to call the attention of the breeders of High Class Saddle and Harness Horses of Northern Kentucky in regard to

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS,

2844 A. S. B. A.

Bracken Chief (2148)
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Mambrino Le Grande 99

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1,300 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet.

By BRACKEN CHIEF 2148

by Harriron Chief 1606 by Clark Chief (89), dam, Kit Hardy (2830) by Indian Chief 1718),

1 dam Miss Berry 4934 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99) 2 dam by Weil's Yellow Jacket 112. 3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor.)

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons, and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1908 and sold for $3,600, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Roht. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) as the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show, Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmous? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest price Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief's and his sons and grand-sons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzstmmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible should any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Best's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners,
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

The Fine High Bred Percheron Stallion,

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1913 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs., and is 17½ hands in height. He is a beautiful biack, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

PRINCE OLSEN was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., where he was foaled in 1907, and from whom he was purchased by me in 1911, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligibie to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olson was a high bred registered Percheron mare. I feel that farmers and breeders will make no mistake in breeding to Prince Olsen as it means a good, strong colt that will meet every requirement on the farm. One of the lacking features of our horses is the size and strength. With the well bred Percheron like Prince Olsen these essentials are fully incorporated.

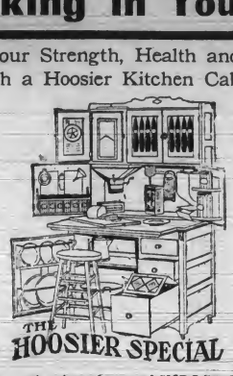
Come and see the horse and inspect his good points and you will breed to him.

Two Fine Young Jacks,

Ben and Dewey.

BEN is a black jack with mealy points. 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ears, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Kentucky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. Service fee $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine jack, five years old, and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.



Both jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Take a look at them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

JOSEPH READNOUR,

Stop Walking In Your Kitchen

Save Your Strength, Health and Beauty with a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet

Every physician will tell you that long hours of INDOOR WALKING AND STANDING are extremely injurious for housekeepers as well as for women in the business world.

You spend hours on your feet every day walking back and forth between pantry and cupboard and kitchen table collecting supplies and cooking utensils and standing over the kitchen table.

You are wearing yourself out needlessly, for we have a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet ready to deliver into your home today.

In the Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet everything you need in cooking is within reach of your own arm. You can get it, use it, and return it to its place while sitting on a comfortable stool.

Your flour is in a handy bin with a sifter attachment; your sugar in another; other supplies in the convenient glass container with which the Hoosier is equipped.

Dishes go in one cupboard; pots and kettles in another; bread and cake are kept in a splendid metal lined special drawer.

There are clean towel and cutlery drawers; hooks for small utensils; a bracket to hold your rolling pin and a clock-face want list to keep you from forgetting necessary supplies.

A beautiful aluminum topped table, 40 inches square, is kept clean by simply wiping with a hot cloth—no staining, rusting or discoloration.—Another little feature that lightens labor.

This business management of your kitchen saves hours of time—women who own a Hoosier have the rest and recreations that make life worth living.

Instead of wearing themselves out they are rested and happy. They have made housework the pleasant, congenial, comfortable occupation it ought to be.

Call at our store and let us show you the Hoosier and explain it to you. You incur no obligation—we are glad to demonstrate.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

Gives the Farmer a Big Boost in making His Farm Prosperous

Did you ever notice that a prosperous farm is invariably well fenced, and is usually divided into small fields by a fence "horse-high, hog-tight and bull-strong"? Why is it?

Because the prosperous farmer realizes that good fences are as necessary to successful farming as fertile seeds, efficient labor and proper machinery. But the wise farmer investigates before he invests. Others just buy and are often "sold." "Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence is made with but one end in view—to give best service for the longest time at least cost. Investigating it costs nothing. Investing in it pays.

Made in Different Styles for FIELD, FARM, RANCH, LAWN, CHICKEN, POULTRY and RABBIT YARD and GARDEN

Every Rod Guaranteed

Ask your dealer for "Pittsburgh Perfect" and insist on his furnishing it. Do not allow him to persuade you that some other fence is just as good. If he doesn't sell it, write us direct.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Brands of Barbed Wire; Bright, Annealed & Galvanized Wire; Twisted Cable Wire; Hard Spring Coil Wire; Fence Staples; Poultry Netting Staples; Regular Wire Nails; Galvanized Wire Nails; Large Head Roofing Nails; Single Loop Bale Ties; "Pittsburgh Perfect" Fencing. Dr. O. A. Vaught, of Fort Thomas, Presiding Elder of the Covington District, of the M. E. Church, spent part of last week here and delivered one of his interesting sermons at the Methodist church Thursday night.

David Haley and family have moved to Covington where they expect to make their home. Miss Kate B. Hudson will move to the property vacated by Mr. Haley having purchased it some time ago from Ryburn Williamson.

Miss Sarah Johnson delightfully entertained a number of her young friends with a social party last Saturday evening. Among the guests were Misses Letta Hall and Monta Arnold, two charming young ladies of Williamstown.

Prof. C. O. Morgan, of Ludlow, attended the commencement exercises of the Walton High School, last Friday, and received a most cordial greeting from his many old friends he having been connected with the school as principal in years past.

Edward Bobbitt of Crittenden, was here Sunday with his little son Russell, enroute to Cincinnati to have an operation performed on the little boy for appendicitis. The operation was successfully performed at Christ's hospital Tuesday.

Moses L. Brunner of Ryle, Gallatin county, is spending the week here with friends and relatives. He is one of the old veterans of the civil war and is suffering from advanced years and infirmities caused by the exposure in the army.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Kennedy, daughter Lillian and son Raymond, of DeMossville, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Campbell, of Richwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Crit Hundley, of Cincinnati, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Campbell, of near Walton, Sunday.

The case of the stockholders vs. the officers of the Burley Tobacco Company, taken to the Court of Appeals from Kenton county, will be heard by oral argument at Frankfort, Monday, June 2d. J. G. Tomlin and J. L. Vest, of Walton, representing the stockholders.

Clarence Menefee, of Crittenden spent last Friday here and in this neighborhood looking up the prospect for tomato plants for the contracted acreage for the Snider Preserve Company, of Cincinnati, he being in their employ. Mr. Menefee reports an abundance of plants and a fine prospect. They have about 120 acres contracted in this neighborhood.

The members of the Walton High School Board of Trustees at their meeting, Monday night employed teachers for the ensuing school year as follows: Miss Nannie Chambers, assisant principal; Mrs. Julia Adams-Rouse, Misses Jean Chambers, Wilella Hance and Mary Vest. There were 14 applicants for the positions. The position of principal has not yet been filled as there are several applicants and the matter was taken under advisement.

W. J. Black, of Big Bone Springs, recently exhumed a mammoth hip bone of a mastadon, one of the prehistoric animals that roamed about the Springs ages ago, and he presented it to Dr. B. K. Menefee who has it on exhibition at his office in Walton. It is the largest of the bones ever found at Big Bone Springs and is one of the finest specimens ever seen in this quarter, and Dr. Menefee prizes it very highly.

Miss Kate Hudson sustained severe injuries Monday by falling out of a stable loft at the residence of her sister Miss Martha Hudson. She had gone to the stable loft to look about some hen's nests and making a misstep, fell to the ground, a distance of about ten feet, alighting on her head and shoulders, receiving very painful bruises. Dr. B. K. Menefee was called and gave the sufferer the necessary attention, and she is now much improved. She was unconscious for some time after the fall.

The Kenton County Wool Growers' Association met here last Thursday to receive bids on their pooled wool. There was quite a number of bidders on hand. At the suggestion of Samuel Hicks, who was one of the bidders, it was decided that all bidders on the wool deposit a certified check with their sealed bids as a guarantee of good faith, and as some of the bidders were not prepared to meet this arrangement the matter was postponed until Thursday, May 29th, when bids will be received. The Boone county pooled wool will be offered to bidders on Wednesday, May 28th, at Walton. It is expected that there will be a goodly number of bidders present on the occasion.

Mrs. Mary Jane Roberts, one of our oldest and best beloved ladies, died at her home here Monday night after a lingering illness incident to old age, she being in her 82d year. Mrs. Roberts was a native of Kenton county, and was a sister of the late Rev. Lafayette Johnson, and was the widow of John H. Roberts, who died here about 18 years ago. Two children survive her, Dr. Harvey Roberts, of Lexington, and Kirtley Johnson, of Walton. The deceased was an excellent lady and had many friends who revere the memory of one whose kind and gentle life has left a lasting impression for good on the community that will be more durable than a monument of granite. The funeral took place Wednesday from Walton Baptist church of which she had been a life long member.

The commencement exercises of the Walton High School, last Friday night, were largely attended, the auditorium being filled to the utmost capacity. The program was a very pleasing one throughout and was as follows:

Music—Tom Hughes.
Invocation—Dr. W. W. Evans, of the Presbyterian Church.
Salutatory Address—"A Common Interest"—Lena Bowlington.
Oration—"The Fields are Green With Promise"—Lambert Rouse.
Vocal Solo—Myra Strother.
Essay—"Success and Failures"—in Life"—Marie Allen.
Class History—Mary Miller.
Music—Tom Hughes.
Class Will—Holton Craig.
Address to Graduates—"The Value of the School to the Community—Prof. A. W. Fortune, Transylvania University, Lexington.
Presentation of Diplomas—Prof. J. G. Prather.
Valedictory—Beulah Rusk.
Benediction—Prof. B. L. Vallandingham.

The six graduates, Misses Lena Bowlington, Marie Allen, and Mary Miller, and Messrs. Lambert Rouse, and Houlton Craig, acquitted themselves with much credit and won good opinions from every one. The work of the school of the entire year has been very satisfactory and shows active, efficient teachers in every department. Prof. J. G. Prather, who has been the principal for the past two years, will go to Harrodsburg this year at a much greater salary. His work here has been practical and along the best lines for securing efficient work from the pupils. The other techers, B. L. Vallandingham Mrs. Julia Adams-Rouse, Misses Helen Dickey, Nannie Chambers, Bertha Jackson, the teachers in expression, and Tom Hughes, teacher in music, deserve words of praise and commendation for the excellent work they have given the school, and the meed of praise is due the school trustees, John C. Bedinger, J. E. Bristow, Charles Ransler, Scott Chambers and John C. Miller, for the untiring attention they have given the school and the economical manner in which they have managed its affairs.

Notice to School Trustees.

We have for sale enough School Furniture to equip five or six classrooms, which we will sell cheap if removed before June 10th. We are building a new school house in which we intend using all new furniture of steel construction, consequently we will sacrifice the old desks, &c., (which are all in fine condition) if sold at once. We have also five or six large heating Stoves, Carved Stone Cistern Covers, out Houses, Wooden Fence 6-feet high around two sides of a hundred foot lot, a frame School House finely finished inside all of which must be sold quick at a bargain. No reasonable offer refused.

GRADUATINC EXERCISES

Of Boone County High School Very Interesting and Instructive.

The commencement period of the High School at Burlington was inaugurated last Saturday night by the presentation of the Sophomore at Library Hall. The characters had been cast with great care, consequently the drama was well rendered and most highly enjoyed by the audience that filled the house but not taxing the capacity. It was the first appearance of several of the young ladies and gentlemen in public and their success was exceedingly pleasing to Prof. Dix and their friends. The singing of the Dix Bros., and Harold Crigler and the dancing of Lennie Eddins and his sister, Miss Atha Mae, were big features of the entertainment. Chas. Fowler, Kirb Tanner and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fowler furnished the instrumental music for the evening.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached Sunday at the Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Campbell, his text being "Christ in you the Hope of Glory." A large congregation was present and the sermon was listened to most attentively throughout. Rev. Campbell made his points clear and convincing and the sermon will certainly result in good, especially to the High School pupils.

A good sized audience assembled at Library Hall last Tuesday night to witness the graduation exercises of the Boone Co. High School located at Burlington, and that the audience was well entertained throughout the evening was evidenced by the hearty applause the graduates received. The program rendered was as follows:

The Home and Home Influence, ... Pauline Kelly
Piano Duet..... Mrs. E. C. Riley and Alberta Kelly.
Athletics..... Robt. McGlasson.
Vocal Solo ....Miss Jeanette Huey.
Farewell to School Days. ..... Carrie Porter.
Commencement Address, ... H. C. Runyan,
Presentation of Diplomas, ... Edgar C. Riley.

The three graduates, Misses Pauline Kelly, Carrie Porter and Mr. Robert McGlasson, had spared no labor in their preparation for the occasion and their efforts were well received.

Miss Jeanette Huey, of Big Bone, sang beautifully, although laboring under the disadvantage of a hall with miserable acoustic properties.

Rev. Runyan, of Latonia, delivered one of his captivating lectand the audience was sorry when it closed. Rev. Runyan is a great favorite in this locality and an announcement that he will lecture always insures a large audience.

In his speech delivering the diplomas Supt. Riley gave some history pertaining to the schools of this county that was highly gratifying to those who are in favor of the advancement of educational interests.

The annual increase in the number of common school graduates in this county proves that the interest in education is decidedly on the upward beat here as it is all over the State.

SCHOOL TAXES TOO HIGH.

At a recent meeting of the legislative committee of the Kentucky Educational Association, Edgar C. Riley, County Superintendent of Boone-co., and Chairman of the committee, proposed that the tax rate for school purposes in Kentucky is too high and should be reduced. If Riley is successful in getting the committee to indorse his position, legislation to that end will be pushed when the Legislature meets next winter. Such a prominent school man as John B. McFerran of Louisville, indorses the position.

"The question of taxation," says Riley, "is one of first importance for our Legislature next winter. At present we pay 35¢ cents for school purposes to our state fund. This should be reduced, and in counties where there is not enough money to carry on the schools, let such counties tax themselves for such purposes. This would stimulate local school interest.

"While Kentucky stands low in the scale of illiteracy, she is fourth in per capita paid for education. For years Kentucky schools have been hampered by this heavy State school tax. Enough money has been derived from this source to carry on schools, but not enough to make an efficient system in many places. This plan would mean a big saving of money to such rich counties as Boone and Kenton and at the same time would stimulate more local interest in schools."—Kentucky Post.

600 Pound Woman Dead.

Chicago, May 22.—Mrs. Mary Peters, weight 600 pounds, who for twenty years was exhibited as a freak, died last night at the county hospital following an operation for the removal of a growth which itself weighed 150 pounds.

The Kenton County Wool Growers' Association met here last Thursday to receive bids on their pooled wool. There was quite a number of bidders on hand. At the suggestion of Samuel Hicks, who was one of the bidders, it was decided that all bidders on the wool deposit a certified check with their sealed bids as a guarantee of good faith, and as some of the bidders were not prepared to meet this arrangement the matter was postponed until Thursday, May 29th, when bids will be received. The Boone county pooled wool will be offered to bidders on Wednesday, May 28th, at Walton. It is expected that there will be a goodly number of bidders present on the occasion.

Mrs. Mary Jane Roberts, one of our oldest and best beloved ladies, died at her home here Monday night after a lingering illness incident to old age, she being in her 82d year. Mrs. Roberts was a native of Kenton county, and was a sister of the late Rev. Lafayette Johnson, and was the widow of John H. Roberts, who died here about 18 years ago. Two children survive her, Dr. Harvey Roberts, of Lexington, and Kirtley Johnson, of Walton. The deceased was an excellent lady and had many friends who revere the memory of one whose kind and gentle life has left a lasting impression for good on the community that will be more durable than a monument of granite. The funeral took place Wednesday from Walton Baptist church of which she had been a life long member.

The commencement exercises of the Walton High School, last Friday night, were largely attended, the auditorium being filled to the utmost capacity. The program was a very pleasing one throughout and was as follows:

Music—Tom Hughes.
Invocation—Dr. W. W. Evans, of the Presbyterian Church.
Salutatory Address—"A Common Interest"—Lena Bowlington.
Oration—"The Fields are Green With Promise"—Lambert Rouse.
Vocal Solo—Myra Strother.
Essay—"Success and Failures in Life"—Marie Allen.
Class Hibtory—Mary Miller.
Music—Tom Hughes.
Class Will—Holton Craig.
Address to Graduates—"The Value of the School to the Community"—Prof. A. W. Fortune, Transylvania University, Lexington.
Presentation of Diplomas—Prof. J. G. Prather.
Valedictory—Beulah Rusk.
Benediction—Prof. B. L. Vallandingham.

The six graduates, Misses Lena Bowlington, Marie Allen, and Mary Miller, and Messrs. Lambert Rouse and Houlton Craig, acquitted themselves with much credit and won good opinions from every one. The work of the school of the entire year has been very satisfactory and shows active, efficient teachers in every department. Prof. J. G. Prather, who has been the principal for the past two years, will go to Harrodsburg this year at a much greater salary. His work here has been practical and along the best lines for securing efficient work from the pupils. The other techers, B. L. Vallandingham Mrs. Julia Adams-Rouse, Misses Helen Dickey, Nannie Chambers, Bertha Jackson, the teachers in expression, and Tom Hughes, teacher in music, deserve words of praise and commendation for the excellent work they have given the school, and the meed of praise is due the school trustees, John C. Bedinger, J. E. Bristow, Charles Ransler, Scott Chambers and John C. Miller, for the untiring attention they have given the school and the economical manner in which they have managed its affairs.

The farmers in this neighborhood are having considerable trouble with their cows on account of clover bloat, and several have lost some valuable ones.

Mr. Harry B. Gerhardt, Field Secretary of Laymen's Missionary movement, of General Synod of Lutheran church, will visit the Boone County Charge and deliver an address to men on the evening of June 5th at Hopeful church at 7:30.

The following guests were very pleasantly entertained at the hospitable home of Mrs. Mallie Beemon last Sunday: M. P. Barlow and family, J. S. Surface and wife, J. P. Tanner and family, P. J. Allen and wife, Rev. W. F. Wallace and wife, Miss Clara Anderson, Lester Aylor and wife, Ed. Bentham, J. W. Powers and this scribe and wife.

GRADUATINC EXERCISES

Of Boone County High School Very Interesting and Instructive.

The commencement period of the High School at Burlington was inaugurated last Saturday night by the presentation of the Sophomore at Library Hall. The characters had been cast with great care, consequently the drama was well rendered and most highly enjoyed by the audience that filled the house but not taxing the capacity. It was the first appearance of several of the young ladies and gentlemen in public and their success was exceedingly pleasing to Prof. Dix and their friends. The singing of the Dix Bros., and Harold Crigler and the dancing of Lennie Eddins and his sister, Miss Atha Mae, were big features of the entertainment. Chas. Fowler, Kirb Tanner and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fowler furnished the instrumental music for the evening.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached Sunday at the Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Campbell, his text being "Christ in you the Hope of Glory." A large congregation was present and the sermon was listened to most attentively throughout. Rev. Campbell made his points clear and convincing and the sermon will certainly result in good, especially to the High School pupils.

A good sized audience assembled at Library Hall last Tuesday night to witness the graduation exercises of the Boone Co. High School located at Burlington, and that the audience was well entertained throughout the evening was evidenced by the hearty applause the graduates received. The program rendered wae as follows:

The Home and Home Influence, ... Pauline Kelly

Piano Duet..... .....Mrs. E. C. Riley and Alberta Kelly.

Athletics..... Robt. McGlasson.

Vocal Solo .....Miss Jeanette Huey.

Farewell to School Days, ... Carrie Porter.

Commencement Address, ...H. C. Runyan,

Presentation of Diplomas, ...Edgar C. Riley.

The three graduates, Misses Pauline Kelly, Carrie Porter and Mr. Robert McGlasson, had spared no labor in their preparation for the occasion and their efforts were well received.

Miss Janette Huey, of Big Bone, sang beautifully, although laboring under the disadvantage of a hall with miserable acoustic properties.

Rev. Runyan, of Latonia, delivered one of his captivating lectand, the audience was sorry when it closed. Rev. Runyan is a great favorite in this locality and an announcement that he will lecture always insures a large audience.

In his speech delivering the diplomas Supt. Riley gave some history pertaining to the schools of this county that was highly gratifying to those who are in favor of the advancement of educational interests.

The annual increase in the number of common school graduates in this county proves that the interest in education is decidedly on the upward beat here as it is all over the State.

SCHOOL TAXES TOO HIGH.

At a recent meeting of the legislative committee of the Kentucky Educational Association, Edgar C. Riley, County Superintendent of Boone Co., and Chairman of the committee, proposed that the tax rate for school purposes in Kentucky is too high and should be reduced. If Riley is successful in getting the committee to indorse his position, legislation to that end will be pushed when the Legislature meets next winter. Such a prominent school man as John B. McFerran of Louisville, indorses the position.

"The question of taxation," says Riley, "is one of first importance for our Legislature next winter. At present we pay 26½ cents for school purposes to our state fund. This should be reduced, and in counties where there is not enough money to carry on the schools, let such counties tax themselves for such purposes. This would stimulate local school interest.

"While Kentucky stands low in the scale of illiteracy, she is fourth in per capita paid for education. For years Kentucky schools have been hampered by this heavy State school tax. Enough money has been derived from this source to carry on schools, but not enough to make an efficient system in many places. This plan would mean a big saving of money to such rich counties as Boone and Kenton and at the same time would stimulate more local interest in schools."—Kentucky Post.

600 Pound Woman Dead.

Chicago, May 22.—Mrs. Mary Peters, weight 600 pounds, who for twenty years was exhibited as a freak, died last night at the county hospital following an operation for the removal of a growth which itself weighed 150 pounds.

No bed in the institution was strong enough to hold her, and the patient was laid crosswise on two beds, which were reinforced by chairs. A special coffin must be made.

BETTER SCHOOLS

(J. J. Dickey in Carrollton News.)

We are not giving up, "Clean Politics" when we turn aside a moment to say that the school question is one of the most important, if not the most important question before the people of Carroll county. There is no other department of our county government that offers such a fruitful field of effort as that directed by the County Superintendent of Schools. The public schools are the people's colleges and nine tenths of the children of the county will have no other opportunity for education than these schools affords.

That there is room for improvement goes without saying. The towns and cities of the State have an excellent system of graded schools, but the people who have these splendid schools are working hard to improve them. Radical changes are being made in the hope of making them better. This is the spirit of progress.

There is a great educational revival going on in Kentucky. Four thousand persons enrolled their names and paid a dollar each at the recent meeting of the Kentucky Educational Association in Louisville. In this great clearing house one learns something of what marvelous strides education is making in the State and catches something of the spirit that animates this great body of workers.

The educators and legislators of Kentucky are concentrating their efforts on the rural schools of the State. The slogan is "Give the country child as good a chance as the town or city child." It is a big undertaking, but brave hearts and wise heads are consecrated to the task. And the city people are leading in the movement. This is beautiful.

The State has, in addition to the superintendent of public instruction, a superintendent of high schools—Prof. McHenry Rhodes, and a superintendent of rural schools—Prof. Coates. Experiments are being made in several counties of consolidated schools—bringing several districts together and making a graded school, and gathering the children from the remote parts in wagonettes and sending them back the same way in the evening. Mason county, under the superintendency of Miss Jessie Yancey, is leading in this movement.

In Rowan county, under the superintendency of Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, night schools have been conducted in 48 of the 53 districts of the county by the teachers of the district schools. In Rowan county last year there were one hundred more enrolled in the schools than in the census—and the census was carefully taken, too. Manual training and road building is being taught in the Rowan schools. Each school engaged to make fifty yards of model road in front of or near the school house, and the work is being done.

Corn clubs, under the direction of the county superintendents are revolutionizing the culture of corn in many counties. Canning clubs, embroidery clubs, cooking clubs are accomplishing much in making rural life more desirable by making labor more profitable and home more comfortable.

A county school superintendent in Carroll county who has the ability and the will can do more for the county in the next four years than any other county officer. It behooves the people of the county to look out a man or woman who is capable and willing to undertake and carry forward this great work. There is not a man or woman in the county too large for the job. It must be some one who has a vision of possibilities and a consecration that comprehends all the time, talents and enterprise that he or she may possess.

The adult illiteracy, which is considerable in this county might be abolished in four years thru the agency of night schools. Dr. Claxon, U. S. Commissioner of Education, announced to the Educational Association in Louisville that his office propdses to take up the matter of adult illiteracy throughout the Nation as France has done, and make an effort to remove it.

We are living in an age of progress. We are curing evils that have always been considered incurable. Let every one be a hero in the strife.

Government Homesteads.

The United States Reclamation Service announces the availability for homestead entry some excellent irrigated farms in the well-known Shoshone irrigation project near the Yellowstone Park in Wyoming and in the Huntley and Belle Fourche projects in Montana and South Dakota. Water is now ready for delivery to these farms and under the new three-year homestead law a liberal inducement is accorded settlers in that they are permitted five months' leave of absence in each year. The cost of the water right is repayable in ten annual installments without interest.

In all of the foregoing districts there are already splendid transportation facilities, good roads, schools, stores, churches of practically all denominations and rural free delivery. Those with sufficient means to commence farming operations this offers an excellent opportunity to work out one's independence and to develop a paying farm. Mr. Albert V. Leonard, Settlement Agent of the Reclamation Service, Federal Bldg., Chicago, has available for distribution several descriptive pamphlets concerning these projects and will be glad to mail them upon request.

The world's record is 3,000 miles between Long Island and Berlin.

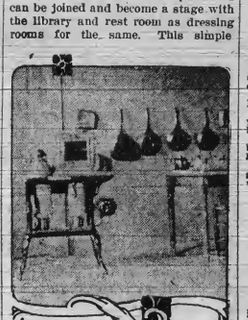
COUNTRY CHILD'S DAY NOW IS HERE

Parents and Teachers Prepare For Newer Life.

ERECT MODERN SCHOOLS.

Up to Date Building and Equipment Mean Added Interest to Both Teachers and Scholars In Educational Matters—A Model School Near Louisville With Domestic Science Room.

Wherever people are thinking definitely about the future they realize that the child is the greatest problem with which the state has to deal because it is the state's greatest asset. This is especially true in the rural districts, and both teachers and parents are getting ready for the newer life that promises to develop within the next twenty-five years or sooner.



Four miles out of Louisville on one of the main turnpikes, where for years the people had been thoroughly satisfied with a poor schoolhouse and a poorer playground, a new building has gone up. This building was made possible by the district levying a special fifteen cent tax for two years and securing the help of the county board of education. When the public began to understand what was taking place it rallied to the support of the new school. This was made very plain when the Southern Brick and Tile company, which had a large plant in the neighborhood, added an extra acre of ground to the acre already secured by the trustee for the district.

The moment one enters the beautiful brick building with its soft green roof that harmonizes with the surroundings it is evident that it is an up to date school with a modern school equipment, for a sanitary drinking fountain is the first thing that catches the eye. The building has two beautiful schoolrooms perfectly lighted and equipped with modern single desks. Two ample cloakrooms are immediately in front of the classrooms and open into the main hall, while at one end of the building there is a cozy rest room for teachers and pupils, with a light, pleasant little library. Both of the classrooms are arranged so that they may be turned into one huge room, while the teachers' platforms can be joined and become a stage with the library and rest room as dressing rooms for the same. This simple device makes it possible to use the school for entertainments and as a perfect social center for the community.

Down in the big, airy basement is the modern heating plant, a gasoline engine and tank that supplies the water for the building. In this same basement there are two big rooms, one of which is equipped with twelve work benches for the manual training class. The other room of the basement is equipped to handle a class of eight girls in domestic science.

It might seem in looking over this school, with its perfect equipment and its splendid grounds, its huge cistern and its deep well, to furnish perfect drinking water for the children, as if the cost would have been excessive. Yet the whole equipment, including gasoline engine, domestic science outfit, manual training benches and tools, cost only $5,750.

There is one final point that should be touched and touched upon definitely, and that is the effect of this building and equipment upon the two teachers. Last season when they realized that this dream was to come true they both went to a summer school, one taking a summer course in domestic science, the other in manual training.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

The Young Clydesdale Stallion,

THE KNIGHT,

Recorded Vol. 17 and 33, His Scottish and American Stud Book numbers (16110) (16143)

THE KNIGHT is a dark brown with gray hairs, blaze face, four white legs, white spot on belly; foaled April 27, 1908, bred by James S. Stenhouse, Fod Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Leitch & Sons, Lafayette, Ill. in the fall of 1911. He was sired by Baronson (10981); 1st dam Princess of Fod the 1st, (17117) by Mains of Aries (10379); 2d dam Lady Madge (14553) by Gallant Poteath (8638); 3d dam Lady Darnly (7372) by Darnly (222).

This horse is a low set, thick well built horse, over 16 hands high, and weighs 1670 lbs. He stands on the best of feet and legs with a splenidid top; he also has rare good action.

This horse was a prize winner last fall at the Indiana and Illinois State Fairs—worsted to the wire. Remember that the Clydesdale is the coming popular horse for the American farmer, the result of experience and education.

I will give a cash prize of $15.00 for the best weanling colt regardless of sex, sired by The Knight and to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home in the fall of 1914.

This horse will be allowed to serve a number of good mares at the nominal sum of $15.00 to insure a live foal, money due when colt is known or mare parted with. He can be seen at all times at the place of Wm. Ackmyer, one mile west of Bullittsville on the Bullittsville & Dry Creek pike.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Don DeGozee

The Belgian Draft Horse, foaled in 1908, will make the present season Monday and Tuesday of each week, after April 21st, at W. J. Rice's stable, Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at E. J. Aylor's stable, one and one-half miles from Hebron, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.

Description and Pedigree.

Don DeGozee, despite his great size and weight, is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He has as light action as a stallion of much smaller type, and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad, flat foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than another draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle, kind workers.

Don DeGozee's dam, Della Wire, brown mare, the great draft show mare of Campbell county, Ky., sired by Bayard DeGozee No. 2188, whose Belgian Stud—Book number is 21670. bred by Mr. Bailleux E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (313), he by Brilliant (89), out of Coatte (703), dam Catherine DeGozee (21083), she by Lion (766) out of Marie (2421).

Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

ONE CENT LETTER POSTAGE

Recommended by Postmaster General Burleson.

Postmaster General Albert S. Burleson, recently appointed by President Wilson to take charge of the postal affairs of the U. S. is heartily in favor of one cent letter postage. He so announced himself to a delegation representing the National One Cent Letter Postage Association which waited on him in Washington a few days ago.

"I am heartily in favor of one cent letter postage," declared Postmaster General Burleson who went on to explain that he hoped to bring it about just as soon as revenues of the department could be adjusted.

The postmaster general told the advocates of one cent letter postage that he had long believed that their contention was right. He stated, however, that as head of the department it was his business to see that sufficient revenue was raised to meet all expenses and while he admitted that there was a big surplus received from first class mail each year he added that it would be necessary to make such an adjustment of rates as would put the department on a business basis.

Postmaster General Burleson is strongly in favor of putting the postal department on an efficient basis. He also favors adequate compensation for postal employees, and such a readjustment of rates as will permit the operation of the department in a business like manner.

It is the purpose of the present postoffice administration to establish civil service rules thruout the department, applying eventually even to first class postmasters.

Senator Theodore E. Burton from Ohio, and Representative Charles L. Bartlett from Georgia have re-introduced one cent letter postage bills in the senate and house of representatives. These bills call for the inauguration of one cent letter postage by July 1st of this year.

Senator Burton has long championed the battle for one cent letter postage, while Representative Bartlett has favored the cheaper rate for many years.

A strong advocate for the lower rate has appeared in the person of Hon. James J. Britt of Asheville, N. C. Mr. Britt recently retired from the position of third assistant postmaster general. Upon being asked for his opinion of one cent letter postage, he expressed it in no uncertain tone.

"I am heartily in favor," declared Mr. Britt, "of the immediate reduction of letter postage from two cents an ounce to one cent per ounce for these reasons:

"It will promote general intelligence, and will improve the social relations of the people;

"It will advance the business interests of the country, by lowering the cost of communication;

"The rate of one cent an ounce for letters, with the increase of mail matter which the reduction will induce, will defray the cost of handling and transportation.

"But few public questions are of such vast concern to the great body of the American people, and I earnestly hope it may receive the early and serious attention of the congress."

Blackhead in Turkeys.

In many localities the growing of turkeys has become almost extinct as the results of a malignant parasitic disease known as blackhead. This disease is not only extremely contagious but it is very much aggravated through inbreeding, which depletes the vitality of the stock of breeding turkeys and makes it possible for the germs to gain a destructive foothold. It is called "Blackhead" because the heads of those affected turn yellow or black, but this is only a symptom, as the seat of the disease is in the liver and intestines. It is usually contracted from other fowls, but is primarily caused by an absence or deficiency of mineral elements in the feed, which, owing to the semi-domestic nature of the turkey, are essential aid to proper food digestion. In its wild state the turkey was accustomed to supply itself with these elements which are found in minute portions in various grains, seeds and grasses, and this disease is unknown to the wild turkey. It has been claimed that there is no known specific for this destructive disease, but a preparation that is being marketed under the name of Bourbon Poultry Cure has proven a most efficacious remedy for the cure and prevention of this ailment, and large turkey raisers are using it with great success, many saying they have saved their birds with it after having lost half of their flock. The disease is most prevalent in the summer months and at the beginning of cold weather in the fall.

Extensive Additions.

The Lawrenceburg Roller Mills Company has closed a contract with the John S. Metcalfe Company of Chicago and Montreal, for the erection of two new concrete wheat tanks and the making of the others waterproof. The Fine Black Jack,

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at the same time and place at Eight Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Lanky Bob is 4 years old, 15.3 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur. Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season. No business done on Sunday. Will give mares special attention and pasture furnished at $1.50 a month. T. E. RANDELL.

THE FINE SADDLE AND HARNESS OR GENERAL PURPOSE STALLION,

HARRY WILLIS,

Is a handsome blood bay stallion with star in forehead, stands 16¼ hands high, was foaled in 1907, and weighs 1,150 pounds. His conformation, individuality, breeding and reproductive qualities all combined in one horse go to make that desire of all conservative breeders—an ideal stallion. He is the personification of perfection, has a fine head and neck, strong, deep shoulders, short back very fine quarters, clean flat legs, good bone, fine mane and tail.

He has a good disposition and fine action, and is an unparalleled breeder.

He will make the season of 1913 at the farm of C. T. Northcutt one and a half miles east of Bellevue, Boone county, Ky., at TEN DOLLARS to insure a colt to stand up and suck, the money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

DON'T FEED CREAM TO THE CALVES

If you are skimming your milk by any setting or dilution method or are using an inferior or worn out cream separator you are surely feeding a lot of butter-fat to your calves and pigs that is worth from 25 to 30 cents a pound.

You may think this is too small a loss to amount to much, but when you figure that it happens twice a day, 365 days a year, you will find that a De Laval Separator would save its cost every six months over any kind of "gravity" skimming and every year over any inferior or worn out separator.

Get a clean skimming

as soon as you can and get all the money that is coming to you from the product of your cows.

We can make you a liberal allowance for your present separator, if you have one, and, if more convenient for you, can also arrange for a partial payment at time of purchase and balance on easy payments.

If you want to see for yourself just how much more cream you can get with a De Laval let us set up a machine for you and have you try it out for yourself. Just 'phone or drop us a postal and we will be glad to bring a machine out to your place.

$50.00 IN GOLD

To be Awarded by The Industrial Club and Retail Merchants' Association of Covington, Ky.

To the Boys of Kenton and Boone Counties Who Grow The Best Acre of Corn in 1913.

This paper is in receipt of communication from Henry W. Jenisch Manager-Secretary of the Industrial Club of Covington, Ky., Inc., in which he advises us that that organization together with the Retail Merchants' Association has offered prizes of $50.00 in gold to boys between the ages of 10 and 18 years in Kenton county and in Boone county, Kentucky, for the best acre of corn grown in these two counties.

This purse will be divided so that there will be three prizes for each county—the award will be made on the basis of 50 per cent on the quantity and 50 per cent on the quality of the corn raised.

Each contestant must fill out and mail to the Industrial Club of Covington, Ky., Inc., the application blank below. He must also agree to show his acre of corn to any authorized representative of said Industrial Club at any time during the season; he must carefully measure the corn and sign an affidavit as to the amount raised on his acre and he must further exhibit one bushel of corn (this bushel of corn to become the property of the Industrial Club of Covington, Ky. Inc.) which he has grown on said acre at the Corn Show to be held in Covington, Ky., Saturday October 4th, 1913, at which show the quality of the corn will be judged and the awards made.

ADDITIONAL PRIZES.

In order to reward every contestant for the interest he has shown and for the effort he has made in this contest many other prizes will be offered by the Covington merchants and others so that no matter whether you win one of the three big prizes or not every contestant will be assured substantial recognition.

The contest is to be under the jurisdiction of the Industrial Club of Covington, Ky., Inc. and is to be judged and all awards made by three judges who shall be appointed by the President of the Industrial Club of Covington, Ky., Inc. and the decisions of these judges shall be final, all contestants specifically agreeing to abode by the decision of the judges.

Industrial Club of Covington, Ky., Inc.

Gentlemen:—

I hereby make application for entry to the Corn Growing Contest under auspices of your Club and agree to abide by any and all rules laid down by your Committee governing the contest.

Organized Band at Work.

Henderson.—After two weeks of investigation the grand jury adjourned. Particular attention was paid to the many depredations in which tobacco plant beds were sowed with grass seed. The jury filed a written report stating that it had exerted every effort to ferret out such depredators, more than 100 witnesses being examined, and that there was not sufficient evidence on which to base an indictment. The jury added that, in its opinion, there is an organization at work in the various parts of the county sowing the plant beds with grass seed, and that it deemed it useless to spend further time on the matter.

Building Better Bridges.

About a dozen counties, according to a dispatch from Frankfort, have applied to the State Commissioner of Roads for plans and estimates on bridges that are to be constructed in those counties during the present year.

Good bridges are as important as good roads, and county officials are doing the right thing in asking assistance from the State Commissioner, with a view to getting better results for the money they are expending for bridge construction. Much money has been wasted in this way in the past and the time has come when bridges and culverts of the makeshift order should be supplanted by something more substantial.

It is encouraging to observe that so many counties are now turning their attention to steel and concrete as bridge material and that the practice of building wooden bridges is coming into somewhat general disfavor. There are many instances where wooden bridges have given good service, but they are exceptional. Ordinarily the life of such a structure is short. It wears quickly under usage and it is not adapted to withstanding floods. On most public roads travel is increasing and there is urgent need of bridges and culverts of the staying kind.

Concrete culverts are practically everlasting when properly built. Steel bridges with concrete abutments, piers and floors are so great an improvement on wooden bridges and so much more lasting and more easy of maintenance that it is positive economy to build them, although the first cost may largely exceed that of less modern structures.

The best thing for counties to do in building both bridges and roads is to build for permanency. Cheap construction is shortlived and is more expensive in the long run.—C.-J.

How To Kill Weeds.

Three-fouths of the weeds in a corn field may be killed before the corn is planted, says Prof. R. A. Moore of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. In order to accomplish this it will be necessary to work the ground as early as possible. Prof. Moore gives the following hints for planting corn:

"To conserve moisture and kill the weeds, disk the ground as soon as possible, and then run a fine tooth harrow over the surface. This fining of the soil warms it up so that the weeds start to grow. If the harrow is run across the field frequently these germinating weeds are dragged to the surface, and soon die.

"This harrowing should be continued until the ground has lost its winter chill, when the corn should be planted. After the seed is in the ground, the teeth of the harrow should be set slanting and the field gone over once or twice before the corn comes up.

"If this program is carried out persistently, very little difficulty should be experienced in keeping down the weeds for the rest of the season, and cultivation may be devoted largely to the preservation of moisture.

"It will be well to bear in mind now that only seed known to have high germinating power should be planted. Grade it, if possible, so that the planter will uniformly drop three or four kernels to the hill, when the hills are checkrowed three feet eight inches apart."

ENORMOUS EGGS

Are Being Laid by Hens in Vicinity Of Indiana, Pa.

Indiana, Pa., May 22.—Eggs of an abnormal size are being produced by Rhode Island Red hens of this section. A hen belonging to M. K. Queown, of White township, yesterday laid an egg which is eight and three-quarter inches in circumference from end to end, and six and one-half inches around the center.

Mrs. Hannah Stuches, of Plumville, has a hen which has been producing eggs seven and one-fourth inches one way and six inches around the center almost daily since March 1st.

A railroad cannot be constructed in twenty-four hours. It takes time to secure right of way, do surveying, get suits filed, get compromises effected, etc. Some people seem to be getting impatient about our electric line, but from what we can learn of the facts in the case the promoter and builder, W. T. S. Blackburn, is busy and is making fine progress, and when the suits now pending in court are settled business will begin in earnest on the grades.—Owenton Democrat.

Several editions to the list of candidates for justice of the peace this week. The justices of the peace being the parties who handle the county's finances, and there being so much dissatisfaction over the way the county's affairs have been looked after in the past, the wonder is that there are not a dozen candidates in each precinct for justice of the peace. That the office is one of great responsibility and should be held by men of the best judgment and plenty of firmness, is no joke.

A CARD.

To The Voters of Boone Co:

I find in my travel over the county that there are several things in reference to school administration which are misunderstood by the public.

I am blamed by some for the erection of a high school building at Burlington. Act of 1908: "With in two years after the passage and approval of this act, there shall be established by the County Board of Education of each county one or more high schools.—The first county high school to be established in the county, shall be located at the county seat."

I am accused of being unfriendly to small schools. As a matter of fact, the law of 1908, known as the Sullivan act, which changed our entire county school system, abolished all school districts with less than forty children in the census. The only school that was discontinued on account of this act was the Frogtown school. As a member of the legislative committee of the K. E. A. I helped to rewrite the law decreasing the minimum to 25, and so since the passage of this act of 1912 the Frogtown and Garrison schools have been opened.

The Pleasant Ridge school was abolished, not by the act or approval of the county board of education, but by the vote of the Florence Graded school district.

Two schools were closed last year near Petersburg, and the children were hauled to school. Consolidation and hauling are local issues, and this is successful only where the people want it. These schools will be opened again this year if a majority of the patrons want them opened.

I am accused of being a high tax man. I refer you to my record and my efforts to have the State school tax reduced.

I shall be at Big Bone Springs, Saturday, June 7th, and that afternoon I shall discuss these and other school issues. I especially invite my opponent to be present, to discuss with me any school matters. Later I shall announce other places and dates for public speaking. My opponent understands these matters, and I want the people to know that I do not blame him in any sense for this mistaken sentiment.

EDGAR C. RILEY.

BASE BALL.

The Petersburg and Burlington teams played a good game at the park last Saturday the score being 4 to 0 in favor of Burlington, all the runs being earned except the last which Ruth let in by being too certain of taking a pop fly. Burlington made 6 to Petersburg's eight hits; Huey struck out 15 and Ruth 9. Several errors were made but only one figured in the rungetting. Both teams played some fast ball. Hager and Smith each made difficult catches.

Erlanger and Burlington will play two games at Burlington park next Friday, Decoration Day, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Burlington will play at Belleview next Saturday afternoon.

In Houston's Behalf.

Panama, May 25.—A petition bearing 3,000 signatures has been sent to President Wilson requesting the reopening of the case of J. Frank Houston, of Kentucky, a Panama Canal employe, who recently was sentenced to ten years imprisonment for killing Harry Stern at Gatin on Feb. 8 on account of jealousy arising out of correspondence that had passed between Stern and Mrs. Houston. Feeling in the matter has been accentuated by the fact that a request from Washington to delay the trial, on the ground that the Canal Zone act provides for trial by jury, arrived too late.

A Gruesome Find.

The Recorder received, one day last week, from its friend, Lawrence Chambers, of Petersburg, a portion of an Indian's skull and some arm bones which were exhumed where the grading is being done for the Petersburg wharf. There is no question but what these bones had been in the ground for considerably over a hundred years. The town of Petersburg is located on a prehistoric burying ground and at most any point bones are found when excavations are being made.

The tobacco season that has been on for the past several days has given the growers a splendid opportunity to get their crop pitched where they had the plants and their ground was ready, but many who expect to plant tobacco have not began the preparation of their ground which they expect to have in condition by the time their plents are large enough. While the weather has been decidedly favorable for pitching the tobacco crop it has been advancing vegetation very rapidly for the past ten days, but it may prove of considerable advantage to the hay and oats crop which have been anything but promising for several weeks.

Poor appetite is a sure sign of impaired digestion. A few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will strengthen your digestion and improve your appetite. Thousands have been benefitted by taking these tablets. Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

The Court of Appeals has decided that it is not unlawful for a person to purchase whisky and bring into dry territory purely to accommodate another person.

Notes Have No Cash Value.

Frankfort, May 21.—The Kentucky and Louisville Mutual Insurance Company will not have to pay taxes to the state on the notes held by the company against the policyholders. Chief Justice Hobson determined today that the notes upon which the commonwealth was endeavoring to collect taxes have no cash value at a voluntary sale and are only an obligation to the company to pay the assessment when they become due.

The Jefferson Circuit Court adjudged that the notes were of value unless such assessment as had been paid on them and were subject to taxation as omitted property. The company holds $62,000 worth of such notes which are given by the policyholders to guarantee the payment of the assessment when they come due. The judgment of the lower court was reversed.

$50.00 IN GOLD

To be Awarded by The Industrial Club and Retail Merchants' Association of Covington, Ky.

To the Boys of Kenton and Boone Counties Who Grow The Best Acre of Corn in 1913.

This paper is in receipt of communication from Henry W. Jenisch Manager-Secretary of the Industrial Club of Covington, Ky., Inc., in which he advises us that that organization together with the Retail Merchants' Association has offered prizes of $50.00 in gold to boys between the ages of 10 and 18 years in Kenton county and in Boone county, Kentucky, for the best acre of corn grown in these two counties.

This purse will be divided so that there will be three prizes for each county—the award will be made on the basis of 50 per cent on the quantity and 50 per cent on the quality of the corn raised.

Each contestant must fill out and mail to the Industrial Club of Covington, Ky., Inc., the application blank below. He must also agree to show his acre of corn to any authorized representative of said Industrial Club at any time during the season; he must carefully measure the corn and sign an affidavit as to the amount raised on his acre and he must further exhibit one bushel of corn (this bushel of corn to become the property of the Industrial Club of Covington, Ky. Inc.) which he has grown on said acre at the Corn Show to be held in Covington, Ky., Saturday October 4th, 1913, at which show the quality of the corn will be judged and the awards made.

ADDITIONAL PRIZES.

In order to reward every contestant for the interest he has shown and for the effort he has made in this contest many other prizes will be offered by the Covington merchants and others so that no matter whether you win one of the three big prizes or not every contestant will be assured substantial recognition.

The contest is to be under the jurisdiction of the Industrial Club of Covington, Ky., Inc. and is to be judged and all awards made by three judges who shall be appointed by the President of the Industrial Club of Covington, Ky., Inc. and the decisions of these judges shall be final, all contestants specifically agreeing to abode by the decision of the judges.

Industrial Club of Covington, Ky., Inc.

Gentlemen:—

I hereby make application for entry to the Corn Growing Contest under auspices of your Club and agree to abide by any and all rules laid down by your Committee governing the contest.

Organized Band at Work.

Henderson.—After two weeks of investigation the grand jury adjourned. Particular attention was paid to the many depredations in which tobacco plant beds were sowed with grass seed. The jury filed a written report stating that it had exerted every effort to ferret out such depredators, more than 100 witnesses being examined, and that there was not sufficient evidence on which to base an indictment. The jury added that, in its opinion, there is an organization at work in the various parts of the county sowing the plant beds with grass seed, and that it deemed it useless to spend further time on the matter.

Building Better Bridges.

About a dozen counties, according to a dispatch from Frankfort, have applied to the State Commissioner of Roads for plans and estimates on bridges that are to be constructed in those counties during the present year.

Good bridges are as important as good roads, and county officials are doing the right thing in asking assistance from the State Commissioner, with a view to getting better results for the money they are expending for bridge construction. Much money has been wasted in this way in the past and the time has come when bridges and culverts of the makeshift order should be supplanted by something more substantial.

It is encouraging to observe that so many counties are now turning their attention to steel and concrete as bridge material and that the practice of building wooden bridges is coming into somewhat general disfavor. There are many instances where wooden bridges have given good service, but they are exceptional. Ordinarily the life of such a structure is short. It wears quickly under usage and it is not adapted to withstanding floods. On most public roads travel is increasing and there is urgent need of bridges and culverts of the staying kind. Concrete culverts are practically everlasting when properly built. Steel bridges with concrete abutments, piers and floors are so great an improvement on wooden bridges and so much more lasting and more easy of maintenance that it is positive economy to build them, although the first cost may largely exceed that of less modern structures.

The best thing for counties to do in building both bridges and roads is to build for permanency. Cheap construction is shortlived and is more expensive in the long run.—C. J.

How To Kill Weeds.

Three-fouths of the weeds in a corn field may be killed before the corn is planted, says Prof. R. A. Moore of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. In order to accomplish this it will be necessary to work the ground as early as possible. Prof. Moore gives the following hints for planting corn:

"To conserve moisture and kill the weeds, disk the ground as soon as possible, and then run a fine tooth harrow over the surface. This fining of the soil warms it up so that the weeds start to grow. If the harrow is run across the field frequently these germinating weeds are dragged to the surface, and soon die.

"This harrowing should be continued until the ground has lost its winter chill, when the corn should be planted. After the seed is in the ground, the teeth of the harrow should be set slanting and the field gone over once or twice before the corn comes up.

"If this program is carried out persistently, very little difficulty should be experienced in keeping down the weeds for the rest of the season, and cultivation may be devoted largely to the preservation of moisture.

"It will be well to bear in mind now that only seed known to have high germinating power should be planted. Grade it, if possible, so that the planter will uniformly drop three or four kernels to the hill, when the hills are checkrowed three feet eight inches apart."

ENORMOUS EGGS

Are Being Laid by Hens in Vicinity Of Indiana, Pa.

Indiana, Pa., May 22.—Eggs of an abnormal size are being produced by Rhode Island Red hens of this section. A hen belonging to M. K. Queown, of White township, yesterday laid an egg which is eight and three-quarter inches in circumference from end to end, and six and one-half inches around the center.

Mrs. Hannah Stuches, of Plumville, has a hen which has been producing eggs seven and one-fourth inches one way and six inches around the center almost daily since March 1st.

A railroad cannot be constructed in twenty-four hours. It takes time to secure right of way, do surveying, get suits filed, get compromises effected, etc. Some people seem to be getting impatient about our electric line, but from what we can learn of the facts in the case the promoter and builder, W. T. S. Blackburn, is busy and is making fine progress, and when the suits now pending in court are settled business will begin in earnest on the grades.—Owenton Democrat.

Several editions to the list of candidates for justice of the peace this week. The justices of the peace being the parties who handle the county's finances, and there being so much dissatisfaction over the way the county's affairs have been looked after in the past, the wonder is that there are not a dozen candidates in each precinct for justice of the peace. That the office is one of great responsibility and should be held by men of the best judgment and plenty of firmness, is no joke.

A CARD.

To The Voters of Boone Co:

I find in my travel over the county that there are several things in reference to school administration which are misunderstood by the public.

I am blamed by some for the erection of a high school building at Burlington. Act of 1908: "With in two years after the passage and approval of this act, there shall be established by the County Board of Education of each county one or more high schools.—The first county high school to be established in the county, shall be located at the county seat."

I am accused of being unfriendly to small schools. As a matter of fact, the law of 1908, known as the Sullivan act, which changed our entire county school system, abolished all school districts with less than forty children in the census. The only school that was discontinued on account of this act was the Frogtown school. As a member of the legislative committee of the K. E. A. I helped to rewrite the law decreasing the minimum to 25, and so since the passage of this act of 1912 the Frogtown and Garrison schools have been opened.

The Pleasant Ridge school was abolished, not by the act or approval of the county board of education, but by the vote of the Florence Graded school district.

Two schools were closed last year near Petersburg, and the children were hauled to school. Consolidation and hauling are local issues, and this is successful only where the people want it. These schools will be opened again this year if a majority of the patrons want them opened.

I am accused of being a high tax man. I refer you to my record and my efforts to have the State school tax reduced.

I shall be at Big Bone Springs, Saturday, June 7th, and that afternoon I shall discuss these and other school issues. I especially invite my opponent to be present, to discuss with me any school matters. Later I shall announce other places and dates for public speaking. My opponent understands these matters, and I want the people to know that I do not blame him in any sense for this mistaken sentiment.

EDGAR C. RILEY.

BASE BALL.

The Petersburg and Burlington teams played a good game at the park last Saturday the score being 4 to 0 in favor of Burlington, all the runs being earned except the last which Ruth let in by being too certain of taking a pop fly. Burlington made 6 to Petersburg's eight hits; Huey struck out 15 and Ruth 9. Several errors were made but only one figured in the rungetting. Both teams played some fast ball. Hager and Smith each made difficult catches.

Erlanger and Burlington will play two games at Burlington park next Friday, Decoration Day, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Burlington will play at Belleview next Saturday afternoon.

In Houston's Behalf.

Panama, May 25.—A petition bearing 3,000 signatures has been sent to President Wilson requesting the reopening of the case of J. Frank Houston, of Kentucky, a Panama Canal employe, who recently was sentenced to ten years imprisonment for killing Harry Stern at Gatin on Feb. 3 on account of jealousy arising out of correspondence that had passed between Stern and Mrs. Houston. Feeling in the matter has been accentuated by the fact that a request from Washington to delay the trial, on the ground that the Canal Zone act provides for trial by jury, arrived too late.

A Gruesome Find.

The Recorder received, one day last week, from its friend, Lawrence Chambers, of Petersburg, a portion of an Indian's skull and some arm bones which were exhumed where the grading is being done for the Petersburg wharf. There is no question but what these bones had been in the ground for considerably over a hundred years. The town of Petersburg is located on a prehistoric burying ground and at most any point bones are found when excavations are being made.

The tobacco season that has been on for the past several days has given the growers a splendid opportunity to get their crop pitched where they had the plants and their ground was ready, but many who expect to plant tobacco have not began the preparation of their ground which they expect to have in condition by the time their plents are large enough. While the weather has been decidedly favorable for pitching the tobacco crop it has been advancing vegetation very rapidly for the past ten days, but it may prove of considerable advantage to the hay and oats crop which have been anything but promising for several weeks.

Poor appetite is a sure sign of impaired digestion. A few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will strengthen your digestion and improve your appetite. Thousands have been benefitted by taking these tablets. Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

The Court of Appeals has decided that it is not unlawful for a person to purchase whisky and bring into dry territory purely to accommodate another person.

Whirlwind Campaign Of Missions.

The whirlwind campaign of missions of the North Bend Association will be held on the 3d and 4th of June (Tuesday and Wednesday.) The brethren named below will be at the churches in the order named:

Rev. R. B. McDaniel and J. C. Taylor, at Erlanger, Tuesday and C. E. Baker at Gunpowder, Wednesday, Rev. T. H. Plemmons, at New Banklick Tuesday and Florence Wednesday, Rev. J. W. Beagle, at Sand Run Tuesday and Bullittsburg Wednesday, Rev. H. B. Hensley at East Bend Tuesday and Belleview Wednesday, Rev. Wm. McMillan at East Bend Tuesday, Rev. H. C. Wayman at Walton, Tuesday, Rev. A. K. Johnson at Beaver Lick Wednesday, Rev. W. R. Elliston, at Visalia Tuesday, Rev. C. S. Ellis at Walton Tuesday and Hickory Grove Wednesday, Rev. R. F. Kirby, at Bellevue Wednesday, Rev. C. E. Brown, at Union Tuesday and Florence Wednesday, Rev. C. E. Baker at Sand Run Tuesday and Gunpowder Wednesday, Rev. J. C. Taylor at Erlanger Tuesday and Beaver Lick Wednesday, Rev. J. W. Campbell at Bullittsburg Wednesday, Rev. J. P. Shanks at Oak Ridge Wednesday, Rev. J. M. Ballentyne, at Union, Tuesday, Rev. A. A. Stulk at New Bank Lick Tuesday.

The object of these meetings is to spend the day in stiring up Missionary enthusiasm, not to take collections, but secure pledges to be collected later by the churches.

We are sorry that Burlington cannot have a meeting, and some others are only going to have half day service. The Lord is watching. The regular Board meeting will be at Big Bone on Thursday the 5th of June, and we desire every church represented as this is the [illegible] and report the success of the meetings in the various churches. This will be an all day service with basket dinner, and grand Rally with song, prayer and speeches. Everybody invited but the candidates, they will come any way. Wm. McMillan,
Moderator North Bend Association.

TEMP'S PICNIC,

A candidates' picnic will be given by Temp Graves at the Harvest Home Grounds, June 7th. Everybody is cordially invited. All of the candidates are especially requested to be present and each one will be given an opportunity to speak in his own behalf. A fine band of music from Cincinnati of fine instruments will be on the grounds at 12 o'clock. The refreshment stand will be in charge of C. E. Clore, Harry Brown, and T. G. Tanner will be in charge of the platform. The speaking will begin at 2:30 o'clock. I will say to all, please don't bring any intoxicating drinks on the grounds. Sheriff Hume and Squire Aylor will be committee on good order. Come early and stay late.

A Meat Tree.

In Mexico grows a tree called the Avocado, whose pear-shaped fruit is reputed to be composed of the substances which are to be found in meat. It contains about twenty per cent of fat and many other ingredients of great food value, and one good sized "meat" pear is quite sufficient to make a meal for the average man.

The reason why the fruit is so little known at present is because it is grown nowhere on a large scale, what few trees there are grow around the huts of the natives where they flourish with little care and afford easy meals for the indolent owners.

Cultivated on extensive lines it might have an important bearing on that serious subject, the high cost of living.—Ex.

THE OLD LIBERTY BELL.

Seventy years ago, February 22 the Liberty Bell was rung for the last time. This is contrary to the popular belief.

The usual theory put forth is that the old bell was cracked in 1835 and ceased to be rung after that time. Part of this notion is correct and part wrong.

On the morning of June 8, 1835 the Liberty Bell, which for a century had been the city's greatest instrument for showing joy or grief was being tolled for Chief Justice John Marshall.

On that occasion it was badly cracked. But, broken as it was, the bell was afterward rung on great occasions although the tones were but sorry reminders of the once powerful sound. So it happened that seventy years ago—Washington's birthday, 1843 the old bell was once again tolled in joy. At that time however, the previous crack became so wide that the tones were completly broken.

It was never rung again after that day, and for seventy years it has remained voiceless.—Chronicle.

PLANT BED NOTES.

A short crop is predicted for Graves county.

Tobacco plants are late and scarce in Owen county.

A large per cent. of the tobacco in Montgomery county was set this week.

Farmers in Green county report tobacco plants scarce, the fly having injured them in many beds, to this the dry spell added injury.

Growers in Woodford county set some tobacco this week. A great deal of damage has been done to beds by cut worms and other insects.

Madison county's plants are doing nicely but cannot be set on account of no rain which is causing uneasness among the growers.

Some tobacco was set in Bourbon as early as the 15th, and as this is very early for transplanting the result will be watched with interest.

Rains over the tobacco-growing section of Kentucky have not been general and this fact has retarded the setting of plants in the Black Patch where beds are now over grown with weeds.

Tobacco plant beds in Nicholas county are being ruined by worms working in the ground in places and cutworms and insects are destroying the plants in other places in the Burley district until many growers are predicting a short acreage of Burley tobacco this year. They have prepared for the biggest acreage in years but they say that it will be greatly reduced as the plants for transplanting will not be available.

THE FRUIT CROP.

Ohio reports great frost damage to fruit and vegetables.

The peach crop is said to be knocked out in the Virginias and Maryland.

Bourbon county growers have excellent promise of abundant fruit crop. Frost in Central Kentucky the first of last week did considerable damage to young garden truck.

In a commercial orchard of two hundred trees it is better to have forty trees, each of five varieties, than five trees each of forty varieties.

One of the most important items in managing a fruit farm, and especially small fruits, is to prepare the soil in equal hills before planting.

Potatoes in Kentucky were at a point where longer delay in rain would have resulted seriously but under the influence of sun and moisture the crop is more than half assured.

Atlantic coast States had the most ruinous frost of any last week. Ice formed half an inch thick in many localities. Fruit and vegetables suffered in sections and in some places was entirely wiped.

Frost injured fruit in Michigan last week. The damage to peaches is 50 per cent. and apples, pears, cherries and plums will not show up more than a quarter to a third of a crop. There are a few localities which were not hit so bad.

Odds and Ends.

Among the grievances we have against the English sparrow is the fact that it fouls the floor of the porch, the sill of the windows, and many other conspicious places, by its droppings from its roosting place under the eaves, or other sheltered nooks. It has been decided that the sparrow is a nuisance and a marauder, and notice must be served on it to migrate to new countries, or take the consequences. The United States department of agriculture has issued a bulletin, No. 493, which gives various methods of destroying these little pests. One very good way is to destroy any nest you know to be that of a sparrow as soon as it is found; but be sure it is a sparrow's nest, and not that of one of the useful birds.

Don't forget to put up the bird houses; let them be out of the reach of the cats, and some say they should be protected from the red squirrel, as this squirrel is very destructive to bird-life. The useful birds have many foes, and as best, it is a constant struggle for them; so it is as well to help them all we can.

If we heed the warnings of science, the "barefooted boy" is one of the "old things that have passed away." According to science and the doctors, the barefoot gathers inumerable diseases, whether or not there is abrasion of the skin through which the germ or polson may enter the system. In the cities it is claimed there are "things" lying in wait for the naked foot, and parents are warned that the children should be shod if they are to remain healthy. Yet the boy—and not seldom the girl—will willingly brave the dangers of the street dust to kick off shoes and stockings and feel the cool, soft earth under the naked feet. In southern states, where the hook-worm thrives, the warning is particularly urgent. It is a good thing for the shoe man.

The picking of live geese for the live geese feathers, so called, is a cruel practice, and ought to be entirely abolished.

High Bred Trotting Stallion,

Walter Winans

No. 30,400.

Tr. Rec. Over Half Mile Track 2:19

Season 1913, at H. G. Blanton's stable, Erlanger, Ky. Walter Winans' service fee for 1813 will be $10.00 to insure a living colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with after being bred.

Walter Winans is a solid chestnut sorrel, is 16 hands high, weighs 1,250 lbs. and if right fat would weigh 1,300, his disposition is perfect. His colts are uniformly good size and color, and the only one of his get that has been raced has a record of 2:11.

Walter Winans' breeding is fashionable, and is in line with the greatest sires in the world, being a half brother to the great Crescius, 2:02½, and the fine breeder, Wilstar, 2:17½, whose colts always sold for high prices throughout Indiana and Ky.

Walter Winans sired by Robert McGregor 647, dam Rilee, (dam of Kate Ham. 2:28½, etc.) by Hotspur, Jr., 3612; grandam Tugies by Mambrino Gift, 534, etc. (see Rilee Vol. 13) bred by Geo. H. Ketcham, owner and breeder of the celebrated Crescius. Robert McGregor 747 was sired by Major Edsall, 2:11, dam by Nancy Whitman.

Colts by Walter Winans from good mares will be large, and if not great trotters, will make fine road Horses. Persons living at a distance can secure pasture for mares.

H. G. BLANTON, Owner

The amount of feed that the pigs should get cannot be definitely advised. That must be determined by the feeder from the appetites of the animals to feed.

SEASON 1913

I wish to call the attention of the breeders of High Class Saddle and Harness Horses of Northern Kentucky in regard to

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS,

2844 A. S. B. A.
Bracken Chief (2148)
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Mambrino Le Grande 99

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1,200 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet,

By BRACKEN CHIEF 2148

by Harriron Chief 1606 by Clark Chief (80), dam, Kit Hardy (2830) by Indian Chief 1718).

1 dam Miss Berry 4084 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99) 2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112. 3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor).

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1908 and sold for $3,500, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Scott Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show, Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmons? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest price Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief's and his sons and grand-sons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzstmmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible should any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Best's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners,
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

The Fine High Bred Percheron Stallion,

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1913 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs., and is 17¼ hands in height. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

PRINCE OLSEN was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., where he was foaled in 1907, and from whom he was purchased by me in 1911, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olson was a high bred registered Percheron mare. I feel that farmers and breeders will make no mistake in breeding to Prince Olsen as it means a good, strong colt that will meet every requirement on the farm. One of the lacking features of our horses is the size and strength. With the well bred Percheron like Prince Olsen these essentials are fully incorporated.

Come and see the horse and inspect his good points and you will breed to him.

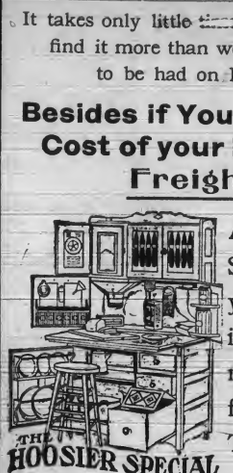
Two Fine Young Jacks,

Ben and Dewey.

BEN is a black jack with mealy points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ear, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Kentucky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. Service fee $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine jack, five years old, and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Take a look at them before breeding. It may pay you.



Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

JOSEPH READNOUR,

PRISON PLOT NIPPED.

Kentucky Convicts Planned to Use Women as Shields in Escape.

Frankfort, Ky., May 21.—An order entered at the Kentucky Reformatory today to transfer to Eddyville Penitentiary, Allen Hall, a murderer of Pulaski county, serving a life sentence, and Clarence Fryer a negro murderer of Garrard county, serving a life sentence, disclosed that Warden Wells, today nipped in the bud, a desperate plan for a general delivery of convicts.

It was planned to make the delivery on the Sunday the local base ball season opened, but the death of Warden Mudd prevented it. Soon after Warden Wells took charge he scented trouble, and as a result of an examination of 30 convicts he learned that the attempted delivery would be made June 9th, which is Flower Mission Day. The blowing of the prison whistle for dinner was to be the signal for the convicts to attack the guards simultaneously, and disarm them. The convicts planned to grab the women of the mission societies, who were distributing flowers, and use them as shields from the attacks of the outside guards.

Precaution Against Fires.

One of the State Fire Marshal's assistants has been traveling over Western Kentucky recently inspecting business houses, factories and the like with a view to reducing fire risks. In some cases his visits were not welcomed and in one village he became involved in a fisticuff before he was able to convince an irate merchant of his authority to "nose" around the store and point out needed reforms in the interest of safety.

It is a part of the duties of the Fire Marshal and his assistants to make such inspections and to order the removal of rubbish, the repair of flues, the installation of fire escapes, where necessary, and other improvements, that tend to lessen fire hazards. Many fires are the natural result of carelessness in such matters. Merchants allow rubbish to accumulate around their places of business, or fail to take precautions or to make needed repairs to stoves or flues, and thus give basis for a destructive blaze.

The Fire Marshals are acting with full authority under the law and nothing is to be gained by resenting their inspections. It is much better to welcome their visits and to heed their suggestions. In this way it may be possible to cut down the annual fire loss, which is much too large. Many of the small towns are destitute of facilities for fighting fires. A fire in one building generally means the destruction of other property. As a large proportion of such losses may be traced to carelessness on the part of somebody it follows that much of the destruction is avoidable.

In the long run all fire bills are paid by the people. A loss is a loss regardless of the fact that it is "covered by insurance," for property once destroyed is gone forever and cannot be restored. It is the height of wisdom to take precautions against fire and to avoid taking any chances which may involve the effacement of material wealth.—C.-J.

TOBACCO STATISTICS.

Georgetown May 27.—Hon. J. Campbell Cantrill, father of the Cantrill tobacco bill, this evening gave out the following interview regarding the tobacco census just issued by the Department of Commerce at Washington:

"The second report under the Cantrill census law has just been issued and shows a very favorable condition of the crop from the farmers' viewpoint, especially in to the burley type. It should be borne in mind that there is practically no burley tobacco in the hands of the farmer of the 1912 crop, and that it will be seven months before the 1913 crop will begin to move to market. On October 1, 1912, there were 215,000,000 pounds of burley in the hands of dealers and manufacturers. From October 1, 1912, to May 1st, 1913, the entire 1912 crop went into the hands of the manufacturers. The 1912 burley crop was estimated at about 225,000,000 pounds. Adding this amount to that on hand October 1, 1912, and then subtracting the 327,000,000 pounds now on hand, shows that 113,000,000 pounds have been consumed within the past six months.

It is fair to presume that consumption of burley will be the same for the next six months as for the past six. Upon this basis we will get to market next winter under exactly the same condition as last year, namely, about 215,000,000 pounds of burley in the hands of the manufacturers. Last year the entire crop of burley sold for an average of nearly fourteen cents per pound, and there is no reason whatever, why this year's crop [illegible] should not [illegible] a good price."

Mrs. Wiley Grubbs returned last Monday from a two weeks' visit to Middletown, Ohio.

John Carpenter is sporting a gold watch and chain, a gift by his grandmother Carpenter.

Richwood ball team beat Florence, Saturday, 12 to 4. On the 24th they beat Beaver 13 to 3.

The wedding bells are soon to ring and a popular young man and lady of this neighborhood will wed.

Robt. Stephens is home from a dental college and will do dental work at home until the fall term of school begins.

Our ball team have new grounds at Lexington pike and Frogtown avenues. Games Richwood vs. Beaver, June 7th, at Beaver; on June 14th, Richwood vs. Beech Grove at Richwood.

BULLITTSVILLE.

Many farmers are done setting out tobacco.

Frank Roseman is remodeling M. L. Souther's residence.

Chas. Helms attended the Confederate Reunion at Chattanooga last week.

Earl Cropper, a commercial tourist, spent several days here, recently, with home folks.

We all sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pfalzgraf in the death of their daughter, Mrs. Gump, of Newport.

Luther Scothorn took a large number of Odd-Fellows to Florence in his truck to attend a meeting with Venus lodge.

HEBRON.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baker spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Baker in Xidville.

The Ladies' Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. Ed. Rouse next Saturday afternoon.

Mr. John Ernst was taken to the hospital last week to be treated. At last report he had not improved any.

John Hicks and family and Mrs. Harriet Hicks and son, Huey, of Covington, were guests of C. E. Clore and family on Decoration day.

We had the pleasure of attending the Goodridge reunion, Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seikman near Taylorsport. At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread on the lawn. A large crowd was present and a most delightful day was spent by all. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Goodridge will entertain them next year.

FLORENCE.

Miss Sallie Snyder is much improved from her recent illness.

Miss Nellie Snow, of Richwood, is spending the week with Miss Coreta Tanner.

Miss Mary Grogan has gone to Dayton to be with her brother, who is very sick.

Arnold Bowers, wife and daughter spent Wednesday with relatives in Covington.

Mrs. Will Tryling, of Aurora, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Baxter.

Mrs. Lou Roberts and daughter, Beulah, and Mr. J. T. Craven dined with Mrs. Harry Brown, Saturday.

Orba Baker was a visitor at this place, Sunday.

Miss Andra Taylor is visiting B. B. Ash and Liza Finnell.

Mr. Webber is visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. M. Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Arch Noell were guests of his sister, Mrs. Nannie Vest, Sunday.

Miss Lizzie Roberts has returned after a pleasant visit to Walton and Burlington.

This community was saddened by a telephone message to Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dempsey from Lakeland announcing the sudden death of their daughter, Maggie. She had been at Lakeland only a short time. Her sister, Miss Kate, was there at the time of her death. She was a kind, good child, always helping her mother in everything. She will be missed by her large circle of friends and relatives. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family. Funeral at Verona. Interment at St. Patrick's cemetery, Monday, at 11 a. m. The funeral was in charge of Chambers and Hamilton.

Uncle Ben Sleet died at his daughter's in Ludlow. He was 72 years old and died on his birthday. His wife died five years ago. Uncle Ben was long a prominent member of South Fork church, where his funeral was conducted at 11 a. m., last Thursday by Rev. Duncan, of Ludlow, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives. He leaves two children, Mrs. Lizzie Fullilove, of Ludlow, and Jas. Sleet, of Beaver, and six grandchildren. He had been helpless for about a year. The many friends extend their sympathy to the children and grandchildren. "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

Base Ball.

The Erlanger team came over last Friday, accompanied by quite a delegation of loyal rooters, and played two games with the Burlington team, making an even break. The morning game was poorly played and resulted in a score of 13 to 8 in favor of Burlington. The game in the afternoon was an improvement over the morning game. The score at the beginning of the ninth inning was 8 to 4 in favor of Burlington and so remained until two men were down and there were two strikes on the third man, when a combination of errors and hits resulted in Erlanger putting five men across the plate and winning the game. The feature of the game was the heavy hitting by Bramlage, of the Erlanger team. The Burlington team went to Belleview, last Saturday afternoon where it was defeated 3 to 1. Belleview has clearly demonstrated that it is too strong an aggregation for the Burlington antiques.

Erlanger defeated Hebron at Erlanger last Saturday 6 to 4.

WALTON.

Mrs. Chas. H. Young, of Folsom, Grant county, spent part of the week here with friends.

John B. Chenault, of Maysville, a State Bank Examiner, examined the Equitable Bank and Trust Co, yesterday.

E. N. DeMoisey, of Ludlow, is spending the week here and making arrangements to visit the Pacific coast.

Joseph Reed has special facilities for painting buggies and all kinds of vehicles, and can do your work at reasonable price. Give him a trial. Joe Reed, Walton, Ky.

Miss Hazel Faucett, of Madisonville, Hopkins county, is here on a visit to her school mate Miss Lovenia Edwards, they having attended State College together. Miss Faucett's father is editor of the Earlington Bee, an uptodate newspaper published at Earlington.

Judge J. G. Tomlin and Jno. L. Vest spent part of the week at Frankfort attending the Court of Appeals, arguing the case of the stockholders in the Burley Tobacco Company against the officers of the company, appealed from the Kenton Circuit Court, the issue being the rights of the stockholders to have a voice in the selection of the officers of the company.

The trustees of the Walton High School, at a special session Monday night elected J. L. Chambers, of Richmond, Ky., as the principal of the high school for the ensuing year. Mr. Chambers is a young man of fine qualifications and has already taken charge of the preliminary work to promote the prospects of the school for the opening in September.

The town council had an important session last Monday night when the tax levy was made for the ensuing year, and other important matters discussed. Orders were issued to the citizenship in general to clean up their premises for the benefit of the appearance of the town as well as for hygeinic qualities. The town taxes were levied at fifty cents advalorem, and $1.00 poll.

PETERSBURG.

Glad to see Earl Walton able to be about again.

Stewart Berkshire is the guest of relatives here.

Perry Mahan and wife entertained relatives from Ludlow, several days the past week.

Don't forget that next Sunday is the local Odd-Fellows' Decoration day.

Mrs. Will Mahan was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ruth, last Friday.

The entertainment given by the Christian church Sunday School was quite a success.

Lightning struck the Methodist parsonage, last Sunday, doing considerable damage. Rev. Nelson, the pastor, was badly stunned.

William Hensley and Julius Hoffman are at home from Louisville, the distillery at which they were employed having shut down.

Mrs. Mary Martin has returned to her home in Louisville, after spending two weeks here with her niece, Mrs. Lewis Jarrell.

Mrs. Arthur Alloway was buried here last Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. She leaves a number of relatives and friends to mourn her death.

Three or four of the younger set of boys, whose names are said to be known to the parties offended, indulged in some very rude conduct last Sunday night. Their performance, which is said did result in bodily harm to one person, might have resulted in serious injuries to others. Boys ought to discriminate between harmless sport and a criminal offense which might prove both expensive and mortifying to their parents.

On account of an operation on my throat, I will not speak at Big Bone next Saturday, but I will be there at 10 a. m. to see the old school house. In next week's paper I shall announce dates and places for discussion of school issues.

EDGAR C. RILEY.

Sheriff Hume was called to Petersburg, Tuesday morning to take charge of Pink Botts, an insane young man who was giving the citizens of the town much alarm. The poor fellow has been in the asylum at Lakeland once or twice, being allowed to come home as cured.

The account of the trial and conviction of Frank Houston, in Panama, was copied from a Panama paper, and published at the request of members of his family here at his old home. It is hoped that the unfortunate man will succeed in securing a pardon.

Notice that several of the farmers along the Burlington and Florence pike have sowad cow peas this spring. They are said to be the greatest restorers of land known to the farmers, and are becoming quite popular in this county.

About all the public schools are closed for the summer vacation, consequently the best part of the year for the small pupils to attend school is wasted. The public school vacation ought to be during the bad months of winter.

This is the month of roses and weddings.

FRANK HOUSTON

Sentenced to Ten Years at Hard Labor—Pathetic Address of Defendant—The Cause.

At the regular sitting of the Cristobal Circuit Court yesterday, Judge Brown presiding, Frank Houston, who was convicted last week of murder in the second degree, was sentenced.

As soon as the defendant was called, Counsel for the defense stated that motion for new trial had been made on three grounds. The motion was overruled, and was as follows:

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL.

Government of the Canal Zone versus J. Frank Houston. Motion for new trial.

Comes now the above named defendant by his attorneys, W. H. Carrington, W. C. Todd and Messrs. Hinckley & Ganson, and moves the Court to set aside the verdict rendered against him in the above entitled cause, and grant him a new trial for the following reasons:

1. Because said court erred in overruling the defendant's demurrer to the information filed against him.

2. Because said verdict is contrary to law.

3. Because said verdict is contrary to the evidence and plainly and manifestly against the weight of the evidence.

After the above motion was overruled, and exception noted, the Court in conformity with the law, called the defendant to the bar and said: "Mr. Houston, have you anything further to say why you should now be sentenced?"

HOUSTON'S PATHETIC APPEAL.

The defendant then replied:

"Your Honor, I was accused last week of convicting myself by telling the truth." (The court here interjected: "Mr. Houston I believe you told the whole truth.") "Your Honor, I met this man Stern as a brother Mason I received him in my home as such, and we being mutually bound by our obligations to defend the home of each other, and I becoming convinced that he had violated the sanctity of my home, disgraced my baby boy and stole my wife's honor, I was driven to the only alternative under our obligations, and my honor as a man to do the act, for which I now stand before you. I was taught from childhood that the sanctity of a man's home is sacred above all other things. I came here eight years ago to work for the Commission from my home in Kentucky with the expectation that ultimately I would be able to have a home of my own, but all my hopes and expectations have been blighted by that scoundrel Stern."

THE SENTENCE.

Judge Brown then said: The Court does not desire to add to the burden of the prisoner; it is already sufficiently sad and sorrowful at its best. The Court has considered with great care, during the past week, about the sentence it should pronounce; it has taken into consideration the facts pertaining to the good training and past history of the prisoner. The Court has come to the conclusion to show that mercy which the Law provides and sentences the prisoner to the minimum sentence of ten years at hard labor.

Counsel for the defense then gave notice of appeal, and a term of 20 days was extended for the filing of bill of exception. A request of the Court from Counsel for a certificate of probable cause was denied.

HOUSTON INTERVIEWED.

A representative of this journal yesterday interviewed Mr. Houston who has been convicted and sentenced to 10 years for the killing of Stern.

Houston is by no means a great big man, nor is he of the type that one would expect to meet in a Police Station, fighting for his liberty. He is about 5 feet four inches tall, with that sallow complexion which comes to all white men who live here for any length of time. He received us politly and appeard quite at ease, considering his present position.

He conversed in that soft tone of unaffected voice so easily recognized to a gentleman of education and one who has been brought up with tender care.

He told us that he came here in 1906 and worked on the Colon Hospital buildings. Things were rough here then, he continued; there were only two hotels at Cristobal—that of the Palmer House and Madame Groullier. Seventeen bachelor s occupied one room in the house now known as Building No. 1. Iwas then transferred to Gatun and was the first white man that was assigned quarters there.

HOW HE CAME TO MEET STERN.

I met Stern one evening last year at the Gatun Y. M. C. A. and noticing from a button that he wore that he belonged to the same order, asked him to which Lodge he belonged. After that a gradual friendship sprung up between us and we were to each other as brothers. I didn't know until I read the letter, that he was visiting my house during the daytime, and never suspected that there was anything between himself and my wife. The shock, when the veil was lifted from my eyes, was great. I had such implicit confidence in the man; I never thought he would wrong me!

Our representative here recognized that visible sign of surprise on Houston's face that possibly came over it when he first read that letter after placing the pieces together, and felt so much sympathy for him that he had to cut the interview short and bid goodbye.

THE LETTER TO HOUSTON TO SHOOT STERN.

My Dear "Wife"

I am not going to tell you how much I enjoyed my self tonight while I was with you, until later on. When I came in the room what should Bertie be doing but shaving. He asked me if I came back to stay or just to get acquainted with the family. Well, I don't think it any of his affair and I did not say anything Honey. I am awful sorry the way I acted tonight when I came in and asked you for the letters. You will forgive me, won't you, knowing how I feel about it. I won't promise that I won't do it any more but I'll try to do the best I can. O wifey dear how I do love you and how I long to be with you but, I guess its as you say, it is not going to be this way all the time, but tonight you made a very funny remark, when I asked how long this is going to last this way and you remarked you know its a risky thing and "I have a lot to lose" I don't quite get that part of it. If you don't intend to go to Colon tomorrow (Friday) how am I going to come to the house. Wait till Saturday and go down. No more tonight all my love and kisses and will see you about 1.10 or 1.15. Yours.

A cable dispatch which arrived too late might have saved J. Frank Houston of Gatun and Kentucky from a sentence of ten years at hard labor. He was sentenced on Friday, May 8, by Judge Brown in the Cristobal Circuit Court for killing Stern in March, because of alleged improper relations with Houstob's wife. On Monday, this dispatch was received from the secretary of war:

"Defer trial of J. F. Houston pending passage of Panama Canal act."

The Panama Canal act provides trial by jury. It is the general belief that Houston would have stood 99 chances in a hundred of acquittal if he had been tried by a jury of his peers. Another general belief is that an indictment for first degree murder was not drawn, in order to avoid a trial by jury.

The action of the secretary of war followed activities of Houston's representative in Congress. Its effect is problematical, but it appears that the "deed is done," but it is possible now that Houston will be pardoned.

QUARANTEE ON SHEEP

Will be in Effect June 1st, by The State Livestock Sanitary Board.

Nearly 2,000 farms, mostly in Central Kentucky, were put under quarantine June 1 by the State Livestock Sanitary Board, in an effort to eradicate footrot among sheep. The Federal Government has withheld action to give the State authorities an opportunity to handle the situation and save the embarrassment of a quarantine on the State. No sheep may be placed on or taken from the farms under quarantine after June 1st, except those that have been treated and are shipped for slaughter. Many farmers are now disposing of their flocks in this way and intend to abandon sheep raising for a couple of years until the soil is free from the pest. Commissioner of Agriculture J. W. Newman says the quarantine is put on to protect the sheep raisers whose flocks are not infected. The infection is most wide-spread in the central part of the State where the sheep raisers have been importing ewes from Western States.

Another One at Williamstown.

A company has been organized which proposes to establish another loose leaf warehouse here. Suitable locations are being sought by the company, and as soon as one is agreed upon the contract will be let for the construction of the building. The company is on a dicker for two different tracts of land near the depot, upon which to build the new market. The men behind the company are excellent business men, with means enough to insure the completion of the work, once it is begun, and they are confident the new house will be in operation before the next crop of tobacco is ready for the market.

It is not believed that another loose leaf house here will injure in any manner the Burley Company's loose leaf market, but will rather have a tendency to stimulate sales. It will make competition more active, create a bigger market and have a tendency to bring more buyers, which will have the effect of encouraging more growers to patronize this market, and may result in this becoming one of the best markets in the State, all of which is very much to be desired.—Grant Co. News.

Blue Grass Seed Crop a Failure.

The crop of blue grass seed which last year was an unprecedented one, is almost a complete failure this year. The few weeks brought coming at a critical period for the seed is the cause. Some farmers are estimating that there will not be a one tenth crop, and while this may be a little overdrawn, still it is known that the crop is extremely short. Stripping will begin in a few weeks and local dealers who are accustomed to gathering several thousand bushels are anticipating not over one third the usual yield.—Ex.

Here's The Plumb Bob

It's just another proof that Tubular Cream Separators are just up to the minute—miles ahead of anyother. No other machine has it.

What's It For?

It enables you to level the Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator in a minute—quicker than you could find the spirit level you must use to level all other separators. A glance at the plumb bob, hanging there on the back of the Tubular, will always tell you whether the Tubular remains level. In that way you get the very best work out of the Tubular, for all Separators should be kept level to do their best work.

Tubulars have dozens of exclusive fine points and are sold on the level. Bring the wife in. See how simple, perfect and different from others Tubulars are.

STATE NEWS.

The like of morning glories was never seen. It is an all time fight to keep them down in the gardens.—Todd County Progress.

From an unknown source there comes a rumor that Pike county is to be divided, a new county to be created out of the eastern section of this county, which is now the largest in the State. Another rumor says that four counties will replace Pike.—Pikeville Kentuckian.

Reports from the Waterworks Lake say that the catfish are dying in great quantities, caused by the bluestone which is used to prevent the accummulation of moss.—Winchester Democrat.

The outlook for bluegrass seed in Central Kentucky is the worst for years and it is not believed that anything like a third of a crop will be produced.—Owingsville Outlook.

Figoting Foxtail.

Foxtail frequently springs up in cultivated crops and matures soon after cultivation ceases. These plants should be pulled or hoed out to prevent the seed from scattering on the land. If the seed matures, it should be removed from seed grain as perfectly as possible.

This weed will yield to short rotations and frequent thorough cultivation. The plants are easily smothered when young. The early use of the harrow in cultivated crops will destroy most of the plants. Where a crop of seed has ripened and shattered out, the seeds may be covered by discing. This will induce germination and the plants can be destroyed by plowing or cultivation. —Andrew Boss, University of Minnesota.

We will offer for sale the old Big Bone school house and lot at the door of said house in Big Bone Springs at 10 a. m., Saturday, June 7, 1913. The manner of sale will be announced at time of sale.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

The Young Clydesdale Stallion,

THE KNIGHT,

Recorded Vol. 17 and 33.

His Scottish and American Stud Book numbers (16110) (16143)

THE KNIGHT is a dark brown with gray hairs, blaze face, four white legs, white spot on belly; foaled April 27, 1908, bred by James S. Stenhouse, Fod Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Leitch & Sons, Lafayette, Ill. in the fall of 1911. He was sired by Baronson (10981); 1st dam Princess of Fod the 1st, (17117) by Mains of Aries (10379); 2d dam Lady Madge (14553) by Gallant Potash (8638); 3d dam Lady Darnly (7272) by Darnly (222).

This horse is a low set, thick well built horse, over 16 hands high, and weighs 1670 lbs. He stands on the best of feet and legs with a splendid top; he also has rare good action.

This horse was a prize winner last fall at the Indiana and Illinois State Fairs—word to the wise. Remember that the Clydesdale is the coming popular horse for the American farmer, the result of experience and education.

I will give a cash prize of $15.00 for the best weanling colt regardless of sex, sired by The Knight and to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home in the fall of 1914.

This horse will be allowed to serve a number of good mares at the nominal sum of $15.00 to insure a live foal, money due when the fact is known or mare parted with. He can be seen at all times at the place of Wm. Ackmyer, one mile west of Bullittsville on the Bullittsville & Dry Creek pike.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Don DeGozee

The Belgian Draft Horse, foaled in 1908, will make the present season Monday and Tuesday of each week, after April 21st, at W. J. Rice's stable, Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at E. J. Aylor's stable, one and one-half miles from Hebron, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.

Description and Pedigree.

Don DeGozee, despite his great size and weight, is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He has as light action as a stallion of much smaller type, and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1300 pounds, has a broad, flat foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than another draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle, kind workers.

Don DeGozee's dam, Della Wire, brown mare, the great draft show mare of Campbell county, Ky., sired by Bayard DeGozee No. 2138, whose Belgian Stud Book number is 21670, bred by Mr. Bailleux E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (312), he by Brilliant (709), out of Coatte (703), dam Catherine DeGozee (21083), she by Lion (766) out of Marie (2421).

Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

ESKIMOS LAUGH AT DYSPEPSIA

People in the Far North Consume Anything, and Never Suffer the Pangs of Indigestion.

We hear much of American dyspepsia, but there is one native race of America that is certainly not troubled in this respect. The Eskimo defies all the laws of hygiene and thrives. He eats until he is satisfied, but is said never to be satisfied while a shred of his feast remains unconsumed. His capacity is limited by the supply, and by that only.

The Eskimo cannot make any mistake about the manner of cooking his food, since, as a rule, he does not cook it. Nor, so far as the blubber or fat of the arctic animal is concerned, is the Eskimo concerned about his manner of eating it. Indeed, he may be said not to eat it at all. He cuts it into long strips an inch wide and an inch thick, and then lowers the strips down his throat as one might lower a rope into a well.

Despite all this, the Eskimo does not suffer from indigestion. He can make a good meal off the flesh and skin of the walrus, provision so hard and gritty that in cutting up the animal the knife must be continually sharpened.

The teeth of a little Eskimo child will, it is said by those in a position to know, meet in a bit of walrus skin as the teeth of an American child would meet in the flesh of an apple, although the hide of the walrus is from half an inch to an inch in thickness, and bears considerable resemblance to the hide of an elephant. The Eskimo child will bite it and digest it and never know what dyspepsia means.—Harper's Weekly.

GUM CHEWING AN OLD HABIT

Red Indians Are Said Thus to Have Quenched Their Thirst in Fifteenth Century.

Gum chewing in the United States appears to be a general habit, as it would take quite a few gum chewers to use up what is manufactured. More than 30 million sticks of gum is the annual output of American factories.

All this stuff is made of chicle, which comes from a gum tree in the tropics, the importation of chicle into the United States figuring up two million dollars a year. The chicle business has become a big industry in the republics to the south. The gum tree is tapped very much the same as the rubber tree.

Spanish explorers found the Indians of this hemisphere chewing gum to quench their thirst away back in the fifteenth century, and they reported that it relieved exhaustion; but it was 1876 before gum chewing became a habit among the nations, so at least the gum makers say, being guided in their opinions by the statistical records. Still, the oldest inhabitants say they always had gum. Resin or some thing else must have been chewed before the modern gum factory brought out a substitute that was better liked.

Since that time the demand for this commodity has increased to such an extent that importing firms have been obliged to search the markets and exploit the growing of the tree in order to obtain a supply sufficient to meet existing requirements.

Chance for the Reformer.

The Chicago Evening Post opens up a vital question in ethics by wondering how soon the time will come when the toastmaster at a banquet will feel at liberty to squelch the speaker who has overrun his time limit. Here is a chance for those earnest souls who spend their leisure and other people's time by organizing societies for the prevention of things. We believe we echo the soulful sentiments of nearly every experienced bon vivant in laying down the dictum that a proper banquet should be one-fourth oratory and three-fourths gustatory. When the proportions are reversed—as usually happens—there is joy in neither phase of the things, and life becomes a howling wilderness and a dreary waste. Every banquet speaker should be placed on an automatic platform which would either collapse and drop him into a coal chute or gently wheel him out of the dining room at the end of 20 minutes. A banquet ought to be something more than an endurance contest.

Old Houses.

A house at Winkel acquired for a public museum is said to be the oldest dwelling in Germany, having been built for the archbishop of Mayence in 850. According to some authorities the Fighting Cocks inn, St. Albans, which claims to be the oldest inhabited house in England, beats even this record, having been built as a boathouse to the monastery founded at St. Albans by King Offa about 795. It has, however, not served as an inn so long as some other buildings, such as the Saracen's Head, Newark, the Old Green Man, Erdington, the Seven Stars, Withy Grove, Manchester, and the Bell Finedon.—London Chronicle.

Literature in Brazil.

That Catholic Brazil as a republic gives encouragement to literary effort today that was not given a few years ago is shown in the series of book notices that are published in Le Brésil Economique, a French journal of Rio de Janeiro: Among these new books is a Portuguese translation of the "Life of Martin Luther," of which the paper says "the style is agreeable and the reading of the work, which is unpretendingly biographic, is very interesting."

COVINGTON, KY.

Harrison Prince, 3340.

Will make the present season at the stable of G. T. Gaines, one mile from Burlington, Ky., on the Petersburg pike, at $15.00 to insure a living colt.

HARRISON PRINCE is a chestnut stallion, 16 hands high, 4 years old, has a large blaze face, two white feet, and is the perfect type of a saddle horse with fine finish and action a champion in his class from a colt. Harrison Prince comes from a family of show horses on both sides, and is a show horse himself. His sire is Dandy Jim, 2d, 1531, the well known show horse by McChief, 1451, by Rex McDonald, 833, by Rex Denmark, 840, he by Crigler's Denmark by Old Denmark Chief. His dam, Mary Neal, 1805, also a show mare, by Boyd Wilkes by Favorite Wilkes 2d dam, Skiddles, by Washington Denmark, Jr., by Washington Denmark 64.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

In 1914 a premium of $10 will be given for the best and $6.00 for the second best colt of this year's get of Harrison Prince.

His colts were shown the first time last season and were never defeated in the ring. H. T. GAINES,
Burlington, Ky.

The Impt. Germam Coach Stallion,

PLUTARCH
No. 3183.

Will make the season of 1913 at my stable one mile west of Idlewild, Boone county, Ky., at Ten Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

Will be at W. J. Rice's stable near Burlington, every Saturday.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1912 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

The Fine Black Jack,

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at the same time and place at Eight Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Lanky Bob is 4 years old, 15.3 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur. Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season. No business done on Sunday. Will give mares special attention and pasture furnished at $1.50 a month. T. E. RANDELL.

THE FINE SADDLE AND HARNESS OR GENERAL PURPOSE STALLION,

HARRY WILLIS,

Is a handsome blood bay stallion with star in forehead, stands 16¼ hands high, was foaled in 1897, and weighs 1,150 pounds. His conformation, individuality, breeding and reproductive qualities all combined in one horse go to make that desire of all conservative breeders—an ideal stallion. He is the personification of pefection, has a fine head and neck, strong, deep shoulders, shortback very fine quarters, clean flat legs, good bone, fine mane and tail.

He has a good disposition and fine action, and is an unparalleled breeder.

He will make the season of 1913 at the farm of C. T. Northcutt one and a half miles east of Belleview, Boone county, Ky., at TEN DOLLARS to insure a colt to stand up and suck, the money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

DE LAVAL Cream Separators
ARE EASIEST TO WASH

The construction of the De Laval bowl is such that it can be completely taken apart for washing.

The discs, bowl parts and tinware have no tubes, crevices, holes or corrugated surfaces such as are found in other machines and which are very hard to clean.

The De Laval discs are washed as a single piece and the whole machine can be thoroughly

CLEANED IN FIVE MINUTES

There is no part of the De Laval bowl which cannot be easily reached and seen, so that the operator can always tell whether or not every part has been properly cleaned.

The ease with which the De Laval can be thoroughly washed and kept in a sanitary condition is one reason why creamerymen prefer De Laval to other separator cream, and is likewise one of the reasons why butter made from De Laval cream has scored highest at the National Dairy Show for over 20 years.

Tillman H. Cloud and son, Roy T. Cloud, of Pleasant Hill, Mo., who are guests of the former's brother, William Cloud, of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, were callers at this office last Monday. Mr. Cloud is an old Confederate and he and his son attended the Confederate reunion at Chattanooga, Tenn., last week, and report a most delightful time, although he met only two of the old soldiers from this county—Elijah Parker, of Petersburg, and Chas. Helms, of Bullittsville. Mr. Cloud will be in the county several days, but his son has gone back home, his duties as editor of the Pleasant Hill Times requiring his early return. Mr. Cloud was saddened by the information of the death of his old comrade in arms, B. F. Norman, of Gunpowder, who passed away last Friday.

The most novel business proposition the Recorder ever encountered came in last Monday, when several reading notices were received from an advertising agency which was willing to pay regular rates for their publication, provided mad stones would be taken in payment for the service. As there is no demand in this part of the country for that particular kind of merchandise the proposition and the copy was consigned to the waste basket without delay. It is possible that some party has put into operation a mad stone factory and is seeking the aid of the rural press to get his product on the market, but he will find very few country editors who can afford to stock up with that kind of material as it takes the coin of the realm to keep a local paper in existence, and mad stones are not yet a legal tender.

Henderson, May 31.—Night rider notices are being posted in Henderson county, threatening the destruction of all buildings of those who attempt to grow any 'obacco this year. Wherever possible the plant beds have been scraped. This is being followed by the destruction of the plants in the fields, where the beds were not scraped. There have been heavy raids the past two nights resulting in wholesale destruction.

The school census for this county show that the number of pupils coming within the school ages for 1913 is 13 more than the 1912 census showed.

Remember that the Grangers and Masons have big doings at Hebron Saturday night. The feasting will be great, you bet.

Burlington ball team is booked to play at Petersburg next Saturday afternoon.

Weeds along the streets and in the alleys are making very rank growth.

This is delightful weather.

When To Begin Feeding Chicks.

Chicks should not be fed until they are at least 24 hours old. Nature has provided for this by the absorption of the egg yolk into the chick's abdomen just previous to hatching. It is essential that this feed be digested and assimilated before any other is given. Many people hurry feed into their crops before the system is ready to take care of it and the result is bowel trouble and very often death of the chick. For the first meal a hard boiled egg chopped fine, shell and all, mixed with three times its amount of stale bread crumbs, is good. In fact boiled eggs mashed and mixed with three or four times their bulk of stale bread or cracker crumbs is excellent for pushing young chicks along for the first week or two.—Missouri Ruralist.

Nicholas county farmers will maintain a fifty-acre co-operative experiment farm.

Petersburg, June 2, 1913.

Editor of the Recorder:

Accompanied by Charles Helm, I left Cincinnati at 8 p. m. May 26, over the Southern road for Chattanooga and the Confederate Reunion, reaching there at 7 a. m. the next day. I was astounded by the mighty changes since I last saw Chattanooga in time of the war. Instead of a town of about 1,000 inhabitants is a city of 100,000 with elegant broad streets and massive buildings, the sky scrapers being the equal of any I ever saw. The city was grandly decorated throughout the business portion, and every arrangement made for the entertainment of the Old Confederates. In fact the most elaborate of any that I have seen at any in the past.

We were taken in charge by Ed. Y. Chapin, who is an old Petersburg boy, and royally entertained by him and his handsome and accomplished wife at their elegant home in the finest residential part of the city. Among the many favors shown us by Mr. Chapin was the placing of his automobile in charge of his son, who took us to the battle fields of Missionary Ridge and Chicamauga. I had not time to go over the latter battle field, visiting only the portion in which Breckinridge's division fought. The underbrush has all been removed, but the trees of any size appear to be about same as they did 50 years ago—One tree I was particularly anxious to see was a large pine that I got behind and tried to pick off the gunners of a federal battery slightly to our left, which I found. It appears to be a little larger than then. Captain Aston Madierva, of our company, fell about 20 steps to the right of this tree. Fifteen out of 29 of our company were killed and wounded in less than 50 yards of where Capt. Madiera fell. Several were only slightly wounded, including this writer, who never left the field only for a short while.

The attendance of visitors was the largest perhaps at any reunion in the past. The railroads brought in 120,000 besides many came in by automobiles and other conveyances. The crowds were the greatest I ever met anywhere so where you might there were thousands.

In company with Mr. Chapin I went to the federal cemetery here, in which nearly 14,000 federal dead are sleeping the sleep that knows no waking. I went in search of the grave of the chum of my youth, A. M. Snyder. His grave is numbered 13,308. Two other Petersburg boys, Simeon F. Terrill and Lewis Youell are buried in the Confederate cemeterm nearby, in unknown graves.

The old veterans left Chattanooga loud in their praise of the treatment accorded them and greatly impressed with the mighty future that surely awaits it.

ELIJAH PARKER.

TO VOTE BURLEY STOCK

Demand Made on Society By Tobacco Poolers of 1909.

Georgetown, May 21.—At a large and enthusiastic meeting of the tobacco poolers of 1909, held at the Scott County court house this afternoon, speeches were made by well posted men from this and other Kentucky counties. Notice was served upon the officials of the Burley Tobacco Co. that these heretofore patient and long suffering people must be shown something and that something quickly, too. Radical action in black and white was disparaged by brief speeches. Bringing the two elements together, Hon. J. Campbell Cantrill, at one time President of the Society of Equity, offered the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted as a compromise:

"It is resolved that it is the sense of this meeting that each pooler of the 1909 burley tobacco crop demand the right to vote this stock in the election of 1913 when the officers of the Burley Tobacco Company shall be elected."

So as to promote the earliest action on this resolution, a temporary organization, composed of J. W. Thacker, Chairman, and Frank Thomasson, secretary was made permanent, so that should the Kenton county decision be upheld by the Court of Appeals this body might immediately assemble on call of the Chairman.

It is the intention to then effect an organization composed of representatives of every precinct in the county urging immediate action. Speeches of some length were made by Attorney Veal, of Boone county, and former Secretary Brooks, of the Burley Association. The former detailed the more prominent features of the Kenton county suit, which he had instituted and won in the Circuit Court, and which is to be argued in the Court of Appeals next week.

Mr. Brooks said that the Burley Co. is preparing to spend a large amount of money on loose leaf houses, and if the poolers want any of their money they had better get busy quickly.

It also was resolved that every member present stick to his stock and urge others to do so.

"I have never received a certificate of stock. Have you?" asked Mr. Cantrill. "Because in dire need of money poor tenants have sold their stock at 35 cents on the dollar, while it is worth $1.40 on the books. There should not be discrimination between this tenant and the wealthy farmer's contract such as this," and he showed one made with Millionaire Hagan, giving him authority to place him on the directorate, although he owned but a small part of the holdings.

Local Happenings.

The road question is paramount in this county.

Only a few candidates were in town last Monday.

The home grown strawberry crop is about exhausted.

A fine rain fell in this county about noon last Sunday.

There has been some fine weather for dispatching farm work.

The growth of vegetation has been very rapid the past week.

A demand for ice has been created by the warm weather of the past week.

The smallest court day crowd of the year was in Burlington last Monday.

Wm. Pope, living down on Middle creek, has been very ill for several days.

It looks like it will be safe to shed your flannel and to take down the stove.

A State Bank Examiner visited the banks in this part of the county last week.

The Boone County Insurance Co. met last Monday for the first time in its own home.

The river is over the low bottoms which is a very great inconvenience to some of the farmers.

The grader which County Engineer Goodridge received last week has been doing some excellent work.

The fish in Gunpowder and Woolper creeks are being given numerous and excellent opportunities to bite.

When getting out of a wagon, last Sunday, J. F. Blyth got one of his feet hung and fell, hurting himself quite badly.

The carpenters and painters have turned over to the Boone County Insurance Co. a very neat little office building.

The candidates have just two months now in which to present their claims to the voters. A great deal can be done in that time.

There is a very large crop of white clover this spring, and to it is attributed the death of so many cattle thruout the country.

The bee men are anticipating an unusually large honey harvest this year, basing their hopes on the immense crop of white clover.

Last Friday was a delightful day, and nothing in the way of weather occurred to interrupt memorial ceremonies in this part of the country.

The Georgetown College Commencement next week, and several Boone county parents, who have students in that school, will be in attendance.

The supply of milk at the creamery has increased considerably the past few weeks, and the outlook is good for a big year for that institution.

Elmer Fowler's young horse got badly snagged while in the pasture one day last week, but good attention has about brought the animal around alright again.

A young cow belonging to Jas. E. Smith died last Friday. The animal acted very much like it had hydrophobia, and died in a few hours after it was discovered that it was sick.

There is considerable complaint of the ravagies of the cut worms, and had it not been for these pests there would have been an excellent stand of corn in this county this spring.

Pomona Grange will meet with Excelsior Grange on the 3rd Saturday in June. All fifth degree members are required to be present. Business of importance.

N. C. TANNER, Master.

The ground worked nicely the latter part of last week. The rains that fell the first of the week were gentle and the soil which was becoming thirsty required all the water that came to make it mellow and easy to cultivate.

Burlington was unusually lively last Friday, a large per cent of Erlanger's younger population spending the day here rooting for their ball team which broke even with Burlington that day.

Some autoist had a narrow escape from an accident near Mrs. Susan Barlow's last Sunday. At that point there is a sharp turn in the pike and in attempting to make the curve the machine came very near going over a steep bank.

The Recorder is authorized to announce E. J. Aylor as a candidate for Justice of the Peace in the First Magisterial District subject to the action of the Democratic primary election August 2, 1913.

NOTICE—Notice is hereby given that stock must be kept from running at large on the streets in Burlington, or I will have to take them up as required by the stock law now in force.

B. B. Hume,
Sheriff Boone County.

The State Board of Equalization has certified the total value of land and personal property in Kentucky for 1913 at $851,380,669, from which is expected a revenue of $4,254,901. The total assessment for 1912 was $840,168,594. Boone's assessed value is $7,002,015 on which she will pay $35,010.03.

The pooled wool was sold to R. Leslie Combs, of Lexington, Ky. Price 23.50. The wool will be received at Petersburg, Monday June 9th; Belleview, Tuesday 10th; Burlington Wednesday, June 11th; Bullittsville, Thursday June 12th, and Walton Friday, June 13th.

J. H. STEVENS.

During the storm last Sunday lightning struck a maple tree near the porch at G. G. Hughes' residence, stunning considerably his son, William, who was sitting on the porch about twenty feet away. The efficient and accommodating rural mail carrier thought for a few minutes that the jig was up with him.

Prof. Dix will certainly enjoy his vacation as the past has been rather a strenuous year with him. He is a hard worker and never quits so long as there is anything in sight that needs his time and attention. He goes about his work ina quiet manner and always gets there on time.

Judge Cason was called on last week by the U. S. government for a statement of what it cost the county to stamp out the scabbies a year or two ago and he found the exact amount to be $446.50. It will be remembered that this expense was incurred during the period that Kentucky sheep were quarantined.

Last Friday the local cemeteries were visited by quite a number of persons who had relatives and friends interred therein and strewed their graves with beautiful flowers, a custom that is growing more popular as time passes, and is a most appropriate way in which to perpetuate the recollection of the departed.

What do you think of this? 13¼ acres of land in the neighborhood of Landing, this county, sold at Master Commissioner's sale, last Monday, for $70. It is dollars to doughnuts that taxes are being paid on that land at a much higher valuation, a proof that the poor land in the county is being taxed out of proportion to good land.

Remember that next Saturday is the day upon which Temp Graves will have a candidates' picnic at Harvest Home grounds. Nothing will be left undone that is calculated to make you have a good time. Temp expects you to be present. Ex-Governor J. C. W. Beckham has been invited and it is very probable he will be in attendance.

In this issue appears the card of ex-Sheriff B. B. Allphin, of Walton, who is associated with L. J. Budde & Co., Livestock Commission Merchants at the Union Stock Yards, Cincinnati. Mr. Allphin will be glad to have the patronage of Boone county people and will render them valuable service in the disposition of their livestock.

Each age of our lives has its joys. Old people should be happy, and they will be if Chamberlain's Tablets are taken to strengthen the digestion and keep the bowels regular. These tablets are mild and gentle in their action and especially suitable for people of middle age and older. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

The fine gold watch, chain and finger ring owned by the late Scott Rice were sold at public auction at the court house door last Monday, and were bought by Israel Flick, a nephew, he paying $145 for the watch; $5 for the chain and $5 for the ring. The watch is a very fine time piece, and was purchased by Mr. Rice about the close of the civil war for $260.

Sheriff Hume is putting up notices of the times and places he will meet the taxpayers of the county to receive their taxes, and as he goes out of office on the first of next January he is very desirous that the taxes all be paid before the first of December next, as at that date he will advertise the delinquent list, being one month earlier than heretofore.

Mrs. Fannie E. Kirtley, widow of the late Dr. Robert Kirtley, died at the home of her dauhgter, Mrs. Kipping, in Carrollton, last Friday, and the remains were interred in the cemetery at that place last Sunday. The deceased had many friends in this county, who will be sorry to hear of her demise. She had returned from a Cincinnati hospital only a few days before her death.

When your child has whooping cough be careful to keep the cough loose and expectoration easy by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as may be required. This remedy will also liquify the tough musuc and make it easier to expectorate. It has been used successfully in many epidemics and is safe and sure. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

They say that the grader that was put to work out on the North Bend road last Thursday did some excellent work, while the amount of work it can accomplish exceeds largely that of a small army of men with the ordinary equipment. Owing to the scarcity of labor it is absolutely necessary to provide labor saving machinery with which to work the public roads in this county.

The commencement period closed last Wednesday night with an entertainment at Library Hall, where a moderately good sized crowd assembled. The program consisted of numerous songs by the three Dix brothers and Harold Crigler, some of the songs being highly amusing while others were severely sentimental, but all were well received by the audience. Thos. Fowler contributed to the evening's entertainment by singing a couple of duets that took well. Mrs. Fowler played the accompaniament on the piano. Harold Crigler, one of the best vocalist in this part of the county pleased the audience with a solo, Miss Aylor playing the accompaniament. The program concluded with the play entitled the Irish Linen Peddler which provoked considerable mirth. The characters were represented by Misses Katryn Brown, Frances Riddell, Margaret Hughes, and Messrs. Courtney Kelly, Robt. McGlasson and Reuben Hager, Courtney Kelly taking the character of the Irish Peddler.

The painting of the McKim-Sullivan building has helped the looks of that corner considerably.

What Kindness Will Do.

Grateful because a little girl had befriended him at the end of the Civil War, when he was in want, B. F. Anderson, old Civil War veteran, whose death occurred at the Soldiers' Home in Dayton, and who was well known in Newport, where he left an estate valued at $6,000, has made the little girl, now Mrs. Wm Strutt, 45, of Pittsburg, Penn., his sole heir

When the war ended, Anderson, with nothing but an honorable discharge, wandered into Pittsburg. He was homeless, penniless, and thought himself friendless. Out of employment and without funds, he applied to the little girl for aid. She honored him as a hero who had fought for his country and she forthwith took him to her home and with her hands prepared and served to him a bountiful meal. Anderson left her with gratitude in his heart.

The years passed. The little girl was married and settled down in Pittsburg, while the soldier, now an old veteran, accumulated real estate in Newport by hard work. Age left its mark, and the ravages of time caused him to seek the protection of the Soldiers' Home, but he never forgot the one who aided him when he needed aid. His dying request was that his executor, Lawrence Reidinger, of Newport, give him a suitable burial, providing carriages for as many of his comrades in arms as desired to accompany his remains to their last resting place, and then see that Mrs. Strutt gets the remainder of his estate, according to the terms of a will that said that he had deposited in a safety deposit box, which will be opened today by Mr. Riedinger.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Government Tobacco Monopoly

Tobacco growers from eight states, at a meeting in Louisville, indorsed a plan looking to a government monopoly of the purchase, sale, handling and manufacture of tobacco. The bill indorsed by the growers and to be represented by Representative Glass at the next regular session of Congress, provides for the immediate creation of a bureau of tobacco industry subordinate to the treasury department, empowered to purchase the equipment and plant of any persons or corporation now engaged in the purchase, handling, sale or manufacture of tobacco. After July 1, 1916, the bill provides "it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation" to engage in these branches of tobacco industry except as "the duly appointed agent or officer of the United States government," a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment of from one to ten years being provided for violation of this provision.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of wonderful success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

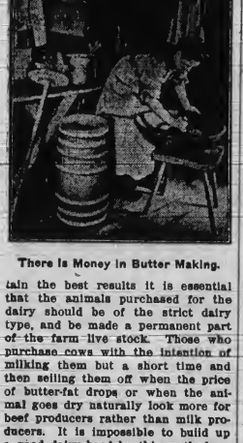
KIND OF COWS TO BUY



Animals Not Adapted to Dairying Cause Failures.

To Obtain Best Results It Is Essential That Strict Dairy Type Be Kept —Beef Value of Secondary Importance.

(By [illegible], Idaho Experiment Station.)

It is not difficult to find men, even in the most prosperous dairy communities, who do not believe that dairying pays. They have tried it and failed. Some have purchased good stock, but poor management or false economy in housing or feeding prevented them from getting the results they expected, but by far the largest number of these failures are due to the use of animals that are not adapted to dairying.

Those who purchase a few cows when the price of butter fat is high and sell them off when the price goes down naturally have a rather poor opinion of the dairy business. To obtain the best results it is essential that the animals purchased for the dairy should be of the strict dairy type, and be made a permanent part of the farm live stock. Those who purchase cows with the intention of milking them but a short time and then selling them off when the price of butter-fat drops or when the animal goes dry naturally look more for beef producers rather than milk producers. It is impossible to build up a good dairy herd by this method.

There Is Money in Butter Making.

Dual-purpose animals may be used in some localities to good advantage, but to get the best results one of the special dairy breeds should be used. This does not mean that only thoroughbred animals should be used, but animals that are bred for milk production. A good dairy cow should produce enough butter-fat in her best days that the value of the beef may be of secondary importance, if not entirely ignored.

A person purchasing an implement considers first how much service he can get out of it and not its value as scrap iron when worn out. Those who purchase a dairy cow should consider how much butter-fat she will produce and not the value of her hide and carcass.

PLACE FOR HENS TO SCRATCH

Leaves Make Excellent Material If Gathered When Perfectly Dry—Oat Straw Is Cheap.

There are a number of different materials which furnish an excellent place for the hens to scratch in, says a writer in the Poultry Journal. Leaves are probably the stuff most used by the small poultrymen. These are good if gathered when perfectly dry. They must be put into the pens every few days, because the poultry will break them into dust by their continual scratching. I find oat straw about as cheap in the long run, because it lasts quite a while and furnishes some feed if fed before threshing.

Some of my neighbors have tried feeding buckwheat as a scratching material and a feed combined. Buckwheat is too fattening and should be used only occasionally. Corn husks make an excellent scratching material. Shredded or cut corn fodder does very well if there is nothing else on hand. I do not like any form of meadow grass or swale for scratching material because it mats down too much when cut and not enough when not cut.

Salting Cabbages.

For several years I have raised cabbages and found it advantageous, after setting out the plant, to drop a little salt on the heart of the cabbage, says a writer in the Fruit Grower. When the salt is dissolved by rain, or some other agent, it should be renewed, and the process continued until all danger from cabbage worms is past.

A cabbage treated in this way will grow much larger, and when the head is cut open it will not be found honeycombed with wormholes.

Necessity for Testing Seed.

Good seed corn is the key to getting good stands of corn. A good stand of corn is necessary to secure good yields. Owing to the wet fall of 1911 there is now much doubtful seed corn in the country.

One cannot afford to plant corn any years, much less this year, without testing. The single-ear method of testing seed corn is the only practical method.

Vigorous Charge to Grand Jury

In his charge to the Grand Jury in Woodford Circuit Court at Versailles, Monday, Judge R. L. Stout denounced in no uncertain language the practice of buying and selling of votes that has been so common in the past, and declared it his purpose to use every means in his power to see that nothing of the kind occurred in the county primary to be held on August 2d. Judge Stout said that he would have reputable men in each voting precinct who would give him information, and that it would be upon this information that he would call special grand juries to investigate the charges. In the course of his instructions Judge Stout said:

"Among the classes of crime common, I am told is the buying and selling of votes, and of the two I have more sympathy with the latter because the man who sells is usually a poor fellow needing the necessities of life and there may be come excuse for his conduct. In our country no man should sympathize with the buyer of votes, as he is usually a man of influence and there is no excuse for his conduct. A resentment of such methods is rapidly growing and the time is not distant when the man who gets an office by buying it will not be permitted to hold it, for he is not the people's choice and is not fit to hold office.

"The man who buys an office is on a par with the receiver of stolen property and a debaucher worse than a thief because he not only commits a felony, but he makes men creatures who do not even have their own self respect. I will not permit such crimes to be committed in this judicial district and go untouched.

"If there is vote-buying in the primary I will have the matter investigated and immediately following the primary will have special sessions of the grand jury in Franklin, Scott, Bourbon and Woodford counties and put it up to the grand juries and petit juries of this district to endorse such conduct and crimes or to send to the penitentiary the man who sells his vote if he will inform on the buyer.

"I will play no favorites and any man found guilty in these districts will be punished. I have plans for securing this information, the details of which I need not divulge further than to say there will be strict watchers at the polls, men of the highest integrity, and vote buying will not be winked at, for now that we have an opportunity for free and fair elections we will not let that opportunity go.

"The man who buys his office is not fit to be an officer in a prairie dog town. I take this opportunity to serve notice on the candidates in the primary that vote-buying will not be permitted."

Judge Stout was very complimentary to the officers of Woodford county for their courageous conduct during a recent crisis in Woodford county in which they upheld the law. He instructed the grand jury to investigate cocane selling, bootlegging, violations of the game and fish laws, and the carrying of concealed weapons. His charge to the grand jury made a profound sensation when it became known.—Blue Grass Clipper.

Star Boy

Will make the season of 1913, on Tuesday at Bellevue; on Wednesday at Petersburg; on Friday at Union, and the remainder of the time at the stable of Ezra Aylor, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the fact is known or mare is parted with after being bred. Care will be take to prevent accident but will not be responsible should any occur.

Star Boy is 16¼ hands high, sired by Bristow 19732, by Byron Wilks, 2:18, dam, Twin Martha. 1st dam Lady Star, jr., by Wilstar 2:17¼, 11151, by Robert McGregor 647, 2:17¼, dam, Wilka Monroe. 2d dam Lady Red Leaf by Red Wilks, jr., 4881, dam Orphan Girl. High Bred Trotting Stallion,

Walter Winans

No. 30,400.

Tr. Rec. Over Half Mile Track 2:19

Season 1913, at H. G. Blanton's stable, Erlanger, Ky. Walter Winans' service fee for 1913 will be $10.00 to insure a living colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with after being bred.

Walter Winans is a solid chestnut sorrel, is 16 hands high, weighs 1,350 lbs. and if right fat would weigh 1,400, his disposition is perfect. His colts are uniformly good size and color, and the only one of his get that has been raced has a record of 2:11.

Walter Winans' breeding is fashionable, and is in line with the greatest sires in the world, being a half brother to the great Cresclus, 2:02½, and the fine breeder, Wilstar, 2:17½, whose colts always sold for high prices throughout Indiana and Ky.

Walter Winans sired by Robert McGregor 647, dam Rilee, (dam of Kate Ham, 2:28¾, etc.) by Hotspur, Jr., 3612; grandam Tugles by Mambrino Gift, 684, etc. (see Rilee Vol. 13) bred by Geo. H. Ketcham, owner and breeder of the celebrated Cresclus.

Robert McGregor 747 was sired by Major Edsall, 2:11, dam by Nancy Whitman.

SEASON 1913

I wish to call the attention of the breeders of High Class Saddle and Harness Horses of Northern Kentucky in regard to

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS,

2844 A. S. B. A.

Bracken Chief (2148)
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Mambrino Le Grande 99

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1,200 pounds, with [illegible] feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet,

By BRACKEN CHIEF 2148

by Harriron Chief 1606 by Clark Chief (89), dam, Kit Hardy (2830) by Indian Chief 1718).

1 dam Miss Berry 4034 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99)

2 dam by Weil's Yellow Jacket 112.

3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor.)

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1908 and sold for $3,500, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show, Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmons? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest price Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief's and his sons and grand-sons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzstmmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible should any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Best's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners.
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

The Fine High Bred Percheron Stallion,

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1913 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs., and is 17¼ hands in height. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the drafthorse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

PRINCE OLSEN was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., where he was foaled in 1907, and from whom he was purchased by me in 1911, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olson was a high bred registered Percheron mare. I feel that farmers and breeders will make no mistake in breeding to Prince Olsen as it means a good, strong colt that will meet every requirement on the farm. One of the lacking features of our horses is the size and strength. With the well bred Percheron like Prince Olsen these essentials are fully incorporated.

Come and see the horse and inspect his good points and you will breed to him.

Two Fine Young Jacks,

Ben and Dewey.

BEN is a black jack with mealy points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ears, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Kentucky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. Service fee $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine jack, five years old, and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Take a look at them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

JOSEPH READNOUR,
apr3-6t Walton Ky.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

Why we are Advertising It

We are giving "Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence as wide publicity through newspapers and farm journals, as is given most news items of national importance. This advertising, of course, costs us a great deal of money. Why are we spending it?

Simply because we thoroughly and honestly believe "Pittsburgh Perfect", AS MADE TODAY, is a fence unequaled by any other on the market.

We know exactly what's in it, for we make it entirely in our own furnaces and mills.

Doesn't our faith in "Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence make it worthy your full investigation?

Made in Different Styles for FIELD, FARM, RANCH, LAWN, CHICKEN, POULTRY and RABBIT YARD and GARDEN

Every Rod Guaranteed

Ask your dealer for "Pittsburgh Perfect" and insist on his furnishing it. Do not allow him to persuade you that some other fence is just as good. If he doesn't sell it, write us direct.

For Rent—Five room cottage on High street. Apply to Miss Gladys Wilson.

Miss Lora Diers spent Thursday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Diers.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Tompkins spent Monday at Owenton with friends, and on business.

P. O. Banion, of Owenton, and Simon Billiter of Williamstown, were here Monday on b[illegible]

S. H. Stephens, president of the Deposit Bank at Independence, spent last Thursday here on business.

Chas. T. Best sent a very fine filly to Carthage, Ohio, Monday, to be track trained for the coming fair season.

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Baird spent the week at Butler, Pendleton Co, attending the District Conference of the M. E. church.

Wm. D. Lee, of Cincinnati, was here Monday looking at some farm property with a view to making an investment.

Jas. A. Huey, one of the public spirited citizens of Union, was here Monday delivering his wool crop sold to S. C. Hicks.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kipp, of Cincinnati, spent Decoration day here with friends, and decorating the graves of their departed loved ones.

Geo. W. Sanders and son Clifford, of Ludlow, were visitors here last Thursday, coming out to decorate the graves of loved ones.

Rumor has it that W. Lee Gaines and Hugh R. Watson will open a meat market in the stand lately occupied by Bruce Dudgeon retired.

The colored Baptist church baptized the seven converts recently obtained to the church last Sunday, the immersion taking place in the mill pond.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Williams and children have moved from their home at Walton to their farm near Verona, intending to spend the summer season there.

Judge T. J. Crowe had his foot badly mashed recently by a colt stepping on it, tearing off the nail on his big toe, causing him to be badly crippled for several days.

Judge Charles Strother spent a part of the past week at Williamstown, attending the M. E. District Conference in session at Butler, he being a delegate from the Walton church.

Jas. R. McDaneil, of Warsaw, and Ed. C. Houston, of Newport, were here the first of the week taking orders for the silos said to be the best silo manufactured for this section.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad is having a large force of hands at work putting in the electric block system which greatly increases the safety and efficiency of the railroad operation.

The building of the Baptist church was sold at public auction last Saturday, the building to be razed and taken away after the new church building is ready for occupancy. W. B. Johnson officiated as the auctioneer, and Wm. Brittenhelm was the successful bidder at $390.

Jno. L. Vest spent Saturday at Georgetown and addressed a large assemblage of the tobacco growers who have interests in the pooled tobacco of 1909 relative to the pending suit in the Court of Appeals in which the right of the stockholders are asked to be respected so as to give them a voice in the selection of the directors of the organization.

John C. Miller had on exhibition the first of the week a most remarkable hen egg that measured seven and one half by nine inches. It contained besides the regular constituents of the ordinary egg another full sized egg covered with the regulation shell. It was as large as a goose egg, and was laid without any particular demonstration by an ordinary but good sized hen.

Two car loads of napped rock consigned to John S. Grimes, were sold to the Kenton county road authorities the first of the week at a bargain by Spinks & Co., who shipped the stone by mistake to Mr. Grimes, and he declining to take the stone as he had not ordered it, the demurrage was absorbing the value of the stone, until the Kenton Co. people kindly bought the stone.

Walton Lodge Knights of Pythias elected the following officers last Thursday night for the ensuing term: Chancellor Commander—Everett Smoot; Vice Chancellor—Thomas F. Curley; Prelate—Wm. Kennedy; Master of Work—Carl Nenmeister; Master of Arms—Wm C. Moxley; Keeper of Records and Seal—S. L. Edwards; Master of Exchequer—W. O. Rouse; Deputy—Grand Master—Ernest McElroy; Inside Guard—E. M. Johnson; Outside Guard—D. B. Wallace.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company has under consideration an addition to its excellent service that will be greatly appreciated by the citizens of Walton and the traveling public generally, being the putting on of a commuter, leaving Worthville at about six o'clock and returning in the evening at about the same hour. The train is just what the people of Walton would like to have and it would be well patronized all along the line.

Miss Mary Burke, who formerly resided here but is now in the employ of The Canadian Northern Telephone Co. at Winnepeg, Manitoba, spent part of last week here with friends. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Burke, former residents of this place but now residing in Cincinnati. Their daughter, Mrs. R. W. Buchanan, who resided at Birmingham, Ala., died May 14th, at Ludlow, Ky., aged 28 years. The many friends here extend their heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Slater and little daughter Miss Nell have moved to Ludlow where Dr. Slater will practice his profession. He has rented his property here to Robert W. Jones who will move into it at once. We regret to lose this excellent family from our town as they are citizens of which any community could be proud, but the opportunity for Dr. Slater was so much better at Ludlow that he felt it was but justice to himself to make the move. He is an excellent physician, and is very successful in his practice, and he will be quite an acquisition to the city of Ludlow.

The Boone county pooled wool was sold last Wednesday at the Emery Hotel, Cincinnati, and R. L. Combs, of Lexington, was the successful bidder, but the price was kept private. The Kenton county pooled wool was sold at Walton last Thursday, and Daniel Sabel, of Louisville, was the successful bidder, the price being $23.75 per cwt. Samuel C. Hicks was the next bidder at $23.60 per cwt. There were four other bidders, Messrs. R. L. Combs, of Lexington; Isaac Rosenbaum Simon Dinkelspeil and D. Davis, of Louisville. The price is very satisfactory considering the conditions of the market, and Sam C. Hicks was mainly responsible for the good price obtained.

Joseph Glinn, one of our old citizens, came across a piece of paper among his possessions last week that he prizes very highly. It refers to the happiest period of his life when he was a school boy, in 1846, and it reads as follows: "Reward of Merit Cruises Greek School House, Oct. 2, 1846. I certify that Joseph Glinn attended my last term of school and was a diligent and good little boy and made good progress in learning. He was head of his spelling class thirty-eight times. He has his teacher's love and respect.

J. M. JACOBS.

The "little boy" followed the fortunes of the gallant Gen. John H. Morgan in the civil war, and has seen a great deal of this big world since he was given the reward of merit, and has tried to do his duty in all lines in the same earnest manner.

Mrs. Lulu Jones-Brittenhelm, the beloved wife of Wm. Brittenhelm, died at her home here Tuesday morning at five o'clock, after a lingering illness from consumption, aged twenty-five years. The deceased was a most lovable young lady, having a sunny disposition and was kind and affectionate to everybody within the circle of her acquaintance, and particularly to her relatives. She was married to Tom Brittenhelm in February 1912, and spent the past two winters in Florida, where she was married at Daytona, while there on a visit. Mrs. Brittenheim was born in Kenton county on the old Jones farm, near Walton, and resided in this quarter all of her life, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jones who reside in Walton, and have been untiring in the devoted care they gave their daughter, recognizing that the separation was soon to come. Besides her parents and husband, she leaves two sisters, Mrs. J. G. Slater of Ludlow, and Mrs. Sallie Howard of Harrison, Ohio. The deceased was a favorite with a very large circle because of her lovable nature and her universal kindness to everybody, and her death has caused sorrow to pervade many hearts. The funeral takes place from the Walton Baptist church Thursday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. H. C. Wayman conducting the services.

Messrs. E. B. and A. C. Jackson and their wives, two young couple of Hamilton, Ohio, were over to see G. B. Powers relative to a deal which they are expecting to make later, making the trip in their touring car. They lunched with Mr. Powers and returned to Cincinnati the same day. It being their first trip through the hills of Kentucky they were delighted with their trip and said it looked like old Kentucky for them. They lost heavily by the recent flood and say they can not describe the destruction did there.

All parties who have pooled their wool with the Walton precinct are requested to remove all burs and tags and roll up nicely and keep dry. Will receive at Walton Friday, June 13. Sacks at Walton Bank and Trust Co.

G. B. POWERS.

We would like to say just a word about the roads on R. D. 1. The river has been over just about one fifth of the distance traveled by rural carrier. A natural fill has resulted—that is the road bed is about from one half to three feet higher than before the flood. Now this is going to make a fine summer time road, but look out next spring. A grader on this four miles covered by water would be of untold benefit and after it is graded up a good coating of gravel of which there is an abundance right on the flooded part of the road, would be of untold benefit. Unless some steps are taken to care for our poor roads on R. D. 1 they will be impassable about three months next year. Another thing—the old system of working 20 miles of road with enough money to put one mile in good shape is now obsolete. If you only have $300 for the road on R. D. 1 use that on these bad places to make the road passable rather than scatter the work out over the 20 miles and make it all worse than before. But what is the use of all this? An R. D. carrier don't know anything about the roads. Ask some candidate about this road question.

TWO DEAD

And One Badly Wounded When The Smoke Had Cleared Away.

A party of negro laborers who were gambling in a boarding car on the Q & C. Railroad near Richwood, last Sunday, raised a row in which guns were used freely, and when the smoke cleared away two negroes, one shot thru the head and the other through the heart were dead, while a third had an ugly bullet wound in his mouth

Sheriff B B. Hume happened to be in the neighborhood, and was called to the scene, and being told in which direction the negro charged with the shooting had gone, he, accompanied by a boy who knew the negro, started in pursuit, and was not long in capturing him He brought the negro to Burlington and placed him in jail

Coroner Murat, of Constance, was called and held an inquest on the two dead men

The negro who did the shooting says his name is William Bell, and claims to be from Greenville, Georgia He claims not to know the name of either of the men killed, and says that one of them was shot accidentally, and he does not know whether he or the negro he was shooting at killed and wounded the bystanders There have been several shooting and cutting scrapes in the camp at Richwood since its location there, and it has become very much of a nuisance to the good people of that neighborhood

Bell will remain in jail until the grand jury meets again He claims he was shooting in self-defense, and shows two bullet holes in the knit jacket he wears, from which it is evident he had a close call He says that the negro he killed shot at him first

The deceased was a most lovable young lady, having a sunny disposition and was kind and affectionate to everybody within the circle of her acquaintance, and particularly to her relatives. She was married to Tom Brittenhelm in February 1912, and spent the past two winters in Florida, where she was married at Daytona, while there on a visit. Mrs. Brittenhelm was born in Kenton county on the old Jones farm, near Walton, and resided in this quarter all of her life, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jones who reside in Walton, and have been untiring in the devoted care they gave their daughter, recognizing that the separation was soon to come. Besides her parents and husband, she leaves two sisters, Mrs. J. G. Slater of Ludlow, and Mrs. Sallie Howard of Harrison, Ohio. The deceased was a favorite with a very large circle because of her lovable nature and her universal kindness to everybody, and her death has caused sorrow to pervade many hearts. The funeral takes place from the Walton Baptist church Thursday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. H. C. Wayman conducting the services.

Messrs. E. B. and A. C. Jackson and their wives, two young couple of Hamilton, Ohio, were over to see G. B. Powers relative to a deal which they are expecting to make later, making the trip in their touring car. They lunched with Mr. Powers and returned to Cincinnati the same day. It being their first trip through the hills of Kentucky they were delighted with their trip and said it looked like old Kentucky for them. They lost heavily by the recent flood and say they can not describe the destruction did there.

All parties who have pooled their wool with the Walton precinct are requested to remove all burs and tags and roll up nicely and keep dry. Will receive at Walton Friday, June 13. Sacks at Walton Bank and Trust Co.

We would like to say just a word about the roads on R. D. 1. The river has been over just about one fifth of the distance traveled by rural carrier. A natural fill has resulted—that is the road bed is about from one half to three feet higher than before the flood. Now this is going to make a fine summer time road, but look out next spring. A grader on this four miles covered by water would be of untold benefit and after it is graded up a good coating of gravel of which there is an abundance right on the flooded part of the road, would be of untold benefit. Unless some steps are taken to care for our post roads on R. D. 1 they will be impassable about three months next year. Another thing—the old system of working 20 miles of road with enough money to put one mile in good shape is now obsolete. If you only have $300 for the road on R. D. 1 use that on these bad places to make the road passable rather than scatter the work out over the 20 miles and make it all worse than before. But what is the use of all this? An R. D. carrier don't know anything about the roads. Ask some candidate about this road question.

TWO DEAD

And One Badly Wounded When The Smoke Had Cleared Away.

A party of negro laborers who were gambling in a boarding car on the Q & C. Railroad near Richwood, last Sunday, raised a row in which guns were used freely, and when the smoke cleared away two negroes, one shot thru the head and the other through the heart were dead, while a third had an ugly bullet wound in his mouth

Sheriff B B. Hume happened to be in the neighborhood, and was called to the scene, and being told in which direction the negro charged with the shooting had gone, he, accompanied by a boy who knew the negro, started in pursuit, and was not long in capturing him He brought the negro to Burlington and placed him in jail

Coroner Murat of Constance, was called and held an inquest on the two dead men

The negro who did the shooting says his name is William Bell, and claims to be from Greenville, Georgia He claims not to know the name of either of the men killed, and says that one of them was shot accidentally, and he does not know whether he or the negro he was shooting at killed and wounded the bystanders There have been several shooting and cutting scrapes in the camp at Richwood since its location there, and it has become very much of a nuisance to the good people of that neighborhood

Bell will remain in jail until the grand jury meets again He claims he was shooting in selfdefense, and shows two bullet holes in the knit jacket he wears, from which it is evident he had a close call He says that the negro he killed shot at him first

Plague Kills Horses.

Lexington, June 9.—Great concern is being felt by farmers in Madison and Montgomery counties because of an epidemic of blackleg that has spread among the horses. Large numbers of horses are dying every day and the veterinarians are baffled over it.

Horses in the city of Richmond are quarantined and farmers are tying their horses two miles out and walking into town. A carload was shipped to Richmond from Texas is believed to have brought the disease.

Attorney Joel C. Clore and wife, of Cincinnati, have moved to the summer home near Hebron, the Harrison Clore home, and one of the nicest places in this part of the county. The people of that neighborhood are delighted to have Mr. and Mrs. Clore with them for the summer.

In some places vegetation was nipped by frost last Friday night. Some think the cool wave that was blowing and not rain was responsible for the slight injury to tender vegetation. A field of corn in Pt. Pleasant neighborhood is said to have been badly injured that night.

Why not plant blackberries? That may sound ludicrous to the old timers who have been accustomed to gather the wild berry from the fence corners. Experience has shown, however, that these berries may be cultivated with profit. They come in just about the time strawberries go out, and would thus provide several weeks' extra work for the berry pickers. It would likewise fill in a season that may be spared from the other crops.—Bowling Green Messenger.

Springfield, Ky., June 5.—Hearing a shot from the direction of the field a short distance from the house where she knew her husband, a farmer, was working, shortly before noon today, Mrs. Elvin Anderson rushed to the scene and stumbled across her husband's body. Death apparently had been instantaneous and came from a wound in the head caused by a heavy load of buckshot. Blood hounds from Hustonville were taken to the scene and for a time apparently had found a trial, but lost it.

The flood of a few weeks ago washed from its piers the iron bridge near the mouth of Little Catt Creek in this county. Several good citizens of the neighborhood got together and put the bridge back in place, and it is now in good condition. This cost the county nothing except the use of a block and tackle. The citizens who did this work were V. B. Shortridge, J. W. Woods, Jeff Collinsworth and others. This is the spirit that needs to get into all of our citizens.—Louisa News.

Mr. W. E. Thompson, of the Kidk wood section, tells us that last Thursday he saw a commotion and went to investigate and found that a big cow sucker snake had gotten among the flock and swallowedo ne of the young brood. It raised its head above the grass as Mr Thompson approached, and tried to make good its escape, but he killed it. The next day he was attracted to the same spot and found a second snake, probable the mate of the first one, for it was equal in size, and Mr Thompson killed it, too. —Harrodsburg Herald

Messrs. Hudson & Davis, the grain and hemp dealers of this city, finished receiving and shipping the largest and best hemp crop grown in Kentucky in many years. The crop embraced 300 acres of hemp, which weighed a total of 375,000 pounds. It was grown by Messrs. Woodford and Taylor. Mr. Woodford is a son-in-law of Mr. J. M. VanMeter, of Danville, and is well known here. The crop represented one third of all the hemp grown in Kentucky the past year. Hudson & Davis purchased this hemp before it was planted last year at $7 per hundred.—Danville Advocate.

Although results are not glaringly apparent, the Courier's fight for better roads, better schools and improved agricultural conditions in Morgan county and Eastern Kentucky is bearing fruit. We are sufficiently encouraged to keep up the good work. The time will come when our efforts will be more fully appreciated, even if at present we do have to be content with the knowledge of a duty well performed. The people are awakening gradually, but it is a matter of history that no reform is ever heralded by a torch-light procession and a blare of trumpets.—West Liberty Courier.

Mrs. Richard Cornelius, who lives in Temple Hill addition, went out to the garden to gather greens for dinner and was bitten on the fore-finger by a snake. So quickly did the poison act that within five minutes a chalk white streak about an inch and a half wide had extended to her shoulder and she became very dizzy and remained so for several hours. As soon as Mrs. Cornelius screamed her husband ran out to her and killed the snake. It was about two feet long, nearly as large as a broomstick, had a black back and yellow streaks down the side, but nobody could tell the specie.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Pollard has a horn to blow to warn people of his coming with the ice wagon Recently a mother in East Marion told her little boy not to go away to visit the neighbor children without asking leave, consent, and by way of emphasis, told young America if he did so the bad man would get him. The little fellow forgot, as boys of 10 do, the injunction of his parent until he heard the unearthly sounds of Pollards' horn, announcing the approach of the ice wagon He then lost no time in running home and trying to hide himself in the folds of his mamma's dress while saying excitedly, "The awful's coming mamma; don't let him get me; I won't do it any more"—Marion Record-Press

Jas. Mudge, of Spottsville, who was in the city Tuesday, told the Gleaner that because of the low stage of Green River and the rise of Ohio river the current in Green River has changed and the water is now running up stream. He said this was the first time this had ever occurred to his recollection. The current, he said, is strong. Much driftwood is flowing up the river. The Ohio has forced the stage of Green River at Spottsville to twenty six feet. Many country people, hearing of peculiar condition of the river have been attracted to Spottsville. This condition exists for several miles up the river, and for some distance further the river is stagnant.—Henderson Gleaner.

Here's The Plumb Bob

It's just another proof that Tubular Cream Separators are just up to the minute—miles ahead of anyother. No other machine has it.

What's It For?

It enables you to level the Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator in a minute—quicker than you could find the spirit level you must use to level all other separators. A glance at the plumb bob, hanging there on the back of the Tubular, will always tell you whether the Tubular remains level. In that way you get the very best work out of the Tubular, for all Separators should be kept level to do their best work.

Tubulars have dozens of exclusive flue points and are sold on the level. Bring the wife in. See how simple, perfect and different from others Tubulars are.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,

The Young Clydesdale Stallion,

THE KNIGHT,

Recorded Vol. 17 and 33.
His Scottish and American Stud Book numbers (16110) (16143)

THE KNIGHT is a dark brown with gray hairs, blaze face, four white legs, white spot on belly; foaled April 27, 1908, bred by James S. Stenhouse, Fod Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Leitch & Sons, Lafayette, Ill. in the fall of 1911. He was sired by Baronson (10981); 1st dam Princess of Fod the 1st, (17117) by Mains of Aries (10379); 2d dam Lady Madge (14553) by Gallant Poteath (8638); 3d dam Lady Darnly (7372) by Darnly (292).

This horse is a low set, thick well built horse, over 16 hands high, and weighs 1670 lbs. He stands on the best of feet and legs with a splendidid top; he also has rare good action.

This horse was a prize winner last fall at the Indiana and Illinois State Fairs—word to the wise. Remember that the Clydesdale is the coming popular horse for the American farmer, the result of experience and education.

I will give a cash prize of $15.00 for the best weanling colt regardless of sex, sired by The Knight and to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home in the fall of 1914.

This horse will be allowed to serve a number of good mares at the nominal sum of $15.00 to insure a live foal money due when the fact is known or mare parted with. He can be seen at all times at the place of Wm. Ackmyer, one mile west of Bullittsville on the Bullittsville & Dry Creek pike.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Don DeGozee

The Belgian Draft Horse, foaled in 1908, will make the present season Monday and Tuesday of each week, after April 21st, at W. J. Rice's stable, Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at E. J. Aylor's stable, one and one-half miles from Hebron, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.

Description and Pedigree.

Don DeGozee, despite his great size and weight, is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He has as light action as a stallion of much smaller type, and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad, flat foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than another draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle, kind workers.

Don DeGozee's dam, Della Wire, brown mare, the great draft show mare of Campbell county, Ky., sired by Bayard DeGozee No. 2188, he whose Belgian Stud Book number is 21670, bred by Mr. Baileux E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (312), he by Brilliant (709) out of Coatte (703), dam Catherine DeGozee (21083), she by Lion (766) out of Marie (2421).

Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

RECKLESSNESS IS CHARGED.

Goodpastor Attacks Management of Eastern Normal School.

Frankfort, June 5.—Almost reckless use of money in the expenditures of maintaining the Eastern Kentucky Normal School at Richmond, and money spent with no hope of return in the form of benefits to students, is the charge Sherman Goodpaster in his report to Gov. McCreary of his investigation of the financial condition of that institution.

In addition to the general maintenance of the institution a farm has been purchased by the school at $18,000, a house used by the President was purchased at a cost of $12,500, and remodeled at a cost of $2,343.42, and an addition has been made to Sullivan Hall at a cost of $28,400.

Goodpaster says that the statute providing for expenditures of money appropriated to this school is not broad enough to cover such expenditures as these.

Goodpaster estimates that at the end of this month the school will be $81,781.98 in debt, with no available assets to meet the expenditures.

Two Men Discuss the Present Schoolbook Law.

BOTH AGREE IT IS UNJUST.

To Have the County Authorities Select the Children's Schoolbooks Often Means a Hardship For the Parents and a Loss of Valuable Time to the Pupil.

"Say, Bill, somebody told me the county is to select the children's schoolbooks for next year."

"Yep, that's what the fellers round the courthouse say. It's a new law again."

"No; I reckon they've gone back to the one we had a good while ago. Well, all I can say is I'm mighty sorry."

"Why? Don't you think our folks can select good schoolbooks?"

"Course they can, but that ain't the point I'm drivin' at. Look here, you're leasin' a farm same as I am, ain't you?"

"Yep."

"Well, suppose you buy your boy an' girl a set of books for school next fall, an' then 'bout the Christmas holidays you go over into the Big Bull Skin neighborhood just across the county line."

"By George, I hadn't thought about that side of the question!"

"Course you didn't, 'cause your kids are just little fellers, an' they ain't been to school long. But you wait until you have a whole raft of 'em, like I've got, an' then you'll understand what a big thing it can be. I remember mighty well one time when I moved from one county into another. The move wasn't more than five miles either, an' the new books I had to buy for my four children cost me $9."

"That's mighty tough, an' I don't wonder you're kickin' about it."

"If the cost of the books was all of it it wouldn't be so bad. I've got a heap bigger kick comin' than just the cost of the books."

"What is it?"

"What hurts me is that sometimes a child'll lose a lot of valuable time. There's my oldest boy. He's goin' on sixteen, an' he's through the eighth grade an' ready for the high school. He'd been through almost two years of high school work if he hadn't lost time changin' from one school to another."

The man was silent for a moment before he continued sadly: "The boy's big for his age, an' now he's goin' to work because he feels he is too big an' old to go through high school. The changin' round means that my boy won't take a high school education like he planned to. Just the other day I saw in a paper where the average pay for the man who had only gone through the eight grades was almost $400 less than that of the feller who had had a high school course. If that's so my boy'll stand to lose almost $8,000 in hard money in the next twenty years of his life. He'll lose enough through the changes in his school to buy him a first class farm."

The men were silent again for a few moments. At length one spoke up. "Kinder strange how all of us fellers talk an' plan how things ought to be run at Washington," he said. "We talk of who should he president an' all that. An' we won't take the trouble to try to straighten out a schoolbook law in Kentucky that means money out of our pockets every time we move an' money out of our children's pockets for the rest of their natural lives."

"Say, let's all agree to watch the schools just a little bit, an' let's get busy with our next legislature an' see if us fellers that stand between the plow handles an' feed folks can't have things fixed to suit our pocketbooks an' to make it better for our children."

The New Schoolbook Law.

A strong effort is expected to be made at the next session of the general assembly to amend the textbook law, possibly restoring the system of state selection. The present law provides that each county shall choose its own textbooks through a commission composed of a member of the county board, a member of the board of examiners and a county school principal. The old contract will expire next year, and as no selections have ever been made by county commissions those in favor of state selections are desirous of securing legislative action restoring it before the county commissions have a chance to act. Under the old state system the county judges, county superintendents and county attorneys voted on the textbooks and a majority ruled. Some form of legislation will be considered by the Kentucky Educational association at its meeting in Louisville, April 30, and probably a draft of the measure favored by a majority will be prepared for submission to the general assembly.—Editorial Pineville Sun.

COVINGTON, KY.

Harrison Prince, 3340.

Will make the present season at the stable of G. T. Gaines, one mile from Burlington, Ky., on the Petersburg pike, at $15.00 to insure a living colt.

HARRISON PRINCE is a chestnut stallion, 16 hands high, 4 years old, has a large blaze face, two white feet, and is the perfect type of a saddle horse with fine finish and action a champion in his class from a colt. Harrison Prince comes from a family of show horses on both sides and is a show horse himself. His sire is Dandy Jim, 2d, 1531; the well known show horse by McChief, 1451, by Rex McDonald, 833, by Rex Denmark, 840, he by Crigler's Denmark by Old Denmark Chief. His dam, Mary Neal, 1605, also a show mare, by Boyd Wilkes by Favorite Wilkes 2d dam, Skiddles, by Washington Denmark, Jr., by Washington Denmark 64.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

In 1914 a premium of $10 will be given for the best and $5.00 for the second best colt of this year's get of Harrison Prince.

His colts were shown the first time last season and were never defeated in the ring. H. T. GAINES,

Burlington, Ky.

The Impt. Germam Coach Stallion,

PLUTARCH

No. 3183.

Will make the season of 1913 at my stable one mile west of Idlewild, Boone county, Ky., at Ten Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

Will be at W. J. Rice's stable near Burlington, every Saturday.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1912 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

The Fine Black Jack,

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at the same time and place at Eight Dollars to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Lanky Bob is 4 years old, 15.3 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur. Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season. No business done on Sunday. Will give mares special attention and pasture furnished at $1.50 a month. T. E. RANDELL.

THE FINE SADDLE AND HARNESS OR GENERAL PURPOSE STALLION,

HARRY WILLIS,

Is a handsome blood bay stallion with star in forehead; stands 15¾ hands high, was foaled in 1897, and weighs 1,150 pounds. His conformation, individuality, breeding and reproductive qualities all combined in one horse go to make that desire of all conservative breeders—an ideal stallion. He is the personification of perfection, has a fine head and neck, strong, deep shoulders, short back very fine quarters, clean flat legs, good bone, fine mane and tail.

He has a good disposition and fine action, and is an unparalleled breeder.

Don't Kill Crows.

To those who know how difficult it is to kill the wary crow, this will sound laughable, but it is a fact that thousands of crows are killed every year by farmers, either by traps or poison. But experts, who have made a thorough investigation of this, declare that while the farmer is justified in scaring the crows away from his grain and corn fields, he should not kill the birds because a single crow can and generally does destroy more cutworms in a day then ten men could dig up and destroy in a week. Man cannot locate the wiry, soil colored little worm; he can only find it by chances, while the crow can locate them with ease and locate their tiny holes in the soil, and with one bang of their strong beaks drag Mr. Cut worm forth from the soil to add him to his daily repast. A crow weighing two and a half pounds was experimented upon and it was found this bird actually ate his weight in cutworms in one day, and apparently could have eaten more. The crow, therefore, can save more crops from the ravages of cutworms in a day than he can destroy in a week. Crows are heavy eaters. It is true they will pull up tender sheets of corn if they have the opportunity, but they will also eat the worms, and apparently prefer the worms. A very young robin was also experimented with. He ate sixty-eight earth worms in a day, these making a bulk larger than the bird. Robins will strip a cherry tree of its fruit in a few days, but, with netting over the trees, these robins will also decide a garden of insects that would have otherwise prevented at least half if not all of the tainted things from growing to maturity.

o Develop Kentucky Oil Fields.

During the coming summer and all Kentucky will undoubtedly experience very active developments in the search for oil. Never before in the history of the State have oil men manifested the interest in prospecting for new territory. Heretofore Kentucky has received a "black eye," to use the operator's expression, on account of the low production and short lives of the previously discovered fields. But in the opinion of those who are familiar with the wildcat drilling that has been done and who are acquainted with the geology of Kentucky the State has not been fairly tested. In many cases not enough money has been expended to properly prove the character of leases that have later been abandoned. But with the coming of practical oil men, come intelligence, experience, and what is more important, sufficient money to make thorough tests. On the east lies West Virginia, one of the greatest States outside of Pennsylvania for quality and quantity of crude petroleum. On the north lie Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, all rich with oil. On the west and southwest are Missouri and the rich fields of Alabama. Tennessee has not yet received attention, while Kentucky, the next step, is just coming into her own with the present rise in the price of oil.—Bedford Herald.

The United States Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin which will be of special interest to members of the Boys' Corn Clubs in Kentucky and elsewhere. It has the title "How to Grow an Acre of Corn," and was written by C. P. Hartley, a department expert who is in charge of corn investigations.

In the introduction the bulletin sets forth that for no 10-year period has the corn yield of the United States ever exceeded 28 bushels to the acre; that no State has averaged for any year more than fifty-four bushels to the acre, and that "as States and as a nation twice as much land is being performed in producing the corn crop than is necessary."

Large yields have been secured on experimental acres and otherwise practically every State in the Union—in almost every county in some of the States. Mr. Hartley thinks that the acre yield of corn in the United States can be doubled. The information in the bulletin is most valuable as Mr. Hartley tells what kind of corn to grow; how to begin corn improvement work; how to select seed and prepare it for planting; how to select the ground and how to fertilize it, cultivate it and protect it from insect enemies. Advice is also given as to harvesting, drying and caring for seed corn and for determining the yield.

The bulletin deals with the general requirements of the crop, these are given as a foundation upon which to apply local experience and personal knowledge. Mr. Hartley strongly urges the keeping of accurate records, as they "will point the way to further improvement." The weakest defense, he says, is the vast acreage of poor corn, which is impoverishing farms and farmers. As a motto for corn improvement workers he suggests "fewer acres and more corn to the acre." This, if adhered to, is certain gradually to raise the average.—Courier-Journal

If the Lexington, Burlington and Florence, Burlington and Petersburg and the Bullittsville and Dry Creek turnpikes were in good condition for machines the Sunday auto travel on them would be immense as they would make a delightful circuit for the city autos to cover every Sunday, and the receipts at the gates would be swelled wonderfully.

W. M. RACHAL & CO.,
UNION, KENTUCKY.

Mrs. Agnes Huey Garnett.

Mrs. Agnes Huey Garnett was born Sept. 1st, 1838, departed this life Thursday, May 29th, 1913 at 8:30 p. m., being at the time of her death 74 years, 8 months and 28 days of age.

Mrs Garnett was the daughter of John and Matilda Huey. She was born in Hancock county, twenty miles east of Carthage, Ill., and here she was reared and lived during her early years.

The deceased was of a family of twelve children—10 brothers and two sisters. Of these children six are still living—Frances Jane Turner, of St. Mary's Ill., Robt. Huey, of Carthage, Ill.; Jas. W. Huey, of Beardstown, Ill.; Perry C. Huey, of Plymouth, Ill.; Geo. W. Huey, of St. Mary's Ill.; Frederick G. Huey, of Arlington, Kansas.

On Oct. 22, 1863, Agnes Huey was married to Wm. Reuben Garnett also of this county, and they made their home here until they moved near Luray, Mo., 16 years ago.

To this union seven children were born, two of whom died in infancy. The other five children are, Mrs. J. I. Botts, of Carthage, Ill.; Geo. F., of Luray, Mo.; John E., of Wichita, Kansas; Anna M., of Carthage, Ill.; W. Jay, of Luray, Mo. There are six grandchildren, two of whom, Ruby and Gladys Garnett, have made their home almost continuously with their grandmother.

In March 1899, during their residence in Missouri, Wm. Reuben Garnett passed to his eternal home, and in the fall of 1906, Mrs. Garnett and Miss Anna came to Carthage to reside and have made their home here since that time.

Mrs. Garnett united with the St. Mary's Baptist church while a girl in her teens. When she and her family moved to Missouri her church membership was transferred to the church at Luray, and later her membership was placed in the Baptist church of Carthage. Although in recent years not permitted to attend her church, she was yet faithful and loyal to all of its interests.

She loved her God, her Saviour, her Bible, her home and her church, and believed in a better world beyond.

During most of her life, Mrs. Garnett has been a reasonably strong woman. A severe cold which settled in her head during her young womanhood was the immediate cause of a partial deafness which continued through life.

About the middle of last February our departed sister was taken with the illness which has at length culminated in her death. She has been bedfast for the past month and critically ill for the last two weeks. Although, doubtless, suffering some, yet she did not complain. Her heart was full of gratitude to the last, and before her departure she called the loved ones to her side and expressed her appreciation for their care of her. She was perfectly willing and ready to go.

She was the ideal mother. Her beautiful and holy affection was generously and purely returned by her children, who mourn her loss today. They have no memory of unkindness or neglect shown their now sainted mother. They tenderly cared for her and ministered to her thru all the years and especially in her widowhood, and they have been permitted to soothe her last days and hours and will reverently lay her precious form in the tomb. They have much to comfort them in their grief. In this home everything was done that love and care and tenderness could do to let her down gently into the dark valley.

She led a lovely, quiet life and was ready for an abundant entrance into the heavenly land. Mourn not for her, she has found the loved ones gone before. She is happy in that world where pain and sorrow are unknown, and when those she so loved depart for that neavenly home may she be the first to give them her greeting within the gates.

Among the beautiful bank of flowers on her casket were roses, planted by her own hand, the original bush being brought from Kentucky by her mother.

The funeral service was held at the family residence in Carthage on Friday afternoon at 3:30, conducted by Rev. T. H. Boggess, her pastor, with sermon by Rev. J. F. Foley, of St. Mary's, a former pastor and life long friend of the family. The text was Heb. 10-34, "Knowing in yourselves that ye have in heaven a better and an enduring substance."

The interment was made in the Luray cemetery by the side of her husband, with a short service at the grave by Rev. Foley.

T. H. B.

Margaret Dempsey.

Death has taken from our circle, Margaret, the beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dempsey, who passed from this life Saturday afternoon, May the 31st.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at 9 o'clock. After the Requiem High Mass and a beautiful and consoling sermon by the pastor, Rev. Father Kroger, the remains were laid to rest in the Carr cemetery in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing friends and relatives.

Maggie was a dutiful, affectionate daughter; a kind, loving sister; and a faithful, unchanging friend. Her sweet, quiet ways and gentle, sympathetic nature, made her a favorite with all and her bright, friendly smile will ever be a pleasant memory.

She will be sadly missed in the community in St. Patricks parish of which she was always a devout, zealous member.

She leaves a father, mother, three sisters and three brothers, who have the heartfelt sympathy of all in their sad bereavement.

The pallbearers were George Ryan, Thos. Carr, Patrick Maddin, Joseph Allen, Jerry J. Dempsey and Martin Code.

Ransom Plunkett.

Ransom Plunket was born in Gallatin county, Ky., August 15, 1825, and departed this life at the home of his daughter in Florence, May 23, 1913, aged 87 years, nine months and 8 days

Mr Plunket was united in marriage to Mary Ellen Ossman in 1848. To this union were born twelve children, six of whom died in infancy and one son, Dudley, dying at the age of twenty-one years

He united with Concord Baptist church about 52 years ago, since which he has ever been a faithful follower of his Saviour, all of his old neighbors testifying of the kindly, christian character of this good, old man

Since the death of his wife, about twenty years ago, he has made his home with his children and grandchildren. The surviving children are: Alonzo Plunket, of Walton; Mrs G. A. Ryle, of Hathaway; Mrs J. R. Whitson, of Florence; Mrs M. E. Breeden, of Alabama, and Mrs Wm. Mullinix, of Louisville

He is also survived by twelve grandchildren and fourteen great-grandchildren, to all of whom he was warmly attached

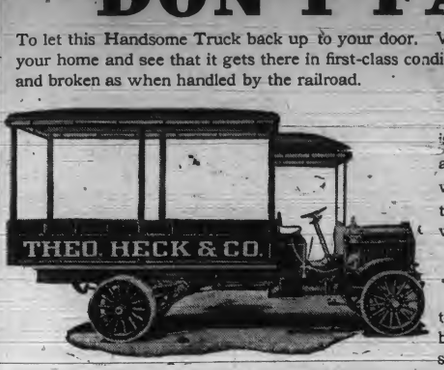
On Sunday, May 25, the remains were taken to the New Bethel Baptist church near Verona and after a comforting funeral discourse by Rev H. C. Wayman were laid to rest by his wife and son to await the resurrection day.

While we grieve for him we know that our loss is his gain and that by emulating his life of christian service we can meet him in a better world

PENSION ACT UP.

Constitutionality of Kentucky Confederate Measure Argured Before Appellate Court.

Frankfort, Ky., June 3.—The constitutionality of the Confederate pension act was argued today before the Court of Appeals, former Congressman W. J. Stone, of Kuttawa, and Judge J. H. Hazelrigg, of Frankfort, defending the act, while Assistant Attorney General Morris, representing State Auditor Bosworth, argued against the constitutionality of the measure.



The issue was made by a suit of Jas. Harp, a Frankfort veteran, to compel the State Auditor to issue a warrant for his Feb. pension.

Auditor Bosworth said his bondsmen questioned his right to consider the claims valid and he wished a test made of the law. The case happened to be set for argument on Confederate memorial day.

Labor and Gold.

The much discussed increased cost of living is more of a theory than an actual condition. People prattle about the steady growth in prices of commodities without realizing, that, while the purchasing price of the dollar is less that it was a decade or so ago, they are, as a rule, earning more dollars. It isn't that living has gone up, but that the value of gold has gone down.

Why have prices gone up? Because the labor that produces everything receives more dollars. The purchasing power of the dollar has grown less because gold is more plentiful and consequently it is a cheaper commodity.

Another feature of the increased cost of living is that our wants have increased. We are not contnt to live as simply as we did a generation ago. The chief difference between our life today and a generation ago lies in the change of customs rather than in any greater shift in balance between cost and remuneration.—The Independent.

The contractor who was doing a lot of grading on the Southern railroad in the neighborhood of Richwood, this county, seems to have gotten in debt to a large per cent of the Erlanger business houses and showed a disposition to avoid the payment of their claims, when they began making things lively about the clerk's office in Burlington, taking out attachments to secure their debts.

A grasshopper invasion of large proportions is reported from New Mexico. It is not, however causing alarm among officials of the United States department of agriculture at Washington. From a report received from one of its agents it is not likely to spread over a large territory. The report also shows it is the "differential grasshopper," not the fast moving variety that spread over nearly the entire country in the early eighties.

If the corporation that is operating Latonia race track is not able to pay for legitimate advertising it ought not try to dead beat the county papers by sending out its advertising matter under the guise of news articles. It is too big a concern to be a dead beat. Latonia is not the only institution in Kentucky that tries to bunko the rural press along that line, and some of the local papers suffer themselves to become their victims.

They were prompt at all times and always pleasant and ready to accommodate a patron in every way that was consistent with good service.

Those who have seen the work Thomas Rice did with the grader out on the East Bend road are delighted with it. The road is nicely crowned, sloping from the center to the ditch on either side, insuring perfect drainage. Some suggest that if it was properly oiled it would take it a long time to get bad. Mr. Rice graded two miles of the road at a cost of $27, whereas to have done the work in the old way would have cost over $100 and the work would not have been done so well.

The weather last Saturday militated considerably against Temp Graves' candidates' picnic at Harvest Home grounds. Only nine ing candidates for representative among them being Hon. John J. Howe, of Carrollton, candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney. Speeches were made by Mr. Howe, and Hon. G. E. Carroll and W. T. Stott, the latter two be candidates for representative. Quite a crowd of young people were present and enjoyed the dancing. Considering the disadvantage of an unfavorable day the picnic was a great success.

Public Speaking.

I will discuss Consolidation of Rural Schools, High Schools, School Taxes, Graded Schools and other issues relative to Boone County Schools at the time and places named below:

Hebron, Thursday, June 12th at 7:30 p. m.

Rabbit Hash, Friday, June 13th, at 7:30 p. m.

Belleview, Saturday, June 14th, at 7:30 p. m.

Walton, Tuesday, June 17th at 7:30 p. m.

Verona, Wednesday, June 18th, at 7:30 p. m.

Florence, Tuesday, June 24th, at 7:30 p. m.

Union, Thursday, June 26th at 7:30 p. m.

Beaver Lick, Friday, June 27th at 7:30 p. m.

Big Bone Springs, Saturday June 28th at 2 p. m.

Petersburg, Saturday July 5th at 7:30 p. m.

There will be a frank discussion of these issues. My opponent has been invited to state his position on these issues either at these places or in writing. The tax payers have a right to know for what a candidate stands.

EXTRACT

From Speech of Senator Ollie James in the U. S. Senate.

"Senator James' speech was the notaple one that has been delivered on the floor of the Senate during the present tarriff debate. Jos P. Tumulty, sec. to the President, sat in the gallery and heard every word of the address. Then he hurried to the White House and within an hour Wilson had written a personal note to the Kentucky Senator congratulating him. Senator James showed that he is a master of oratory. The following were some of his utterances and the reader can imagine their fire and effect;

"Mr. President, platforms are a bond of honor. This is a new age. When we find our President who was elected upon this platform, standing like a stonewall, demanding that it shall be carried out, it is no time for other men to falter. Our republican friends passed a bill that in my judgement was a betrayal of their promises to the American people. If W. H. Taft had one-half the courage possessed by Wilson he would have vetoed that bill and bond fires would have burned in his honor upon every hilltop and in every valley in this republic. But he signed it and the people called him to account. We have a president now who writes upon the color lance of the democratic party. No compromise I am seeking. I ask none, I want none. I am for free sugar and free wool. I stand, Mr. President, for free sugar and free wool, I am prepared to uphold the hands of the greatest President we have had in 50 years and in my judgement one who has American people back of him this hour, as no man has had since the days of Andrew Jackson."

CALIFORNIA ALIEN LAND LAW.

The principle provisions of the new California Alien Land Law over which Japan has made such a to do, are as follows:

1. Aliens eligible to citizenship may acquire and hold land to the same extent as citizens.

2. All other aliens are limited to the specific conferred upon them by the existing treaties between the United States and the nations of which such aliens are citizens or subjects.

In the case of the Japanese the bill prohibits ownership of farming or agricultural lands, while permitting them to own residences and factories and shops.

3. Leases of agricultural lands by such aliens are permitted for a period of not exceedlng three years. There is a question as to whether renewals would be lawful.

4. Aliens ineligible to citizenship cannot inherit land. Upon the death of an alien land holder his property shall be sold by the probate court and the proceeds distributed to his heirs.

5. The state specifically reserves its sovereign right to enact any and all laws in future with respect to the acquisition of real property by aliens.

6. Present holding of ineligible aliens are not affected except that they cannot be bequeathed or sold to other aliens classified among those not eligible to citizenship.

Co-operative beef clubs or "rings" are begining to solve the problem of furnishing fresh meat for the farm home during the summer months, at at a nominal cost. Such a club is composed of about twenty or more farmers, who organize and form a club to dispose of at least one beef each week. This is operated in connection with a creamery, or at some convenient place in the community. A beef is slaughtered once a week, usually on Friday evening, and put in a cellar to cool over night. The next morning the carcass is cut and divided into twenty portions, or as many portions as there are members in the club. A sliding scale is followed, and each person gets a different portion of meat each week, until each has received a whole carcass. A price per pound for the different cuts is agreed upon, and cash paid for the meat. The proceeds are used for buying the animal and paying for the labor spent in dressing and cutting the carcass. Several of these clubs have been successfully operated in Minnesota during the past summer, and the farmers have had fresh meat all the season, at from five to twelve cents per pound.

Dawson Springs.—There seems to be a determination on the part of some person or persons that there shall be no tobacco crop this year. When ever possible plant beds have been scraped or otherwise destroyed. Where this plan failed it is being followed by the destruction of the plants in the fields. One farms which usually average 75 acres of tobacco will not produce a pound. This average will be seeded to other crops probably stock peas and alfalfa. From another portion of the county which produces immense crops, comes the report that more than half of the land set apart for tobacco has already been seeded to corn and more will be planted in other crops than tobacco.

The ground is working nicely.

COVINGTON MAN

Has Best Barn In United States—Harry Hartke Awarded Honor Over Competitors From All Over the Land.

One of the most highly valued prizes in the eyes of stock raisers in the United States has fallen to Kenton-co., and Harry Hartke, well known Covingtonian and prominent business man is wearing the smile that won't come off over his achievements. Some time ago a prize was offered by a well-known cement firm for the best constructed and most sanitary barn in the country. Additional prizes were offered for the same thing in each State and competition was keen among the stock raisers of the country. Hartke, who farms merely for pleasure, entered into the contest and sent pictures of his barn, which is located on his farm on the Dudley pike, to the editors of papers, who were the judges in the contest. In addition to winning the prize for the best constructed and most sanitary barn in Kentucky, Hartke captured the prize for the best barn in the United States. A check for $112 accompanied the letter, telling Hartke of his success, and consequently Hartke is well pleased with his efforts in maintaining a first-class and up-to-date barn. Second prize in the contest was awarded to Dr. A. H. Witherspoon, of Lawrenceburg, Ky.—Kentucky Post.

BLOODSHED IS FEARED.

Depredations of Night Riders More Serious Than Ever.

Henderson.—A reign of terror more serious than the similar depredation s of recent years is threatened by the Night Riders against the tobacco growers of this district.

During the past week, almost nightly, there have been minor depredations by these organized bands and today threatening communications from the "Riders" were received by William Elliott, president of the Stemming District Tobacco Association, and Leigh Harris, editor of the Henderson Daily Journal.

In the letter addressed to Editor Harris, the Night Riders assert that they are thoroughly organized and will prevent the production of a single pound of tobacco in this district this season. They announce that they plan to destroy beds, plants and tobacco in barns.

The farmers in this section are arming and bloodshed seems inevitable.

SUSPENDED ANIMATION

Winchester Youth Victim of a Peculiar Disease.

Winchester, June 3.—Frank Singleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Singleton, is in a critical condition, no hope being held for his recovery. The young man was examined by a specialist some time ago, who stated that he was a victim of nine maladies, any one of which would result in his death in a short time. Dr. M. S. Browne, of Winchester, however differed from the other physicians maintaining that the young man was not suffering with any trouble which would necessarily prove fatal. Dr. Browne stated, however that within the past few days there had developed serious organic trouble which will probably result in the young man's death. The case is the strangest which has come into the experience of Dr. Browne. Singleton has had several attacks of "suspended animation" without any heart action or other signs of life, for from fifteen to twenty minutes at a time. Each time he was believed dead by the grief stricken family, but he would rally later to perfect consciousness. It is stated by physicians that the attacks may continue for days.

CHILD IS KILLED.

Mother Glaims the Little One Ran Under Ax While She Was Chopping Wood.

Frankfort, June 3.—Seven year-old Raymond McManaway was killed by his mother, Mrs. Clara McManaway, who claims while she was chopping wood the child ran under the ax. There are two wounds in his head, one in the front and other in the back.

The discovery of the child's death was made by Geo. Armstrong, an older son of Mrs. McManaway, when he returned home and on opening the door his mother exclaimed:

"Oh, George, I have killed my child. He ran under the ax while I was chopping wood."

Mrs. McManaway became very ill shortly afterwards, and when revived she told her physicians she had taken carbolic acid to wash her mouth. It is believed she is temporarily insane. She was taken into custody pending the investigation of the killing.

Fatal Horse Disease.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—State Veterinarian Graham is here to investigate the disease which has appeared among horses and mules in some sections of the county and has caused considerable uneasiness by its fatal nature. It is believed to be the same disease that has been attracting attention in other parts of the State and which has already been taken cognizance of by the State officials. One farmer has lost four head of stock and others have suffered considerably. No effort will be spared to staamp out the disease in its incipiency.—Ex.

THE DEMAND FOR BEEF

Far Exceeds The Supply and High Prices Are the Result.

Washington.—The demand for beef far exceeds the supply and high prices are the result says a bulletin issued by the Department of Agriculture. The shortage in the supply of meat producing animals too, is steadily becoming greater and the country is warned that it is facing a period of short production of meat.

In the past six years there has been a decline of more than 30 per cent in the number of beef cattle in the United States, according to the Department, and already during the first three months of this year there has been an approximate decrease of 13 per cent in the number of meat animals under government supervision when compared with the same three months of 1912.

Estimates of the department give the number of beef cattle in the United States on January 1, 1907, as 51,566,000 and at the beginning of the present year as 36,030,000.

Prices paid for cattle, sheep, lambs, and hogs last year were much higher than the preceding year.

"This year 1912," says the Department, "was a year of high prices for all classes of food animals." With the diminished production in the home market, the Department declares, there is no longer a surplus for export.

"The time has come," it says, "when we must conserve our meat supply."

Fell Into Sinkhole.

While driving thru some high grass on his farm at "Cloverdale," two miles west of town last Saturday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan and their little son met with an accident and their escape from injury was miraculous. The horse fell into a sinkhole that was hidden by the tall grass, the buggy was turned over, and all received severe jolts, but were not hurt. Mr. Morgan telephoned to town for assistance, and several men went down and shoveled out a pathway for the horse to climb up, and it was then o'clock before the animal reached terra firma. The horse was not badly injured but the buggy was broken in several places.—Oldham Era.

Dogs Versus Hogs.

The West Liberty Courier says there are five hundred families in Morgan county which own no hogs, but that most of them own two of three dogs. Morgan county, by the way, is not the only county in which such a state of affairs exists. It is simply remarkable how many families there are in Kentucky which cannot afford to raise hogs or sheep or to keep a cow, and these same families can and do afford anywhere from two to a dozen dogs that are not worth the buttons that would be required to poison them. Dog raising is one of Kentucky's flourishing industries and the state would be better off if fewer people were engaged in it. —Frankfort Journal.

The buyers will soon begin to move their purchase of lambs. There are some very fine lambs in the county this year.

Star Boy

Will make the season of 1913, on Tuesday at Bellevue; on Wednesday at Petersburg; on Friday at Union, and the remainder of the time at the stable of Ezra Aylor, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the fact is known or mare is parted with after being bred. Care will be take to prevent accident but will not be responsible should any occur.

Star Boy is 16¼ hands high, sired by Bristow 19732, by Byron Wilks, 2:18, dam, Twin Martha. 1st dam Lady Star, jr., by Wilstar 2:17¼, 11151, by Robert McGregor 647, 2:17¼, dam, Wilka Monroe, 2nd dam Lady Red Leaf by Red Wilkes, 486l, dam Orphan Girl. Bristow is the sire of Pat H 2:18 and Bristow Boy 2:31. Baron Wilks is the sire of Oakland Baron 2:09¼, Sister Alice 2:10¼, Royal Bayron 2:09¼, Bunnps 2:03¼, Rubenstine 2:05, Rachel 2:07¼, Nida Wilks 2:09¼, Red Silk 2:10 and Ecstacy 2:10¼ Robert McGregor was the sire of Crecus 2:02¼ and 91 others in the 2:30 class.

Tr. Rec. Over Half Mile Track 2:19

Season 1913, at H. G Blanton's stable, Erlanger, Ky. Walter Winans' service fee for 1913 will be $10.00 to insure a living colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with after being bred.

Walter Winans is a solid chestnut sorrel, is 16 hands high, weighs 1,250 lbs. and if right fat would weigh 1,300, his disposition is perfect. His colts are uniformly good size and color, and the only one of his get that has been raced has a record of 2:11.

Walter Winans' breeding is fashionable, and is in line with the greatest sires in the world, being a half brother to the great Crescius, 2:02¼, and the fine breeder, Wilstar, 2:17¼, whose colts always sold for high prices throughout Indiana and Ky.

Walter Winans sired by Robert McGregor 647, dam Rilee, (dam of Kate Ham, 2:28¼, etc.) by Hotspur, Jr., 3612; grandam Tuglee by Mambrino Gift, 584, etc. (see Rilee Vol. 13) bred by Geo. H. Ketcham, owner and breeder of the celebrated Crescius.

Robert McGregor 747 was sired by Major Edsall, 2:11, dam by Nancy Whitman.

Rhoderick 104
Mambrino Le Grande 99

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1,200 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet,

By BRACKEN CHIEF 2148

by Harriron Chief 1606 by Clark Chief (89), dam, Kit Hardy (2880) by Indian Chief 1718),

1 dam Miss Berry 4084 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino La Grande (99)

2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112.

3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor)

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1908 and sold for $3,600, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show, Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmons? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest price Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief's and his sons and grand-sons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzstimmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible should any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Best's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners,
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

The Fine High Bred Percheron Stallion,

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1913 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs., and is 17¼ hands in height. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

PRINCE OLSEN was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., where he was foaled in 1907, and from whom he was purchased by me in 1911, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olson was a high bred registered Percheron mare. I feel that farmers and breeders will make no mistake in breeding to Prince Olsen as it means a good, strong colt that will meet every requirement on the farm. One of the lacking features of our horses is the size and strength. With the well bred Percheron like Prince Olsen these essentials are fully incorporated.

Come and see the horse and inspect his good points and you will breed to him.

Two Fine Young Jacks,

Ben and Dewey.

BEN is a black jack with mealy points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ears, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Kentucky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. Service fee $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine jack, five years old, and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Take a look at them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

The Fence made entirely of No. 9 Wire is the Cheapest you can buy. Read why

No. 9 wire is stronger and takes more galvanizing in proportion to its size than smaller wire. Fences made entirely of No. 9 wire last many years longer in proportion than lighter weight fences, cost no more to string, cause less trouble, are better at all times. These are technical facts. "Pittsburgh Perfect" "Jumbo" Fences, made entirely of No. 9 wire in many styles and sizes, are the strongest made because of the Electrically Welded joints, most durable because of the high quality Open Hearth Wire and pure zinc galvanizing, and the most economical and satisfactory fences in the world. Specify "Jumbo" and save money.

Made in Different Styles for FIELD, FARM, RANCH, LAWN, CHICKEN, POULTRY and RABBIT YARD and GARDEN

Every Rod Guaranteed

Ask your dealer for "Pittsburgh Perfect" and insist on his furnishing it. Do not allow him to persuade you that some other fence is just as good. If he doesn't sell it, write us direct.

John G. Crisler who has been in a Cincinnati hospital for treatment for kidney trouble, is to return home this week, and his condition has greatly improved since a recent surgical operation.

Mrs. Sallie Mardis has returned home here from Cincinnati where she has been several weeks in a hospital for the treatment of a broken hip sustained a month ago by a barn door blowing down on her at her farm. Mrs. Mardis is much better, and on the road to rapid recovery.

Mrs. Hattie E. Metcalfe was awarded the second prize in the Kitchen Economy contest held by a Chicago packing house on "Ham Waffles" recipe, last week. The prize was $3.00. Each state is given three prizes, and Mrs. Metcalfe won the second. Mrs. Claude E. Ford of Cincinnati, won the third prize in Ohio contest.

Quite a number of our citizens were at Williamstown Wednesday, attending the Grant circuit court in the trial of an issue between Drs. G. C. Rankins and B. K. Menefee of their recent partnership, the case being transferred to Williamstown from Boone county at the last term of court at Burlington.

John B. Chenault, of Maysville, State Bank Examiner, was here last Thursday and examined the two banks here, and found them in excellent condition and stated that if all banks were conducted as the Walton and Equitable Bank and Trust Companies are there would be no cause for complaint on the part of the public or the authorities.

The remains of Mrs. Eliza Bean who died at Owensville, Clermont county, Ohio, were brought here Tuesday and interred in the Goshen cemetery. Mrs. Bean was in her ninety-third year, and was born and reared in this locality. She leaves three children, At Bean, of Owensville, Ohio; Ollie Bean, of Norwood, Ohio; Mrs. L. J. Stephenson, of Owensville, Ohio.

J. S. Grimes who has the contract of macadamizing the streets of Walton, received his long delayed car of screenings Sunday and the work of finishing the contract was resumed Monday. The delay was caused by a car of screenings breaking down and another car ordered was delayed by being side tracked at the wrong point. The work will now be pushed forward rapidly to completion.

Last Thursday, what was thought to be a newly made grave was discovered in Noman's woods, adjacent to town. As no one seemed to know of anyone burying any animal in that locality the opinion of some was that it was the burial place of a human being. A delegation of men, women and children with spades, picks and shovels assembled on the spot and with abated breath awaited the exhuming of the supposed to be corpse; but after laborous toil in the hot sun the hole was found empty. The assemblage then stole quietly away to their respective homes.

Walton Masonic Lodge had a very enjoyable session last Friday night when the entered apprentice degree was conferred on Robt. Coffman of Verona, and the Master Mason's degree was conferred on Geo. J. Grubbs. The work was particularly interesting as it has been greatly embellished by music and stereoptican views making the degrees more entertaining. Dr. J. G. Slater officiated in the first degree and Dr. C. C. Metcalfe presided as Master in the third degree. Jno. L. Vest delivered the lecture in a masterly manner, and all won praise for their excellent rendition of their respective parts. George J. Grubbs was presented with a handsome gold pin as a token of his being raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, and at the close of the exercises strawberries, ice cream and cake were served, with cigars following. The evening was greatly enjoyed by all and it was midnight before "good night" was said. The out of town visitors were Harris Watson and John Ingram, of Cincinnati, Dawson Chambers and Wm. H. Metcalfe, of Kenton county; and O. K. Whitson, Wm. Waller, J. A. Stephenson, of Verona.

The Tobacco Crop.

[From Farmers Home Journal.]

Much of Bourbon county's tobacco was set last week. A large acreage has been prepared.

Farmers who have had an extra supply of plants have in nearly every instance sold them at good prices

The 1913 acreage is fully up to that of last year with indications of a slight increase taking the Burley district as a whole.

A number of growers in Garrard county have been at a great disadvantage because of the evident shortage of plants.

Three-fourths of the plants in Kentucky were set last week and it is thought the entire acreage will be set by the end of this week.

There was a big rush in Jessamine county, setting out tobacco. Plants are unusually fine and a large acreage is being put out.

As a result of cut-worms in Bourbon county, which have wrought havoc in tobacco fields, some farmers have had to reset their tobacco.

The farmers in Carroll county, have set considerable tobacco—some completing their setting. A few, however, for lack of plants or ground ready to set, have not set any.

Plants are scarce in Montgomery county. A large part of the crop is planted and seems to be doing very well. The heavy rains ruined many beds by washes and insects have seriously tronled others. Some buyers who were short of plants bought beds at from $35 to $50 each. Some growers have not set a plant preferring to wait until plants are larger and feeling that if plants are set by June 10 will be ample time.

The past seasons for setting out tobacco have been a plenty in Gallatin county, and all the farmers have availed themselves of the opportunity to get out their tobacco. Plants have grown wonderfully well within that period and very little trouble has been experienced by any one in having the quanity needed. Probably three-fourths of Gallatin's 1913 tobacco crop has been set, and the younger plants, now doing nicely will provide for the remaining 4th of of the crop within the next few weeks of seasonable weather. Not in years has so large a proportion of the crop been set by this date, and the starting of the crop year is made unqer very favorable conditions.

How To Grow And Cultivate Peanuts.

One of our subscribers writes asking how to grow and cultivate peanuts in this State. It is not a difficult task to grow peanuts but it is sometimes difficult to get them to mature before plants are killed by frost in the fall. They need warm weather and warm soil. Plant them any time after corn planting time about as you would beans and cultivate the same way also. Plant them about a foot apart in rows.—Ex.

Marketing Farm Products.

Much has been said about buying and about cutting out the middle man by the farmers. This is not an important step, the middleman is as necessary as is the manufacturer, somebody must carry the surplus stock and keep in touch with manufacturers of the world.

The farmer has not the time nor the inclination to do this and when he employs an agent to do this for him he is getting himself into a tangled net which will soon cost him more than the home merchant who is always his friend. Now next to raising farm products the most important feature of the game is that of marketing at a profit; profit develops business and without profit there will be no business. The farmers convention at Chicago decided that farmers must have a better method of marketing. No matter how cheaply an article is produced unless it is profitably marketed it becomes a burden and a waste. Farmers must make connection with the consumer and this requires much judgment to select the useful middleman who in this case does not as a rule live within your home town but in some distant city.

Farmers should have a committee appointed to sell their products in a lump, to keep in touch not only with the markets but with government conditions. Until the marketing of farm products is more properly looked after, there will be loss and waste to the farmer. The high cost of living cannot be laid at the door of the producer but at the door of those who market the farm products.

The water in the creeks is getting in condition for fishing.

Prices as low as these are never made in June. Take advantage of this sale---buy and save---the more you buy the more you save.

Roxana Roberts Dead.

Roxana Roberts, third daughter of Thos. Roberts, Sr., was born in Boone county, Ky., on the 10th day of February, 1846. She united with the Middle creek Baptist church in 1868. She was united in marriage with LaFayette P. French on the 13th day of December, 1868. A few years later she went with her husband into the M. E. church, of Rising Sun. Her husband died a year ago last which event she has resided with her son, Hugh, most of the time a sufferer from her fatal illness. She had an abiding faith in our Lord Jesus Christ as her personal Saviour and a firm belief in the resurrection of the dead and of a future life. The closing scene occurred at seven o'clock, Friday, June 13, and the burial on the 15th at Riverview cemetery, Dearborn county, Indiana. The deceased was a sister of John O. Roberts, of Florence; T. Z. Roberts, of Middle creek, and Mrs. Mary Craven, of Hebron neighborhood. X. X. X.

BASE BALL.

Belleview defeated Erlanger at Erlanger, last Saturday, 10 to 4. There was some sansational playing intermingled with considerable that was very rotten.

Petersburg defeated Burlington at Petersburg, last Saturday, 2 to 1. Burlington made 10 hits to Petersburg's 4, which shows very rotten work on the part of Burlington.

The Belleview team has been defeated but once this season. Hubert Brady's heady playing last Saturday at Erlanger was largely responsible for the victory.

Burlington and Constance will play at Burlington next Saturday afternoon.

The Road Problem.

The road question that confronts Boone county is the most important proposition that has presented itself here in many years, and if properly adjusted it will be disposed of for many generations to come.

The people of the county stand as a unit in favor of good roads, but to obtain them they are not willing to provide the necessary money under the present manner of taxation, as by so doing, the county would be irretreaveably bankrupted. They are now paying about seven thousand dollars, annually, road tax from which no results are obtained, the amount not being equal to the demand, and to increase the rate of taxation sufficiently to raise enough money to make a creditable showing on the public highways each year would be oppressive in the extreme and the taxpayers will not stand for it.

Boone county has about 250 miles of public roads that should be kept in repair, and at least fifty miles of these roads are located in creeks and branches where it is impossible to keep them in condition, regardless of the amount of money spent upon them. There should be a general shake-up among the creek roads in the county with a view to making them easier to maintain.

The past has demonstrated clearly that the county can never have the roads that her geographical location, and her standing among the other counties of the State demand, until she makes a radical change in her road policy which, for a long time, has been regarded as a very expensive joke and which will be so regarded so long as continued.

The Recorder believes that the road troubles can be corrected in this county thru the medium of a sale of road bonds, and at the same time reduce the rate of taxation. For instance, let the county vote to sell one hundred thousand dollars in road bonds. These bonds could be floated at five per cent, and the annual interest thereon would be $5,000, two thousand dollars less than the amount of road tax paid every year. But it would not be necessary to sell this large amount of bonds the first year, consequently there'd be another saving to the taxpayers as they should only provide enough money each year to meet the interest on the outstanding bonds.

The bonds should mature at stated intervals which should be strung out as far as possible, thereby placing a considerable portion of them on the coming generation as it will reap the benefit of them and would willingly meet them as they would be a natural liability as it were. A ready sale for road bonds ranging in denominaton from $100 to $500 would be found among the citizens of the county, who, while paying a tax to meet the interest on the bonds would in turn be getting at least a portion of their tax back in interest.

By selling the bonds as their proceeds are needed in the construction of the roads the present rate of taxation could be somewhat reduced and, at the same time, a sinking fund created for the redemption of the bonds as they mature, a considerable portion of them only requiring that the present generation meet the interest on them. This is the only plan by which the exegences of the case can be met and at the same time requiring the taxpayers of the present day to meet and bear only an equitable portion of the burden which will be less than they are now carrying because of the road fund they are required to contribute annually.

The Recorder believes that with the necessary funds at the command of County Engineer Goodridge there would be a rapid change for the better in the public roads as he is proving his efficiency in road work, and at the same time handling the money in a most economical manner, but, so long as he is handicapped by the want of funds with which to do the necessary work there can be very little change in present road conditions in this county.

A Serious Accident.

Bert Smith, carrier on R. D. No. 2, left town Monday morning to go over his route in an open buggy to which was attached a colt that had been driven only a few times. When near Owen McMullen's old Sol began making it uncomfortably warm. When Mr. Smith attempted to hoist his umbrella which frightened the young horse and it began running. Mr. Smith was thrown out of the buggy and his right arm broken near the wrist. The buggy was reduced to kindling wood and a set of new harness was torn to fragments. Mr. Smith was taken to Hubert Bachelors and Mont Slayback went out after him. W. D. Cropper carried the mail for Mr. Smith on Tuesday, having Saturday's, Sunday's and Monday's mails to deliver. No mail went out on the route Wednesday.

Miss Gladys L. Rouse, of Florence, was graduated from the University of Cincinnati Saturday, June 14, and received the degree of Bachelor of Arts. It is a credit to the common schools and instructors in Boone county to have one of their pupils strive after and attain higher education

Owner Wanted.

Washington, June 15.—More than a half a century ago Uncle Sam was handed three bags of gold worth $600 and he is still holding them. Some thirty years ago he was handed a bag of valuable silver bullion, and the owner has left it with him ever since. The gold and silver has been a great nuisance to the accounting officers of the Federal Government, who do not know what to do with it, and Controller of the Treasury Downey has just decided it is a problem for Congress. In an effort to clear the accounts Geo. E. Roberts, Director of the Mint, appealed to the Controller to know if he could turn it into the Treasury to the credit of the men who presented it. The Controller holds such a course would require an act of Congress

In 1856 H. J. Peters brought $127.87 worth of gold bullion to San Francisco mint; in 1858 Jos. Baker presented $333.27, and in 1863 J. M. Souther handed over $356.96. Each was given a receipt and told to come back for a gold certificate as soon as the Government ascertained the value of the bullion. They have never returned.

In 1852 Thos. F. Davis brought $80.90 ounces of silver bullion to the New York assay office to be made into fine silver bars, and has not been seen since.

MISTAKE IN BUYING SEED

Most Satisfactory Results Obtained in Selecting Variety Adapted to Locality.

(By R. G. Weatherstone.)

We make a serious mistake when we buy seed corn that has been grown in some distant locality and plant it for our general field crop. It is better to grow a new variety for two or three years in our seed plot and test ed out and get it acclimated before we plant it extensively as a field crop.

It is well known that the corn crop must have certain climatic conditions in order to give a profitable yield and we who live outside of the great corn belt must devote more or less study and attention to the selection of varieties that are best adapted to our climate and soil if we make the crop profitable on our farms.

I have always obtained more satisfactory crops of corn by selecting my seed corn from some variety that has grown in my own locality for years. A variety that has been grown in a locality for a few years is already acclimated and by intelligent seed selection it can be bred into a more prolific character that will reach maturity in the climate where it has been perfected.

Changing seed corn is not a good practice. So far as changing is concerned it may be necessary for us to change in order to get better foundation stock, but when the stock is once obtained we should stay by it and try and improve it.

For very oily hair, use the beaten whites of the eggs instead of the yolks for a shampoo.

Here's The Plumb Bob

It's just another proof that Tubular Cream Separators are just up to the minute—miles ahead of anyother. No other machine has it.

What's It For?

It enables you to level the Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator in a minute—quicker than you could find the spirit level you must use to level all other separators. A glance at the plumb bob, hanging there on the back of the Tubular, will always tell you whether the Tubular remains level. In that way you get the very best work out of the Tubular, for all Separators should be kept level to do their best work.

Tubulars have dozens of exclusive fine points and are sold on the level. Bring the wife in. See how simple, perfect and different from others Tubulars are.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have beeu working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,
H. G. COLLINS, Erlanger, Ky.

How Stonewall Jackson Died.

Stonewall Jackson, who, next to Lee, was perhaps the most distinguished general of the confederacy, died fifty years ago, May 10, as the result of wounds received at the Battle of Chancellorsville, May 2, 1863. In the confusion of the battle and failing dusk he was shot down by southern troops. The story is graphically told by Mary Johnston in her novel, "The Long Roll."

The moon was coming up. She silvered the wilderness about Dowdall's tavern. She made a pallor around the group of staff and field officers gathered beside the road. Her light glinted on Stonwall Jackson's saber and on the worn braid of the old forage cap.

The clamor about Chancellorsville, where, in hot haste, Hooker, made dispositions, streamed east and west, meeting and blending with, westward, a like distraction of forming commands, of battle lines made in the darkness among thickets. The moon was high, but not observed. Behind him Captain Wilbourne of the signal corps, two aides and several couriers, Jackson rode along the plank road.

There was a regiment drawn across this way through the wilderness, on the road and in the woods, on either hand. In places in the wilderness the scrub that fearfully burned the next day and the next was even now afire; and gave, though uncertainly and dimly a certain illumination. By it the regiment was perceived. It seemed composed of tall and shadowy men. "What troops are these?" asked the general.

"Lane's North Carolinians, sir, the Eighteenth."

As he passed the regiment started to cheer. He shook his head.

"Don't men. We want quiet now."

A few hundred yards from Chancellorsville he checked Little Sorrel. The horse stood, fore feet planted. Horse and rider they stood and listened. Hooker's reserves were up. About the Chancellor house, on the Chancellorsville ridge, they were throwing up intrenchments. They were digging the earth with their bayonets, they were heaping it up with their hands.

Turning Little Sorrel, he rode back along the plank road toward his own lines. The light of the burning brush had sunken. The cannon smoke floating in the air, the very thick woods made all things obscure.

Stonewall Jackson came toward the Carolinians. He rode quickly past the dark shell of a house sunken among the pines. There were with him seven or eight persons. The horses' hoofs made a trampling on the plank road. The woods were deep, the obscurity great. Suddenly out of the brush rang a shot, an accidentally discharged rifle. Some gray soldiers among Lane's tensely awaiting ranks spoke from the core of a fearful dream: "Yankee cavalry!"

"Fire!" called an officer of the Eighteenth North Carolina.

The volley, striking diagonally across the road, emptied several saddles. Stonewall Jackson, the aids and Wilbourne wheeled to the left, dug spur and would have plunged into the road. "Fire!" said the Carolinians, dressed to the left of the road, and fired.

Little Sorrel, maddened, dashed into the wood. An oak bough struck his rider, almost bearing him from the saddle. With his right hand, from which the blood was streaming in which a bullet was imbedded, he caught the bridle, managed to turn the agonized brute into the road again. There seemed a wild sound, a confusion of voices. Someone had stopped the firing. "My God, men! You are firing into us!" In the road were the sides. They caught the rein, stopped the horse. Wilbourne put up his arms. "General! General! you are not hurt? Hold there! Morrison—Leigh!"

They laid him on the ground beneath the pines and they fired the brushwood for a light. One rode off for Doctor McGuire and another with a penknife cut away the sleeve from the left arm, through which had gone two bullets. A mounted man came at a gallop and threw himself from his horse. It was A. P. Hill.

"General, General! You are not much hurt?" "Yes, I think I am," said Stonewall Jackson, "And my wounds are from my own men."

The aides lifted the wounded general. "No one," said Hill, "must tell the troops who was wounded." The other opened his eyes. "Tell them simply that you have a wounded officer. General Hill, you are in command now. Press right on."

A litter was found and brought and Stonewall Jackson was laid upon it. The little procession moved toward Dowdall's tavern. A shot pierced the arm of one of the bearers, loosening his hold of the litter. It tilted. The general fell heavily to the ground, injuring afresh the wounded limb, striking and bruising his side. They raised him. pale now and silent, and at last they struggled through the wood to a little clearing.

On May 5 Stonewall Jackson was carefully moved from the wilderness to Guiney's station. Here was a large old residence—the Chandler house—within a sweep of grass and trees; about it one or two small buildings. The great house was filled, crowded to its doors with wounded soldiers, so they laid Stonewall Jackson in a rude cabin among the trees. The left arm had been amputated in the field hospital. He was thought to be doing well. At daylight on Thursday he had his physician called. "I am suffering great pain," he said. "See what is the matter with me." And presently, "Is it pneumonia?"

That afternoon his wife came. He was aroused to speak to her, greet her with love, then sank into something like stupor. There were times when he was slightly delirious. He gave orders in a shadow of the old voice. "You must hold out a little longer—Press forward! Press forward—Give them canister, Major Pelham!"

Sunday, the 10th, dawned. It was sunny weather, fair and sweet with all the bloom of May, the bright trees waving, the long grass rippling, waters flowing, the sky azure, bees about the flowers, the birds singing piercingly sweet, Mother Earth so beautiful, the sky downbending, the light of the sun so gracious, warm and vital!

A little before noon, kneeling beside him, his wife told Stonewall Jackson that he would die. He smiled and laid his hand upon her bowed head.

"You are frightened, my child. Death is not so near. I may get well."

The doctor came to him. "Doctor, Anna tells me that I am to die today. Is it so?"

"Oh, general, general! It is so."

He lay silent a moment, then he said:

"Very good, very good! It is all right."

Throughout the day his mind was now clouded, now clear. The alternate clear moments and the lapses into stupor or delirum were like the sinking or rising of a strong swimmer, exhausted at last, the prey at last of a shoreless sea. At times he came head and shoulders out of the sea, opened his grey blue eyes upon his staff. The sea drew him under again.

The day drew on to afternoon. He lay straight upon the bed, silent for the most part, but now and then wandering a little. His wife bowed herself beside him; in a corner wept the old man, Jim. Outside the windows there seemed a hush as of death.

"Pass the infantry to the front!" ordered Stonewall Jackson. "Tell A. P. Hill to prepare for action!" the voice sank; there came a long silence; there was only heard the old man crying in the corner. Then for the last time in this phase of being the great soldier opened his eyes. In a moment he spoke, in a very sweet and calm voice. "Let us cross over the river and rest under the shade of the trees." He died.—Houston (Texas) Post.

SHREWD SCHEME IS WASTED

Man Who "Beat" the Customs Inspectors Might Be Excused for Feeling a Little Annoyed.

The exacting regulations of the customs service bear heavily on the American returning from a trip abroad. The man or woman who cannot find more than the legal limit of $100 to invest in trinkets, presents, and various personal articles of apparel is rare. To be held up like a criminal and be forced to discuss with inquisitive custom inspectors the value of every little article in one's baggage is vexatious. So people frequently resort to subterfuge.

A man who had been in Siberia on business had an opportunity to buy there at very reasonable rates some beautiful sable skins. He decided that it was too good a chance to make his wife a desirable gift to be overlooked; so out of hundreds of skins he selected a dozen of great beauty. On reaching New York he sought the cooperation of several men friends, and each of them slipped a skin or two down the legs of his trousers, tying them with twine to his suspenders to prevent them from dropping too far. It was a very hot day, and as they stood about on the pier waiting to be passed by the customs men the skins got warm and smelled villainously. Finally, passed by the inspectors with their baggage, they hastened to a place where in seclusion they could remove the sable skins and turn them over to the owner.

Later the latter told the house that was to make them up of his ruse, and was considerably startled when the manager said: "That was a good deal of trouble to take with an article that is not dutiable."—The Sunday Magazine.

GREAT NAMES HAVE GONE

Long List of Men of Genius Whose Line Is No Longer Represented on the Earth.

When one considers how many families there are which trace their ancestry in a direct line for many generations, it is rather a surprising fact that there is not a single living descendant in the male line of some of the greatest men the world has ever produced.

For the preservation of our illusions regarding genius, it probably is far better that there should be no disappointing ordinary persons left in the world to represent the men whom we delight to honor.

To find a Milton engaged in the insurance business, or a Byron on the stock exchange would jar dreadfully on one's sense of the fitness of things.

The following is a list of some of the illustrious men whose line never will be represented on the earth again as long as the world stands:

Chaucer, Shakespeare, Spencer, Milton, Cowley, Butler, Dryden, Pope, Cowper, Goldsmith, Byron, Moore, Sir Philip Sidney, Sir Walter Raleigh, Drake, Cromwell, Hampden, Monk, Peterborough, Nelson, Bolingbroke, Walpole, Chatham, Pitt, Fox, Burke, Washington, Canning, Bacon, Locke, Newton, Davy, Hume, Gibbon, Macauley, Hogarth, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Sir Thomas Lawrence, David Garrick, John Kemble, Edmund Kean.

A Perfect Separator Oiling System

In a machine which is operated at the speed required for a cream separator, perfect oiling is very necessary.

The new system of De Laval automatic oiling provides for a constant and liberal supply of CLEAN oil to every wearing surface of the machine at all times. There are no oil holes to fill up with dirt or perhaps to be neglected altogether, and every part is supplied with clean oil from the oil reservoir automatically and constantly.

In other, so-called, automatic oiling systems some of the parts have to be oiled by hand and no provision is made for getting rid of dirt that may get into the oil from the outside or of small particles of metal which come from wear, so that after a short time the oil supply becomes foul and injurious to the finely adjusted wearing parts.

DE LAVAL Cream Separators

have the only automatic oiling system which provides for a constant supply of fresh oil and, at the same time, the constant discharge of the used oil together with all worn metal particles or dirt which may have gotten into the used oil.

The perfect system of De Laval lubrication means an easier running and a much longer wearing machine. Come in and let us explain the advantages of De Laval automatic oiling.

May Crop Report.

The May crop report is issued on an entirely different basis from any previous report. During the last winter, based on the 1910 census, the State has been divided into nine crop reporting districts and each district given a percentage weight in proportion to the yield of that crop in that district when compared with the total yield for the State. This is the plan governing the crop reporting for the Federal Government. There are now three separate sets of reporters reporting in this same way to three separate heads. We believe this will give us a more accurate summary of crop conditions than the State has ever yet gotten out.

The splendid prospects for a good crop May 1st, has been generally maintained up to June 1st. A great deal of complaint comes from Western Kentucky of lack of moisture. Central and Eastern Kentucky suffered from the same cause during the first of the month, and have suffered from an excessive amount of moisture during the latter part of May. However, most of the crops are in good condition, relatively speaking. Wheat shows condition of 85.7 per cent and is filling well. The corn crop is not all planted but there is an indicated crop of 94.5 per cent. The condition of planted corn is reported as 90.3 per cent. The oat crop 89.4 per cent and condition 79.4 per cent. The condition of rye is 85.4 per cent. It will be noted that an early drouth affected the rye and oat crops considerably. The same is true of timothy. The condition of potatoes is given as 93.1 per cent, indicating a splendid crop. 52.8 per cent of an average crop of Dark Tobacco has been transplanted, which shows condition of 81.7 per cent, 57.5 per cent of the Burley crop was transplanted by June 1st, with condition of 81 per cent. The tobacco plants in the Dark districts are reported small and scarce, indicating a shortage in the crop, while in the Burley District they are reported in splendid condition and plentiful. Excessive rains have occurred thruout the State since the first of June, and every prospect is for an average planting of Burley and not a fairly large crop of Dark. Many complain of cut worms both for tobacco and corn. The Bluegrass seed crop will be a short one. The condition of grasses is given as Bluegrass, 88.6 per cent, Clover, 81 per cent.; Affalfa, 80 per cent, and orchard grasses, 84 per cent. The drouth has affected pastures in Western Kentucky, but in Central and Eastern Kentucky the pastures are good. Cattle are reported in good condition; hog cholera is not as bad as during the winter months, and the condition of sheep and lambs is unusually good. Young poultry has done well, and there is a splendid crop of young chickens, turkeys and other fowls.

The condition of apples is 85 per cent, peaches 78.5 per cent, pears 61 per cent, plums 67 per cent, cherries 64.5, grapes 89 per cent. The strawberry crop has been fairly good. Raspberries will be a medium crop. There is every promise for one of the largest blackberry crops the State has ever had.

There is a disease known as Catarrhal Fever or "Pink Eye" among horses in several counties. The disease is proving fatal in many instances, and farmers are warned against taking animals into towns where this disease is known to exist and against working them if the animals once become infected. This department has on hand directions for handling this malady, a bulletin prepared by the State Veterinarian, Dr. Robert Graham, and directions for disinfecting infected stables. These will be sent free upon application to the department.

There has been a large corn crop planted, the stand is almost perfect, and farmers are urged to try shallow and frequent cultivation for the coming season. The old idea that three or four plowings were sufficient to make a corn crop should be abandoned, and if possible, plow five, six or seven times, but plow shallow. The farmer can very nearly count on getting an extra barrel of corn for every extra plowing he gives his corn. If it is only a bushel it will nearly pay its cost.

The Good Roads Law.

It is stated on good authority that bad roads in the U. S. are responsible for the loss of millions of dollars a year. The feeling is growing that if the waterways belong to the people the highways should also belong to the people, and that the people as a whole should look after their own property, instead of expecting charity work from those who happen to live along the roadside. If the roads belong to the people (that is the state) why should not the state pay for their making and for their upkeep? But it is well to remember that large bodies move slowly, and that it is only agitation on the part of the farmers living along the roadside that will result in bettering the roads. Every farmer knows that good roads mean increased land values—the ability to "get there" easily, quickly and comfortably; but the roads must be built right. Bad roads are an abomination. Ditches badly placed and weak, leaky culverts are simply money wasted. Road building is pleasant work. It is healthful, it is manly, it is invigorating. It is work out in God's open country. It calls out the best powers of a man and puts him on his mettle. He has to solve problems and gets rugged, strong and happy solving them. The idea that road building is the work of lowly menials is rapidly changing. Some of our foremost men are giving this important subject their earnest attention. In the past, we are told, all the nations that were truly great were builders of roads—so well built that they lasted for centuries. Today the last remaining monument of past nations are their roads. These great empires went into business of building roads scientifically.—Ex.

The Poolers Win.

The Court of Appeals has rendered an opinion sustaining the judgment of the Kenton Circuit Court giving the stockholders in the Burley Tobacco Society the right to vote their stock. This is the first victory for the poolers. J. G. Tomlin and J. L. Vest, of Walton, represented the poolers.

It is now well known that not more than one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. All that is needed is a free application of Chamberlain's Liniment and massaging the parts at each application. Try it and see how quickly it will relieve the pain and soreness. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

Morgan's Men to Meet.

A number of "Morgan Men" have been invited to take part in the homecoming celebration to be held at the village of Harrison, Ohio, next month, a part of which will be a representation of the raid through the town made by Gen. John H. Morgan's command about fifty years ago. A band of about 200 men will enact the part of Morgan's raiders. The bridge will not be burned as was done by Morgan in order to stop Hobson's Federal troops that were close on the trail; but one thing that took place in the years gone by will be enacted, the women of the village will be called upon to bake a few barrels of biscuits and other eatables for the 1913 raiders, just as the women of fifty years ago were called upon to bake for Morgan and his men in the day they remained in the village.—Ex.

Local Happenings.

The ground has been cultivating very nicely this sprng.

There will be plenty of blackberries for everybody it is said.

Elder J. S. Steers, of Dry Ridge, will preach at Salem next Sunday at 11 a. m.

The fourth of July this year fortunately is not the thirteenth day of the month.

The fair board held a meeting at the cottage on the grounds at Florence, last Friday.

The master commissioner has several big sales advertised for next county court day.

Farmers had a very fine article of weather, last week, in which to look after their crops.

The local creamery made 2,000 pounds of butter last week, the best week it has ever had.

V. W. Gaines, of Bullittsburg neighborhood, was paying 8 cents a pound for cattle Tuesday.

James Slayback and boys are putting up a large string of wire fence in the Limaburg neighborhood.

Richard White's hand in which he had blood poison is getting better slowly. He cannot use it yet, however.

B. B. Hume delivered four Ford automobiles last week. He expects to be selling them by the half dozen in the next few weeks.

The party who left some money lying on the counter at the Peoples Deposit Bank, Burlington, can have same by proving property.

Live stock in this county is in good condition. Several cows have died from the effect of bloat, but that trouble seems to have passed.

The big fish in Gunpowder creek were given a good chance to be caught last week but they did not take advantage of the opportunity.

The local colored Baptist church held its annual basket meeting last Sunday and it was attended by a large crowd, many coming from a distance.

The cold winds that prevailed several days this month took a great deal of the moisture out of the ground and checked the growth of vegetation.

Burlington Masonic lodge will have work in the E. A. and F. C. degrees next Saturday night. A good attendance of members of the order is desired.

Sidney Gaines and N. E Riddell caught some nice fish down on Gunpowder creek, last Saturday afternoon, among the fish being a pound and a half bass.

William Pope, of Middle creek, neighborhood, who has been ill of a spinal trouble for several weeks, was taken to a Cincinnati, last Monday for examination by a specialist.

NOTICE—There will be a meeting of the stockholders of Cloverleaf Creamery at 1 p. m., in Burlington on Saturday, June 21. The presence of all the stockholders is desired.
H. W. ROUSE, President.

Each age of our lives has its joys. Old people should be happy, and they will be if Chamberlain's Tablets are taken to strengthen the digestion and keep the bowels regular. These tablets are mild and gentle in their action and especially suitable for people of middle age and older. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Kirb Tanner found, one day last week, a curious shaped stone that was evidently, at one time, an implement used by the Indians in preparing their food. It is several inches in circumference at one end tapering to nearly a point at the other. On the small end was worked out places for the thumb and fingers when gripping it. The entire stone is very smoothly and especially the larger end. Mr. Tanner prizes it very highly.

The county was visited by a very fine rain and light hail last Tuesday night shortly after dark, and in this particular locality the electric storm accompanying the rain was something fierce. Keen claps of thunder followed each other in rapid succession, while telephone wires were snapping in every direction as though they were burning. The rain was timely for the pastures, the corn and especially the potatoes, and afforded a splendid opportunity for the growers to finish setting out their tobacco.

A GARD.

Verona, Ky., June 13, 1913.
To the Voters of Boone Co:

My occupation will prevent me from making a thorough canvass of the county as a candidate for the nomination of Assessor. It would give me pleasure to meet every Democratic voter and take him by the hand, whether it is his purpose to vote for me or for one of my worthy opponents. And I wish to say that I regard every one of my opponents as honorable and capable men. I am glad I can truthfully say this.

I was born in this county sixty nine years ago and have lived in it all my life, and while in some portions I am not known personally by its citizens, yet, in more than one half of it I am thus known, and I am willing to stand or fall upon the estimate placed upon me by those who have known me all the years behind us. I have filled and am now filling the office of magistrate and in that capacity have done the best I could, and have, to some extent, thereby extended my acquaintance and all I have to say to the voters now is that I haven't the time to see all of you, and if I had you would not or rather should not have the time to listen to me. This is a busy time—work while the sun shines and between showers and vote as you may think you ought to vote at the primary in August. If you fail to do this you will fail in your duty and if you perform your duty I shall be satisfied, "let the chips fall where they may."

As stated, I would like to shake hands with all of you and pass on, but will be unable to do this, and it should make no difference with you whether I do it or not.
Adv. BEN S. O'NEAL.

THE SCHOOL ROAD.

I wish to thank the citizens of Burlington and vicinity for the liberal way in which they came forward and built the road on the school campus. Perhaps half a dozen were solicited personally, then a public announcement was made and six teams and over 25 men were on hand at different times for a day and a half. The road is pronounced as being an excellent piece of work. It has a good metal bed of coarse stone covered with "napped" stone and finished with a thick layer of gravel. The job now lacks a little of being finished. Many who did not get to help have asked to be allowed to finish it. The day will be announced and the job finished before long. The job will not cost the county a dollar. Watch for the announcement.
EVERETT L. DIX.

PROCLAMATION.

It appearing that there is a vacancy in the office of Circuit Clerk in Boone County Kentucky, caused by the resignation of J. A. Duncan, the regularly elected clerk, and said vacancy existing three months before the next regular election, at which county officers may be elected for the the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, an election is now ordered to be held in Boone county on the regular election day, for the purpose of electing a clerk to fill said vacancy; and the sheriff of Boone county is now ordered to call said election, and give proper notice thereof by publication as required by law, and to cause the polls to be opened for that purpose.

Given under my hand this 19th day of April, 1913.

J. W. CAMMACK.
Judge of Boone Circuit Court and Fifteenth Judicial District of Kentucky.
Copy Attest.—
CHAS. MAURER, Clerk.

He Sounds A Warning.

W. W. Grimsley, the old Democratic war horse, who resides at the mouth of Big Bone creek, 'phoned the Recorder as follows, last Monday morning: "It is reported here that some of the candidates are carrying whisky in their valises, and the people here will not stand for that kind of a campaign and are spotting the guilty parties. Nothing but a clean campaign will satisfy the voters in this part of the county." If any of the candidates are carrying whisky about with them they will surely feel the effects of such an indiscretion on the day of the primary.

W. T. Stott, of Petersburg, passed through Burlington, one day the latter part last week, where he had been making a close canvass for the Democratic nomination for the Legislature.

In the days of the dust pan and the broom when the house wife is waging war on the stored up dirt from the winter, we can not but think of the many little details that are over looked that could give comfort in the hot days that are coming. Did you ever pause to reflect that the curtains so dainty and laundered so perfectly, and the floral hangings that you are putting up are not half so beautiful as fresh air is beneficial and that every breeze that tries to come into the room is obstructed by these ornaments? A lady who went to live in a large city was told that in the springtime in every home the window and door hangings were folded and laid away until Autumn when they were taken out and hung again for the brightness and warmth they suggested, that rugs were also taken up and bare floors or mattings used. This lady who was from Kentucky did not follow suit and her curtains for a long time were the only ones in the long row of windows. Finally she decided to follow the example of her neighbors and when the last rug and curtain were out of sight, the house cleaned she reveled all summer in its coolness. She soon acquired the slip habit too, that is she invested a few dollars in pretty cretons and made slips for every chair and divan whose winter upholstering made them look warm and uninviting. This was a saving and pleasing investment. The contrast between the effect of the rooms when Autumn comes and they take on the cheer required for winter more than compensates one for trouble but curtainless windows and rugless floors are not sepulchral looking any way, when in the broiling summer's day one seeks the coolness available.

JOD WORK OF CANNING CLUBS

Girls and Women Taught to Save Vegetables.

AIDED BY THE GOVERNMENT.

Experts Furnished to Give Instruction In Scientific Canning While Kentucky Agricultural Department Loans Modern Outfits—Women Are Also Showing Interest In the Work.

The garden behind each and every farmhouse produces each summer more vegetables than the family can use. When winter comes the farmer and his family have to buy canned tomatoes, peas, corn and beans at the cross roads store.

The Girls' Canning clubs that the United States government is developing in nine counties in Kentucky this summer are part of a huge movement to check this huge loss in fine food and money that totals millions annually. Besides the saving in money there is another point which is commonly overlooked. In canning vegetables that are home grown the housewife is sure she has a first class article.

That the work may be done in the best possible manner, the United States government is furnishing experts to demonstrate this home canning work. The state agricultural department is loaning each of the nine counties a home canning outfit, and the counties themselves are furnishing interested teachers, parents and wide awake country girls to form the clubs.

In Jefferson county clubs have been developed at Valley Station, O'Bannon's and Okalona. During the latter part of May the government expert gave three demonstrations. Of course there were no ripe tomatoes or beans in the country that early in the season, so they were bought in the city and taken to the schoolhouses where the clubs were to meet. Besides the girls who were members of the clubs, many mothers and interested housekeepers came and brought their dinners so they might get the benefit of all the work that was done.

After the first lot of tomatoes had been put through the canner by the expert in forty minutes the girls were thoroughly interested and continued the work. It was remarkable how fast the work went with five girls as busy as beavers. As one old farmer expressed it: "Every year I've been on my place I've made up my mind to plant fewer tomato vines, for I have more tomatoes than we can use and give away. But I don't believe I'll cut them down in number this year if the girls can do the work this fast. I've just been figuring on it a little bit, and this little canner that'll set on top of a one burner gasoline or coal oil stove will can sixteen quarts of tomatoes every three-quarters of an hour. That is 208 quarts in a ten hour day."

"Yes," remarked one of the housekeepers, "and the great beauty of it is, with the temperature you can get in one of these canners, you can can anything and be sure of its being perfectly sterile. You don't have to use anything with beans, for instance, but a pinch of salt and a little water.

"Well, it took a long time to get the old mothers in this part of the country to use thermometers to test their cream ore churning, and I reckon it'll take time to get them to use moders with thermometers so they will of results in canning."

FINE ALFALFA CROP

Record Field on the Farm of a Lincoln County Man.

Stanford, Ky., June 11.—What experts from the State University Experiment Station at Lexington pronounce the finest field of alfalfa in Kentucky is ready for the first cutting on the farm of W. P. Givens, about five miles west of Stanford, in Lincoln county. There are 27 acres to the field, which was sowed by Mr. Givens last August. In many places the crop is now three feet high and so thick is it that it will give an extra large tonnage to the acre. Mr. Givens expects to make at least four cuttings of the alfalfa hay crop off the field this year, and may go as high as five.

The second crop has already begun to sprout from the roots, and the first crop must be cut off before the second crop gets high enough to be trimmed off by the mowing machine.

During the past week the experiment station has had a force of experts at Mr. Givens' place viewing and photographing his alfalfa fields and making extensive notes of his method of preparing the land, cultivation and harvesting his alfalfa crops. Mr. Clayton, the agricultural expert of the Cincinnati Southern railroad, also paid Mr. Givens a visit and was high in his praise of the results which the Lincoln county farmer has accomplished. Photographs and extensive descriptions of Mr. Givens' methods will appear in a special bulletin to be issued by the State University Experiment Station.

Lexington, June 11.—The District Board of the Burley Tobacco Society, with 24 out of the thirty counties in Kentucky represented, gave out a statement to the poolers as to why the stock in the Burley Tobacco Co. promised each pooler had not been issued, saying that it was upon the advice of counsel for the company to await the outcome of the Kenton county suit against the society.

It was decided to reopen the ten-year pool next October to admit any growers who might wish to join it and to distribute the remainder of the 1906, 1907 and 1909 pool funds at the earliest possible moment.

CONGRESS WILL AID OHIO CITIES

Cincinnati, O.—After visiting the flood-stricken cities of Hamilton and Dayton, Senator Atlee Pomerene, who was here, en route to Washington, said that he was of the opinion that Congress should and would pass a bill providing an appropriation for the relief of the devastated districts of Ohio. He said that he was very much impressed by what he had seen, and that the nation, state and the individual should assist in rehabilitating the fortunes lost in the rush of waters, not in the literal sense, but in the interests of humanity.

"The conditions at Hamilton and Dayton beggar description," said the senator. "The greatest problem will come after the reaction has set in, and I hope that the good people of the country will open their pursestrings, and keep their pursestrings open, until these poor unfortunates are properly able to feed, clothe and house themselves.

"In Dayton alone there are about 17,000 houses damaged by the water. Up to the present timese these citi- Up to the present time these citizens have been living in a period of tense suspense, and when the reaction comes, they will be, perhaps, more in need of help than they are now. I believe that Congress will help them —it ought to—and I am sure that the state will."

RED CROSS GIVES $25,000

To Hamilton After Cincinnati Officials Telegraph Urgent Appeal.

Hamilton, O.—In response to a telegram from Dr. Otto P. Geier, superintendent of Charities and Corrections, Mabel Boardman, chairman of the board of directors of the National Red Cross Society at Washington, D. C., made $25,000 available immediately for restoration work at Hamilton.

Dr. Geier was one of a party, consisting of Mayor Hunt, City Engineer Waite, and Maj. Jones, of the United States Engineers, that visited Hamilton to see what was being done towards restoring the homes of flood victims.

They found, they said, that practically nothing had been accomplished in this direction because of a lack of funds, and conditions generally were in a deplorable state. The mayor offered to raise a considerable amount of money as a loan, so that quick action could be taken to aid the citizens of the stricken town in rehabilitating their homes.

BROTHERS MET AS PAUPERS

Living Together Ten Years in English Poorhouse, Kinship Is Revealed.

Two old paupers, who had been in St. Olave's workhouse, Bermondsey, one for ten and one for twelve years, were smoking their pipes in the exercise yard when the conversation turned on a street which was then being pulled down, says the London Weekly Telegraph.

"Ah!" said one, "that's the street where I was born."

"Were you? Why, so was I!" said the other. "Where did you live?"

"My mother kept the little corner shop when I was a boy."

"Why, so did mine," exclaimed the other.

The men started at each other. "You've made a mistake. My mother kept that shop—my mother, Anne Brown." Then the men rose and looked into each other's eyes. "Then you must be Jack?" "And you must be Bill?" And the old men—one seventy and the other seventy-three—grasped hands, knowing each other as brothers for the first time during their ten years of fellow paupership.

This is the explanation, Jack, the elder, went to sea when he was fifteen, and from that time troubled his family no more. He couldn't write, and he didn't find it convenient to call in at Bermondsey, as he was never near it. The second brother, when he was nineteen, enlisted, deserted and re-enlisted under a false name. Under the latter he married, and when he became a pauper he went to the workhouse with it. The brothers had not seen each other since one was fifteen and the other twelve.

That is how they came to sit side by side day by day in the workhouse for ten years, without the slightest suspicion that the same mother bore them both.

VALUE QUEER RELICS HIGHLY

Large Sums Have Frequently Been Paid for Articles That Many Would Call Grewsome.

It is not every man, not every hero worshiper, who would esteem the tooth of his hero of more value than diamonds. There is a ring belonging to an English nobleman, in which the place of honor, formerly occupied by a diamond, is given to a tooth that once did duty in a human jaw.

This tooth cost no less than three thousand six hundred and fifty dollars; but it was the tooth of Sir Isaac Newton. A relic collector sold it at auction in 1846, and the nobleman who bought it gave it the place of a diamond in his favorite ring.

Another tooth, which so far excites the veneration of hero worshipers as to be able to hold a court of its own and to draw from long distances a small host of followers, is one that was originally hidden behind the lips of Victor Hugo. It is kept at his former residence in a glass case bearing the inscription, "Tooth drawn from the jaw of Victor Hugo by the dentist on Wednesday, August 11, 1871, in the gardens attached to the house of Madame Koch, at three o'clock in the afternoon."

The wig of a literary man appears to have been even more sought after than his teeth. That which Sterne wore while writing "Tristram Shandy" was sold soon after the writer's death for ten thousand dollars; and the favorite chair of Alexander Pope brought five thousand dollars.

The most extravagant instance of literary hero worship is that of a well-known Englishman, who constantly wears a small locket attached to a chain round his neck a part of the charred skull of Shelley.—The Sunday Magazine.

Stevenson on the Bible.

Frederic Harrison, in an address delivered many years ago to the Bodley Literary society in Oxford, concluded with these words: "If you care to know the best that our literature can give in simple, noble prose—mark, learn, and inwardly digest the Holy Scriptures in the English tongue." It is interesting to learn what Robert Louis Stevenson said regarding the same theme. In a recent lecture on the author of "Kidnapped," by Oliphant Smeaton, that well-known critic and writer tells us how on one occasion, in the old Swanston days, his friend said to him: "I say, Smeaton, have you ever read finer prose than in Ephesus and Philippians?" According to the same authority, "R. L. S." knew whole chapters of the Testament by heart, but his supreme favorite among the sacred writings was the last fifteen chapters of the Book of Isaiah. In the Bible Stevenson found, says Mr. Smeaton, the magic of the finest prose.—Westminster Gazette.

Uncle Ike to Dear Bertha.

Do you know "Dear Bertha" or "Uncle Ike?" If so you are in a position to do one or both a favor and incidentally aid the employes of the Winsted postoffice in the performance of their duties. There is a card at the office for Bertha, and the message that it contains is such that Postmaster Glynn and his clerks are anxious to have it reach its destination. The message is as follows:

"Dear Bertha: If you go to the church I left some cheese on the plate near the organ. Will you take it away, if there is any left, and put it in the furnace? UNCLE IKE."

The writer neglected to add Bertha's address, and consequently when the card reached the office it was posted in the lobby with the dozens of others that are held for one reason or another.—Hartford Courant.

Joseph Glinn, Defendants

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April Term, thereof, 1913, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court-house door in Burlington, Boone Co. Ky., to the highest bidder, at public sale on Monday, 7th day of July, 1913, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabouts, being county court day, upon a credit of six and twelve months, the following described property, to wit:

Four (4) tracts or lots of land lying in a block, numbered, and on surveyor's plat containing the number of acres and fractions thereof, to-wit:

Lot No. one (1) contains 5 1-100 acres.

Lot No. two (2) contains 4 61-100 acres.

Lot No. three (3) contains 10 63-100 acres.

Lot No. four (4) contains 5 14-100 acres.

All of said lots front on the Walton and Verona Turnpike and adjoin the town of Walton, Boone county, Ky., and are all in said county. They are very desirable for building and home purposes, being large enough for truck gardening and small farming. These lots will be offered separately and then the entire track, of about 25½ acres, as a whole, with the right reserved to accept the highest and best bid or bids.

At the same time and place, I will offer for sale a tract of land containing about 51 acres, adjoining said town of Walton on the East and lying in the State and county aforesaid. Some of this land is now in blue grass, is all desirable for grazing and farming purposes and lays well.

The tract of land first mentioned and embracing said lots, is bounded thus: On the north by the Walton & Verona Turnpike road; on the East by L. & N. Railroad; on the South by the lands of Mrs. J. F. West, and on the West by the Conrad passway and toll-house lot.

The second tract is bounded thus: On the North by the lands of Lulu Hudson and Wm. Hudson, and on the West by the right-of-way of the Cincinnati Southern Railroad. These lands are bargains.

For the purchase price the purchaser with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. TO MAKE FIGHT

Progressive Party Will Have Candidate For Senatorship.

Stanford, June11.—The Progressive party of Kentucky will have a candidate for United States Senator in the primaries and general election next year, was the declaration of State Chairman W. S. Lawwill, of that party here. Mr. Lawwill was in Stanford in attendance upon Circuit Court and made the emphatic declaration that in addition to having full tickets out in the various counties this fall, the Progressive party will refuse to endorse W. O. Bradley, Ed. Morrow, Ed Franks, John W. Langley, or whoever may secure the Republican nomination to succeed Senator Bradley. Mr. Lawwill seemed greatly pleased with the progress the party is making toward securing a strong organization in every district and county in the State, and declared that there will be no fusion with any other party, and in addition to making its fight this year, may be counted upon to put a strong man out for the senatorship next year and a full State ticket in the field in 1915.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

CONSIDER SIZE OF WIRE When Buying Fence
DON'T BE FOOLED by Weight per Rod or Roll

There's no "bunkem" about weight per roll when you buy "Pittsburgh Perfect" because it is constructed without using extra wire to make the fence-joints. The extra weight of the joints in all wrapped, clamped, twisted or tied fences supplies no extra strength, but actually weakens these fences by persistently dragging down the panels, wearing them out before their time and making you buy more before you should. "Pittsburgh Perfect," the only fence with Electrically Welded Joints, is a one-piece fabric of unequaled strength, durability and economy, because we eliminate the expense of extra wire, and put this money into extra quality.

Made in Different Styles for FIELD, FARM, RANCH, LAWN, CHICKEN, POULTRY and RABBIT YARD and GARDEN

Every Rod Guaranteed

Ask your dealer for "Pittsburgh Perfect" and insist on his furnishing it. Do not allow him to persuade you that some other fence is just as good. If he doesn't sell it, write us direct.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Brands of Barbed Wire; Bright, Annealed & Galvanized Wire; Twisted Cable Wire; Hard Spring Coil Wire; Fence Staples; Poultry Netting Staples; Regular Wire Nails; Galvanized Wire Nails; Large Head Roofing Nails; Single Loop Bale Ties; "Pittsburgh Perfect" Fencing. All made of Open Hearth material.

S. B. Poland, one of Glencoe's representative citizens and clever gentlemen, was here on business Monday. Mr. Poland was here for the purpose of buying residence property and moving here. It is to be hoped he will find a suitable place as he would make a desirable acquisition to Walton's population.

Arthur England, aged 32, died Wednesday at the home of his brother-in-law, G. L. York, in Kenton county. The cause of his death was epilepsy. The deceased was a very large man, weighing nearly 400 pounds. The funeral occurred Friday, interment being at Butler, the funeral being in charge of A. M. Edwards.

Sunday, Mrs. Mary Fields delightfully entertained at the country home near here friends and relatives, among which were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Otis Acre, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Field and Mrs. Fred McMillan, of Ludlow, Mr. and Mrs. Wood Carpenter and Mr. and Mrs. Harley Baker, of this place.

R. S. Greenwell and E. W. Franks of Mt. Zion, were here Monday on business pertaining to the transfer of the blacksmith shop of C. S. Vallandingham and J. L. Greenwell, negotiations being pending by which the father of one of the boys is to take the shop, it having been in the name of the sons of R. S. Greenwell and L. P. Vallandingham, and both boys want to dispose of the property.

Wm. R. MaGruder, electrician on the Cincinnati and Louisville division of the L. & N. Railroad, moved with his family to La-Grange, by order of the railroad officials, where he will be more convenient to his duties. We regret to lose Mr. MaGruder and his estimable family from our midst where they have a host of friends, J. L. McCrutcheon, of La-Grange, succeeds Mr. MaGruder at this point.

The Boone County pooled wool delivered here last Friday amounted to 8,100 pounds, and was pronounced by the receiver as an excellent quality. The growers were shown how to roll up and tie each fleece, making better headway in grading and receiving. The wool sold for $23.60, and was three cents per pound more than it was sold by the farmer direct. R. Leslie Combs of Lexington, was the purchaser.

In the case of Dr. G. C. Rankin vs. Dr. B. K. Menefee in the Grant County Circuit Court last Wednesday, owing to the time it would require to review the evidence, etc., in the case, Judge Cammack ordered the attorneys for $2,565, possession to be given brief same, submit it to him at his home in Owenton and he would render a decision on the merits of the case. It is expected a decision will be made some time in July or August.

Mrs. Mary Fields who recently returned home here from Lexington, where she was employed as a nurse for the Haggin children at the Elmendorf place, has concluded to remain at home and will take up nursing as a profession, and those who may need her services in cases of illness can communicate with her by telephone or mail. Mrs. Fields has had considerable experience, and has given satisfactory services in every instance, and has the best of recommendations.

Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, the farm of Mrs. Sarah Mardis which she has been advertising for sale for some time was sold at public auction by Auctioneer W. B. Johnson to Mrs. Mary Ryan, of near Verona, for $1,795. The farm consists of about 22 acres of land a brick dwelling and out houses, and is considered a bargain at the price sold for. It is located about one mile from Walton on the Beaver Lick and Walton road. A lot on the road opposite the farm and also belonging to Mrs. Mardis, was sold to W. H. Senour for $70. The sale was well attended owing to the advertising given the sale and the efforts of the auctioneer, W. B. Johnson, to whose credit was due the good attendance and spirited bidding. It pays to have a good business agent and auctioneer.

Sunday evening, about 5:30 o'clock, Russell McCubbin, the 15 year old son of Alex McCubbin, of near Walton, met with a terrible death by being ground to almost a pulp in attempting to get on a freight train south of Verona. He with his brother and a number of other young men had been at Zion Station playing base ball, and in attempting to board a northbound freight to return home met his death. His brother witnessed the awful accident and gave warning to the train crew who stopped the train and conveyed the mangled form to Verona where he lingered in an unconscious condition for over two hours. His left leg was severed above the knee and the flesh torn from that member. His teeth were driven into the nasal bone and the body horribly mangled. Dr. A. N. Jones was taken to Verona on passenger train No. 1, but his services were of no avail as nothing could be done for the unfortunate young man. The funeral took place from his late home Monday, the remains being brought here for interment. Rev. H. C. Wayman, pastor of the Baptist church conducted the funeral discourse over the remains at the church after which they were interred in the church cemetery.

Who May Vote in Primary.

W. S. Kaltenbacher, in the Louisville Times says that many of the newspapers of the State are misinforming their readers as to who are entitled to vote in the next August primary. Some of them are saying that any person not 21 years old on the day of the primar, bit who will have reached that age on or before the November election is entitled to a vote in the primary. By the old law, under which the Democratic state committee fixed the qualifications of voters, the voter who was a minor at the primary, but 21 years old at the following general election, was allowed to vote in the primary. But under the new law Mr. Kaltenbacher calls attention to the fact that minors at the primary election are not entitled to vote. He says that while the same qualification for voters apply at the primary as at the regular election viz., "male citizen twenty-one years of age, residence in state one year, in county six months, in precinct 60 days, neither convict, idiot nor lunatic," the primary law expressly stipulates that THE QUALIFICATIONS SHALL BE DETERMINED AS OF THE PRIMARY" which this year unless a voter will have the age and residence qualifications on August 2d he will not be entitled to vote in the primary. While a voter may be duly qualified to exercise his right in the November election this year it does not give him the right to vote in the primary unless he has all the qualifications then.

Working for Houston's Pardon.

Washington, June 13.—Representative A. B. Rouse, of Burlington, Ky., appealed to Colonel Goethals, Chairman of the Panama Canal Commission today for a pardon for Frank Houston, of Boone County, Ky., under a ten year sentence in the Panama Canal Zone on the charge of murder. Rouse stated that Houston was not granted a jury trial and that there were extenuating circumstances errounding the killing. Houston killed a man following domestic difficulties.

County News Items

Interesting Facts Gathered During the Week by Our Regular Correspondents.

GRANT R. D. 1.

Miss Clara Sebree, of Woolper, visited home folks, Sunday.

Some few here are finishing setting tobacco this morning.

Miss Liddie Taylor was the guest of Mrs. Omer Hodges, Saturday.

Boone Williamson has a force of hands at work putting up a new barn.

Miss Julia Buchner, of Cincinnati, is the guest of her grandparents below town.

Mrs. J. E. Louden is very ill. Capt. John Smith is on the mend we are glad to report.

Everett Cloré and family spent Saturday and Sunday with Hogan Ryle and wife in East Bend.

Elza Scott, who is employed at the B. & O. depot at Cincinnati, is here spending his vacation.

Miss Pearl Conner, of Cincinnati, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. M. Conner, near Waterloo.

Lewis Clore, candidate for assessor spent Saturday night and Sunday with his brother, Henry at this place.

D. G. Rice, of Connersville, and daughter Miss Carrie May, of Petersburg, are here on a visit to relatives and friends.

The patrons of R. D. 1 remember the carrier in fair weather as well as foul as was evidenced last week during the hot weather.

The Pythian Sisters at Rabbit Hash and their families had an outing and picnic dinner in the woods near that place last Wednesday.

Lost, at the Memorial services here a stick pin for necktie which was a treasured keepsake. Reward will be paid if finder will return to Mrs. Sebe Scott, Grant, Ky.

We are sorry to hear of the accident to Bro. Smith on R. D. 2. All R. D. men have their troubles, but it seems as though Bert has more than his share of misfortune.

Miss Avis Parsons, of Cincinnati, is suffering severely from an attack of rheumatism and on account of the ice famine in the city she will probably be moved to her uncle's here this week.

A large crowd attended the ordination of Bro. Geo. Smith at the Baptist church here Thursday. A basket dinner was served at the noon hour with an abundance of everything good to eat.

A severe hail storm, Tuesday of last week did lots of damage between here and Rabbit Hash. The territory affected was only about a mile wide and corn fields and gardens in its path were almost completely destroyed. Cad Beshire's watermelon crop is about a total loss.

Mrs. Chas. Dolph met with quite a painful accident while canning cherries one day the past week. A can exploded and the lid cut her arm so badly it required six stitches to sew up the wound. She was also severely scalded on the arm. She is getting along very well.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Piatt were agreeably surprised last Friday, it being the 13th anniversary of their wedding. About thirty of their Rising Sun friends, with baskets well filled, called on them that day and saying the day was enjoyed by all, Mr. and Mrs. Piatt included, would be putting it mildly. How pleasant to be remembered on such occasions.

While at Aurora, Saturday night with a crowd, Spinny Smith had his gasoline boat stolen and had to borrow a flat to bring his family home. On his way down he passed his boat with two well dressed men working frantically to get the boat started, but their efforts were in vain, so they ran it ashore just above Laughery island and abandoned it, and when Spinny with a posse from here reached the island they had made good their escape. Spinny was very glad his boat was a puzzler.

Thos. Throop, of Cincinnati, son of Prof. Throop of this place, is here on a visit to his father and sisters. Arriving at Aurora, Sunday, he hired two men to bring him down in a gasoline yacht. The men quarreled and began to slug each other and capsized the boat. Throop managed to reach shore but lost two suit cases with all his clothing. The men sobered by the accident, got the boat righted, and made the rest of the trip safely, arriving here in a very wet and bedraggled condition.

J. J. Stephens, whose tenant house burned about six or eight weeks ago, had the misfortune to lose a large barn by lightning during the severe electrical storm Tuesday night of last week. Mr. Stephens had been keeping his horses in the barn but on Tuesday evening he told his wife that as it was so warm he would turn them out in the pasture, and it was fortunate that he did, for in three hours after he quit work the barn and contents were in ashes. He lost plow, harrow, all his harness, road wagon and lot of tobacco sticks. Insurance $150, loss, $350.

Petersburg came down Saturday with reenforcements from Lawrenceburg, resolved to do or die. Here's about the main points of the game if there were any: Both teams hit hard, and while Petersburg gave their pitcher perfect support, the locals vied with each other in the field to see who could get the best average in the error column. It was funny to listen to the remarks of the fans who used the "if" frequently after the game. Here are some samples: If they had put Louden in to pitch at the start; if they had supported Rogers; if Cap. Arnold and Spide Aylor hadn't played with Pete; if our boys hadn't made 14 errors; if Ray Cook hadn't umpired the game; if Rogers hadn't been sick and pitched under protest. As near as we can tell from out of all of this, we did not witness the game, every time a Burger hit the ball it was better than a hit for whoever went after it booted it on farther and the Burgers ran across the plate like sheep thru a hole in a fence. However, all teams have their off days and this is not Belleview's style of playing at all as they have taken three out of four games played with Pete this season, so we will forgive the boys for Saturday's nightmare and expect to see some real ball July 4th, when they have the "Hoosiers" booked for two games in the afternoon. The Hoosiers are a strong team, having defeated such teams as Osgood, Manchester and Moores Hill in nearly every game they have played this season. Come out and see the games. The picnic at Waterloo will not interfere with this as the first game will not be called until 1:30; and the second game at 3:30.

R. D. No. 3.

Chas. Muntz is numbered among the sick.

J. W. Brown has been ill the past week.

Glad to report Miss Stella Brown improving.

Who Can Vote at the Primary.

Attorney-General Garnett says that by Sections 6 and 19 of the Primary Election Law the right of an elector to vote at the primary is made to depend upon his political alliance with the party for whose candidate he desires to cast a ballot, and the court, in its opinion, quoting from State vs. Drexel, 74 Neb., 776, said: "As an indiscriminate right to vote at a primary would tend, in many instances, to thwart the purpose of the organization and destroy the party. A hindrance to one not a member of a party from participating in the election of the party's delegates and candidates can in no proper sense be said to interfere with the free exercise of the elective franchise as guaranteed by the Constitution. All that is required is that the party offering to vote at the primary in order to be entitled to vote with either of the parties engaged in nominating candidates thereat shall have affiliated with such party, supported its candidates generally at the last election and intend to do so at the next. The declaration of allegiance to party is absolutely essential to the proper working of the primary election law."

Under the opinion of the Court of Appeals a qualified elector is one who supported the party's candidates at the last regular election.

Defended Their Sweetness.

A. L. Nichols and G. W. Sandford had a lively time for an hour or so last Saturday. They cut a bee tree and the little honey makers defended their accumulation of sweetness in the most vigorous manner. Sandford protected his countenance with a veil, but the numerous stings he received on his hands made them resemble pillows. Nichols allowed the little belligerants to invade his wearing apparel and while one detachment made his lower limbs do the liviliest kind of a jig another detachment made a tour of his back via his shirt sleeves and he fled to the bushes. Morgan Barlow, a bystander, was attacked by the bees which became entangled in his locks and he had a desperate struggle trying to expel them. After taking considerable punishment the men secured about fifty pounds of fine honey.

Making the Dairy Cow.

The best forecast of the future dairy cow is the number of pounds of feed received from weaning time until two years of age. The ratio between the productive capacity of the cow and the care given her during the growing period is quite constant. Constitution and capacity can only be gotten by supplying the necessary building requirements. Large, strong cows are the results of care while heifers. The dairyman must be both a breeder and feeder. Improper feeding defeats the very object sought by breeding. The dairy cow is a highly specialized animal, and like all specialized animals, there is a tendency toward reversion, this tendency increasing with the more highly developed and improved animal. Scant feeding causes as rapid reversion toward the unimproved type as does careless breeding.

The animal must adapt itself to its surroundings, and reversion is no more than adaptation; so if the food supply is not sufficient the greatest efficiency is not possible.—W. A. Barr, U. S Division of Dairying. Colorado Agricultural College.

When your child has whooping cough be careful to keep the cough loose and expectoration easy by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as may be required. This remedy will also liquify the tough musuc and make it easier to expectorate. It has been used successfully in many epidemics and is safe and sure. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

BIBLE HAS LONG HISTORY

That Used in the Supreme Court Probably the Oldest Connected With the Government.

It is a tiny little book, only five and one-half inches long and three and one-half inches wide. It is bound in bright red Morocco leather, with the word "Bible" printed in diminutive gold letters on the back. But one does not see that red Morocco cover unless he removes the little black leather slip which protects it.

Long, long ago the little red Bible began to show wear, and then the black leather slip was made to protect it—so long ago, in fact, that 15 of those covers, made to protect the venerated little volume, were worn out in the service. It is without daubt one of the oldest Bibles, if not the very oldest Bible, connected with the government, and is certainly the most historical.

It is the book upon which since 1800 every chief justice—with the single exception of Chief Justice Chase—and every member of the Supreme court has taken the oath of allegiance when accepting his appointment to our highest tribunal. More than that, every attorney who has practiced before the Supreme court since that date—1800—has pledged his allegiance over the little volume. All, with one exception also, and that exception was Daniel Webster.

It is told even yet of the Supreme court of that day that Mr. Webster's fame as an orator had so preceded him that on the occasion when he came to argue his first case before the court the clerk, Mr. Caldwell, in his eagerness to hear the great speaker, forgot to administer the oath.—Christian Herald.

HISTORIC SPOT IS UNMARKED

Location of Nation's First White House, in Philadelphia, Known, but That Is All.

Excepting for a few months, Washington lived in Philadelphia during his entire administrations as president of the United States, and John Adams did likewise during his term. There was no White House, but a brick house, and, as quite generally known, it stood on the south side of Market street between Fifth and Sixth streets. The house itself long since disappeared, and it seems strange that Philadelphia has never taken the trouble to make in a suitable way the spot where the nation's executive mansion stood when occupied by the Father of His Country.

When Washington came to Philadelphia to attend the continental congress before taking command of the army, he lived in the swellest boarding house in the city. It was kept by Mrs. Triste, at the southwest corner of Fifth and Market streets. But while more fashionable, the house has been far less famous than the more modest one, two blocks farther west, at the southwest corner of Seventh and Market streets. It was in the latter that Jefferson boarded, and on the second floor, corner room, in which he wrote the Declaration of Independence.

According to John Adams, who could have qualified as chief gossip at any quilting party, Philadelphia was then away ahead of Boston and New York as a fashionable center. The great patriot told his impressions in those voluminous letters to his wife. He was quite awed by the local splendor.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Truth and Error.

Verily, there is nothing so true that the damps of error have not warped it. Verily, there is nothing so false that a sparkle of truth is not in it. For the enemy, the father of lies, the giant Upas of creation, can but pervert the good, but may not create the evil. He destroyeth, but cannot build; for he is not an antagonistic deity. Mighty in his stolen power, yet he is a creature and a subject; not a maker of abstract wrong, but a spoiler of concrete right. The fiend hath not a royal crown; he is but a prowling robber, suffered for some mysterious end to haunt the king's highway. And the keen sword he beareth once was a simple plowshare. His panoply of error is but a distortion of the truth. The sickle that once reaped righteousness, beaten from its useful surve, with ax, and spike, and bar, headeth the marauder's hallbert. Seek not further, O man, to solve the dark riddle of sin; suffice it that thine own bad heart is to thee thine origin of evil.—Martin Farquar Tupper.

Little Lesson in Efficiency.

A woman who has been studying the science of household efficiency comments that the obvious things that every woman ought to know about conserving time and energy in the doing of the daily household tasks are the ones that seem to make no impression upon the average household. For instance, she says, always have the draining pan when washing dishes upon the left of the dishpan. You naturally wash the dishes with the right and hold them in the left. Then set them down on the left without using energy to reach across the right. Bounds sensible, doesn't it?

State Dinner in China.

If you think that you are unable to stand a dinner which lasts for three or four hours because of the frightful boredom of it all—keep away from China. For there at a fashionable dinner you might be called upon to remain at the table anywhere from 20 to 30 hours. For they do have dinners there that sometimes reach that length.

The Right to Lobby.

No one questions the right of any man or interest to be heard by congressional or legislative committees with respect to legislation that might affect a particular business. To deny such a privilege would be to reject the right of petition and that right must in popular government be preserved. There are, too, some who think that it is not improper for the lobbyist to discuss these matters with legislators as individuals. On this point there will be marked difference of opinion. It will be agreed, however, that the safer course for the best interests of all concerned would be for the representative of special interest to confine his efforts to pleas before regularly constituted committees sitting in public hearing. The legislator must be given all the arguments pro and con upon every proposition with which he is to deal. But every individual right may be preserved when these arguments are presented in a public way. In this view the time may come when representatives of special interests will be denied the privilege of making their arguments to legislators as individuals and required to make their pleas to regularly organized committees holding public sessions. In the meantime, however, it will be agreed that the occupation of every man who represents special intereats in the matter of legislation at the national capital should be known to the public. Some of these lobbyists have been uncovered in the investigations set on foot by the president. Congressional investigation ought not, however, to be necessary for this purpose. There should be a law requiring every lobbyist or agent of special interests to formally register at the national capital just as these gentlemen are required to register at many of the state capitals. The public interest is entitled to every safeguard.—Commoner.

The United States Supreme court has upheld the newspaper publicity law enacted in 1912. This law provided that every newspaper or magazine must file semi-annually with the postoffice department statements giving the names of the editor, managers, owners, stockholders and bond holders. Daily newspapers must give also their average daily circulation. It is further provided that editorials that have been paid for must be so designated in print. Post officials says that 85 per cent of the publications have complied with this law. There are, however, some newspaper managers who have objected to its enforcement, but these will now be required to yield.

NOW HER FRIENDS HARDLY KNOW HER

But This Does Not Bother Mrs. Burton, Under the Circumstances.

Houston, Texas.—In an interesting letter from this city, Mrs. S. C. Burton writes as follows: "I think it is my duty to tell you what your medicine, Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done for me.

I was down sick with womanly trouble, and my mother advised several different treatments, but they didn't seem to do me any good. I lingered along for three or four months, and for three weeks. I was in bed, so sick I couldn't bear for any one to walk across the floor.

My husband advised me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. I have taken two bottles of Cardui, am feeling fine, gained 15 pounds and do all of my housework. Friends hardly know me, I am so well."

If you suffer from any of the ailments so common to women, don't allow the trouble to become chronic. Begin taking Cardui to-day. It is purely vegetable, its ingredients acting in a gentle, natural way on the weakened womanly constitution. You run no risk in trying Cardui. It has been helping weak women back to health and strength for more than 50 years. It will help you. At all dealers.

Cucumber juice is an excellent skin whitener.

Early Evidence of Immense Demand for Cars.

There are numerous indications of a volume of business this summer and autumn that will exceed in value and in tonnage all records that have yet been made in the United States.

The wheat harvest is coming in heavily in the Southwestern states and other crops seem to be well advanced and in even better than normal condition, with large acreages in cultivation.

The orders for coal are said to be far beyond those of other years at this season, and the railways, both in the West and the East, are bound to be tested to the full service of their entire equipment.

Orders by railway companies for new equipment and material that have been withheld pending the development of crop returns, and by reason of strong demands for money in financial circles will now be placed quickly following the approaching certainties of crops and the easing of cash, the more facile use of credit, which is in evidence in New York, Paris and London.

It is but proper and right, under these conditions, that business men should prepare for early shipments of merchandise or commodities they may desire to have ready for speedy delivery to their customers.

It will not only enable the railway companies to employ their transportation facilities to the fullest extent for a longer period of time, but it will secure wholesale dealers in their distributing departments from much embarrassment and from loss of sales through inability to fill orders when needed by the retailers.

The reserve stocks of merchandise in the United States were seldom as low and depleted as they are at this writing, and, facing the greatest demand ever met from consumers, it looks that in many lines of trade the dealers will be as hard pushed for supplies as the railway companies will be for cars.

Business men of all classes, merchants especially, should bear in mind that not one of the great railway heads but have for months been optimistic as to the tonnage of business that would be offered during summer, autumn and winter of this year.

James J. Hill, President Brown, of the New York Central, the Presidents of the leading Southern and Western roads have been for months confident of record breaking traffic for their roads.

As the months have gone by and now we are in the period when hope passes into certainties as far as crops are concerned, the fact that for more than a month past the idle cars of this country and canada have numbered less than 60,000 in the aggregate must carry with it deep significance, now that the results of the harvests are ready for movement.

Hasten the shipments is a wise instruction now in all cases where delay in transportation may entail loss of trade.—Enquirer.

Prices Seventy Years Ago.

The Western W. Va., Independent gives these prices from a ledger of several years ago, at Jerusalem, Ohio:

One bushel corn, 25 cents.
Twenty-two lbs. bacon, 88 cents.
Three bushels wheat, $1.50.
Fifty cigars, 10 cents.
Seventeen lbs. veal, 34 cents.
Potatoes, 25 cents per bushel.
Six yards flannel, $3.
One peck dried peaches, 27½c.
Nine pounds flour, 13½ cents.
Four dozen eggs, 16 cents.
Twenty-one lbs. beef, 52 cents.
One pound butter, 12½ cents.
Two quarts of whisky, 20 cents.
Twenty turkeys, $5.00.
One half pound nails, 7 cents.
One cow, $20.
Farm hands were then paid 60 to 62½ cents a day.

The above makes interesting reading in these days of high cost of living. Today one can almost carry in the hollow of his hand twenty-five cents worth of potatoes about fill a man's coat pocket. You can procure a sufficient quantity of lard for a quarter to make a greasy spot, while coffee that is really worth about fifteen cents a pound, and would not be any too good at that, is retailing at thirty cents. And so on down the line of the necessaries of life. But there is some hope for the consumer, as we still have an abundance of "trust busters."

Cow Peas for Hay.

With a rainy fall season we know of nothing that will pay better or be better upon the land than cow peas, after wheat and oats, they will be fine for the land, fine for hay or fine to hog down. The farmers of the south think as much of their pea crop as of their corn and there is no better soil builder. Turn your soil, sow from three pecks to a bushel per acre and cut it well with a disc harrow. For hay a mixed variety is recommended.—Ex.

GLOOM AMONG VETERANS

Empty Treasury To Hold Up Payment of Vouchers in Kentucky.

Frankfort, June 21.—Gloom pervaded the Pension Department of the state today when it was learned immediately following the victory of the veterans yesterday, that the statute provides that the Treasurer shall monthly forward to thepensioners a Treasury check. As there is an empty Treasury and the state is $2,500,000 in debt, and interest bearing warrants cannot be issued for these pensions, it is probable that the payment of the pensions must be dealyed until after the next Legislature.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.
Walton Bank & Trust Co., Guardian, Plaintiff
Against | Equity.
Joseph Glinn, Defendants

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April Term, thereof, 1913, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court-house door in Burlington, Boone Co. Ky., to the highest bidder, at public sale on Monday, 7th day of July, 1913, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabouts, being county court day, upon a credit of six and twelve months, the following described property, to wit:

Four (4) tracts or lots of land lying in a block, numbered, and on surveyor's plat containing the number of acres and fractions thereof, to-wit:

Lot No. one (1) contains 5 1-100 acres.

Lot No. two (2) contains 4 61-100 acres.

Lot No. three (3) contains 10 63-100 acres.

Lot No. four (4) contains 5 14-100 acres.

All of said lots front on the Walton and Verona Turnpike and adjoin the town of Walton. Boone county, Ky., and are all in said county. They are very desirable for building and home purposes, being large enough for truck gardening and small farming. These lots will be offered separately and then the entire track, of about 25½ acres, as a whole, with the right reserved to accept the highest and best bid or bids.

At the same time and place, I will offer for sale a tract of land containing about 51 acres, adjoining said town of Walton on the East and lying in the State and county aforesaid. Some of this land is now in blue grass, is all desirable for grazing and farming purposes and lays well.

The tract of land first mentioned and embracing said lots, is bounded thus: On the north by the Walton & Verona Turnpike road; on the East by L. & N. Railroad; on the South by the lands of Mrs. J. F. West, and on the West by the Conrad passway and toll-house lot.

The second tract is bounded thus: On the North by the lands of Lulu Hudson and Wm. Hudson, and on the West by the right-of-way of the Cincinnati Southern Railroad. These lands are bargains.

For the purchase price the purchaser with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Troops Not Needed.

Frankfort.—Gov. McCreary says he stands ready to use all the power and resources at his command to protect the farmers of the Hendersons stemming district from the depredations of night riders. He said today:

"I am ready to lend all the assistance in my power to the suppression of lawlessness. No request has been made for troops. I was advised by people from there that soldiers could accomplish nothing. A delegation from Henderson county called on me in regard to the situation. I offered a reward for the arrest of the offenders. I told them that I had offered rewards in the name of the State in other counties, and the rewards had caused detectives to go into those counties in the hope of getting it.

"Later to a caller from Henderson I stated that if requested I would employ detectives to go into the county and hunt for the perpetrators of these depredations. I am ready to do everything in the power of the Governor of the State to assist the local authorities."

Postmasters are no longer required to back-stamp letters.

Money Well Spent.

The fiscal court of Trimble county has set apart money for ditching their roads. The hands are warned in six days to break rock upon the roads and the money spent is for ditching. We have roads in Owen upon which very little work has been done for years. This must be the fault of the overseer and the lack of interest upon the part of the people of these neighborhoods. In July and August there is plenty of time to repair the roads and to put them in good condition for winter travel and every man should be anxious to do his part to help in the improvement.—Owen Democrat.

Local Happenings.

A considerable crowd of Burlington young people took a hay ride, last Wednesday night, going over to Erlanger. The party was chaperoned by Mrs. E. W. Duncan. The same night a couple wagons of hay riders came to Burlington from Erlanger.

Clinton Riddell, son of James Riddell, of Hebron neighborhood, has sold his grocery in Hamilton, Ohio, and, will, in the next few months, move to his farm—the McFee place near Francesville, which he purchased some time since.

Belleview High School will present "The Deacon," a drama in five acts, at Library Hall, Burlington, on Friday night, June 27th. Belleview High school has received high commendation for the manner in which it presents this drama. Come out and enjoy the evening.

G. T. Gaines, who resides one mile out on the Petersburg pike, is a $200 loser by a thunder storm that visited his neighborhood one afternoon the past week, the lightning killing one of his fine large work mules in the pasture.

Luther Scothorn, of Idlewild, took a large number of colored people to the big meeting at Florence, last Sunday. His big truck was crowded as was a spring wagon which he towed with the truck.

Mrs. Octavia Ryle, who had been in charge of the toll gates at Idlewild, moved to Burlington, last Saturday, and now has charge of the Consolidated Telephone exchange.

Persons who have metal roofs on their barns find putting hay in the loft is exceedingly hot work when the thermometer is registering near the hundred mark in the shade.

There has been some fine weather this month for killing weeds, and as a general proposition corn fields are in fine condition and the corn is growing nicely.

John J. Howe, candidate for Commonwealth's Atty. will speak at Big Bone Springs on the afternoon of July 5th, and in Burlington on next county court day, July 7th.

The rains the past week have been of great benefit to the meadows, which will now make a pretty good yield owing to a heavy undergrowth that is coming on.

Scothorn, of Idlewild, passed thru Burlington early last Monday morning with his big truck loaded with livestock, enroute to Cincinnati stock yards.

The high price being paid for veal calves is causing the calves in this part of the country to disappear as soon as they are ready for the market.

In this issue apears the the vertisement of the sale of the personal property of the late Wm. Ackmyer, of the Bullittsville neighborhood.

The tax books which the sheriff will have to lug around on his collecting campaign this year are very cubersome and inconvenient.

A presidential boom in the interest of Senator Ollie M. James was started at a barbecue held at Marion, the Senator's home, last week.

Burlington Masonic Lodge conferred the E. A. degree on Jesse Kirkpatrick and the F. C. degree on Sidney Gaines, last Saturday night.

Operations in the hay fields were suspended last Monday on account of the ground being too soft for the use of the machinery.

Richard Utz, living north of town, hurt his knee several days ago, and has suffered considerably by reason of the injury.

Esq. Wm. Stephens, of Petersburg, has cast his hat in the ring, and his announcement is in the line-up this week.

B. B. Hume is selling automobiles faster than he can supply them, being three or four orders behind all the time.

The campaign for the Democratic nomination for county offices is beginning to warm up some.

William Hughes is carrying the mail on rural route No. 2 while his father is taking care of route 1.

The dry weather this month has cut short the Irish potato crop in some localities.

The growers have been given ample opportunity to set out their tobacco.

The wheat harvest began last week. The crop in this county is very small.

Honey, clear and fresh for sale. Apply to Stanley Ranson, Richwood, Ky.

Jack Eddins has his auto on the road again.

"The Deacon" at Library Hall, Friday night.

Mrs. Lou Thompson, of Florence neighborhood, died suddenly, late last Sunday afternoon of heart trouble which she had been afflicted for some time. She was a daughter of the late E. K. Tanner and an aunt of F. H. Rouse, Superintendent of the County House.

Cliff Hedges was in town Monday getting a supply of Paris green with which to poison the grasshoppers that were destroying his tobacco which he has set out three times. He claims to have the best field of corn in the county, it being as high as a horse's back.

The creamery meeting last Saturday afternoon developed an intense loyalty to the institution on the part of those present and the same sentiment seems to prevail among the patrons who were not on hand but have been heard from on the proposition the meeting was called to consider.

Master Harold Conner made a good reputation as a butter maker at the local creamery, last week, during the absence of Mr. V. O. Keys, the regular butter maker. He handled the milk each day like a person of considerable experience along that line.

Lloyd McGlasson, of Taylorsport neighborhood, has been a long and intense sufferer of rheumatism, returned home from Martinsville, Ind., several days ago, somewhat improved, and his friends hope that complete recovery will soon result from the treatment he received while at Martinsville.

Each age of our lives has its joys. Old people should be happy, and they will be if Chamberlain's Tablets are taken to strengthen the digestion and keep the bowels regular. These tablets are mild and gentle in their action and especially suitable for people of middle age and older. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

John C. White, the Recorder's faithful Hathaway correspondent, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Saturday afternoon, and when he struck the East Bend road enroute he thought he had lost his way as he had never seen that highway in such an excellent condition. Mr. White knows when a road is worked properly, and your attention is called to what he has to say about it in his communication this week.

Manager Ben Zimmer's Constance team defeated Burlington at the local park last Saturday afternoon in a very nicely played game 3 to 1. Hamilton's pitching and Zimmer's throwing to second were the features of the game.

Petersburg beat Belleview last Saturday afternoon at Belleview, 11 to 6.

Erlanger won from Hebron last Saturday afternoon in a ninth inning rally 8 to 6.

Dr. W. O. Rouse, wife and daughter, of St. Petersburg, Fla., are at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rouse, of Limaburg, for the summer. Besides building up a good practice at his new home, Dr. Rouse has made some investments in real estate that are panning out very much better than anticipated when he invested. Judge Lassing is interested with him. Dr. and Mrs. Rouse's friends and relatives are glad to have them among them again.

Appellate Judge John M. Lassing and wife and two sons, Warren and Robert, were guests of Mrs. Emma Brown, last Sunday. They were accompanied by Marcellus Moss, son of Circuit Judge Moss, of Pineville, Bell county, who was a schoolmate of Warren and Robert. Judge Lassing will spend the next ten days or two weeks in New York after which he will go into camp again just below Big Bone creek. The government having stripped Big Bone island of timber Judge Lassing will pitch his tents in a nice grove on the Kentucky side of the river.

At the request of the county clerk the following paragraph of the primary election law is published:

"The order in which the names of candidates for each office for whom nomination papers have been filed in the office of the county clerk, shall be printed on the primary election ballot, shall be determined at a public drawing in the office of the county clerk twenty-five days before such primary election at two o'clock p. m., standard time."

The county clerk says July 2nd is the last day for filing nomination petitions, and that the drawing for position on the ballot will be had on July 8th. O this the candidates are requested to take notice and act accordingly.

TRULY A VALUABLE HOUND

Visitor From Costa Rica Tells Story Which Some People Might Find It Hard to Believe.

At last the existence of the banana hound has been shown to be a fact!

A man who just arrived in this country from Port Limon, Costa Rica, not only knows all about the banana hound, but has a drove of them himself. The gentleman is Hezeklah Spottiswood, and for many years the owner of a banana plantation in Costa Rica.

"Is the banana hound a new discovery up here?" he asked in surprise. "My word, how singular! Why, we always have them. They are a very essential adjunct to a banana plantation; indispensable almost, I should say. What is the breed? They are a cross between a pointer and a South American tapir.

"It's a very necessary thing to know when to pick the bananas from the trees, you know. When they have attained a certain shade of green, then is the time. Now it's very difficult to have a man so thoroughly up in color that he can determine this matter. That is where the banana hound comes in. He trots the groves with a man behind him, and scents the bunches which should be picked. He stands in front of the tree and gives a long moan, which sounds familiar to the siren at Sandy Hook. Then he points to a particular bunch with his tail.

"The scent of the hound is unerring. It has never been known to fail.

"And you never heard of them?"

DEATH FROM ELECTRIC SHOCK

Cessation of Life Is Due to Contraction of the Fibrils or Muscular Fibers of the Heart.

While every one knows that an electric shock, if powerful enough, will cause death, there are very few who know exactly the cause, and from a description given in a recent English magazine, quoting an authority on the subject, the whole matter is simple.

Death produced from electric shock, says this magazine, usually is the result of contraction of the fibrils or muscular fibers of the heart, or of paralysis of the respiratory organs.

While doctors have been unable to find any treatment that will cure the former, artificial respiration often overcomes the respitatory paralysis.

The effects of direct and alternating currents vary with the current strength, the duration of contact and the path through the body; and with alternating currents low frequency usually is more dangerous than high. The lower animals are more susceptible to electric sheck than man, dogs often being killed by a direct current of 70 volts. In the average man a direct current of 100 volts is scarcely felt, 200 or 300 volts give rise to muscular cramps, while 520 volts will stop respiration suddenly.

Where Old Cans Go.

"Goodness gracious!" exclaims the housewife, "I wonder what becomes of all the tin cans that are thrown away." Never fear, dear madam, they are not lost, nor does one of them go to waste.

A friend of the visitor, who is a well-known business man, is thoroughly acquainted with the tin can from its infancy to the day of its doom. "Well, what does become of all these cans?" was asked the authority.

"They are," he replied, "reincarnated, so to speak, and become, in fact, a new tin can, but mostly a window weight." Then he explained how the old tin cans are gathered up and hurled into a furnace, and how the thin veneer of tin, which is merely the outer covering, is separated as a melted product from the steel, which forms the real basis for the can. The tin is far more valuable than the steel, and it is used over and over again for covering cans. The steel part, when melted, becomes a solid chunk; in fact, the solidest chunk in the whole steel family. Window weights must be small, but hefty; hence the use of steel from tin cans.

Calling for William Penn.

The conservatism of the law as it is practiced in Philadelphia received an illustration recently in the loud summons by the clerk of the court to William Penn, Richard Penn and John Penn to appear in court in order that a certain title to the grantors could be cleared of an incumbrance.

No one suggested to his honor, the presiding judge of Common Pleas No. 1, that William Penn had been dead 200 years, and his sons, Richard and John, nearly as long. There was no need of such a suggestion. Every one within hearing of the clerk's voice knew that it was a vain show and an empty form that was proceeding before their eyes.

Through the idle crying of the names of men two centuries dead the demands of the law were satisfied and a title was cleared.—Case and Comment.

No Joy Visit.

A Glasgow journalist who was careless of his personal appearance was assigned to write something about a show at a leading Glasgow theater. He presented his card at a box-office. The manager came out and looked at the disheveled visitor dubiously.

"Did you come here to write something about the play—to work?" he asked.

"Do you think I'd come to your theater for amusement?" asked the journalist as he stalked out.—Saturday Evening Post.

SUGGESTIONS BY STATE EDITORS

How Kentucky Schools May Be Improved.

TO EXTEND TERM IN OFFICE.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Should Have More Time to Carry Out Reforms—Aim Should Be Education Rather Than Instruction—Importance of Electing Good Officials.

Why Not?

[From the Louisville Times.]

The awakened and more intelligent interest in all that pertains to education in the commonwealth suggests an inquiry in some quarters. Why not, they ask, so contrive as that a continuity of reform be made the more certain by permitting a second term to the superintendent of public instruction? Allowing for the time necessary for him to shake down in his office and become at home with the routine, how, in the brief space left, may he hope to shape and perfect plans that shall have time to blossom and bear fruit? Is it not essential that if those plans meet public approval and support they be given every widest opportunity to prove their worth by results?

The suggestion is worth consideration. There is much to be said for it and something, no doubt, on the other side. But, at first glance, we are free to state that it "listens" well.

Our Slogan—"Education is an investment; ignorance is a tax."

[From the Russell Democrat.]

Herein lies the importance of education. We should educate rather than instruct, because it is far more important to cultivate the mind than to store the memory, and instruction is only a part of education. Studies are a means and not an end.

Children are by nature eager for information. They are always putting questions, and this ought to be encouraged. Their instincts may be trusted to a great extent, and in that case they will do much to educate themselves.

[From the Shelby Record.]

If our children are to improve at school there are two things their parents should bear in mind. There should be a progressive, energetic county school superintendent, and the school trustees must take interest in their work and do their very best to get the best results possible in their respective districts. There are not two more important officers in the county than that of superintendent and trustee. Bear this in mind when you are called on to elect them and vote for those who are qualified to fill these places.

[From the Berry Citizen.]

Physiology, hygiene and other features pertaining to sanitation should have a proper place upon the curriculum of the school at this place and taught regularly each week. In order that these subjects may be properly handled the four physicians of Berry should be placed in charge. Each one of them would be willing to give an hour of his time each week to the school as an instructor upon sanitary or hygiene science. The mere teaching of physiology, while it may interest somewhat and tickle the fancy of many of the children, does not protect one against tuberculosis, typhoid fever and other infectious diseases. These subjects would not be too difficult to teach, and either of our physicians could make them understandable, interesting and valuable.

BANKERS OFFER PRIZES FOR CORN GROWING CLUBS.

Georgetown Men Will Dispense With Calendar Advertising to Carry Out Plan.

Calendar advertising will be dispensed with by the bankers of Georgetown this year, says the Louisville Herald, and the money usually spent along that line will be given by the bankers in prizes to the Boys' Corn Growing club of Scott county. Commissioner of Agriculture Newman recently received a communication from the bankers of Georgetown stating that such action had been decided upon at a meeting of the bankers. As a result of this action about $200 from that source will be given in prizes.

This seems to be a sane and sensible thing to do. Calendar advertising brings inadequate returns for the money invested. The banks of this state are spending $30,000 or $40,000 annually for calendars, and except in rare cases this is a "dead" expense. It was all right years ago when banks first began to use this medium of advertising, but now practically every business house in every town passes out calendars to its customers. The merchant, the miller, the butcher, the blacksmith and others make a bid for trade in this way. As a result the bank's customers have more calendars than they know what to do with and for that reason none of them are properly appreciated. We venture the assertion that the lead of the Georgetown bankers will be followed by the bankers all over the state.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and casting plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in every price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at your risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,
H. G. COLLINS, Erlanger, Ky.

STATE NEWS.

A large tree which has stood for a century past in the northwest corner of the grounds of the Kentucky School for the Deaf on Third street, fell. The tree reached across the street into the yard of Mr. T. H. Wright. Trees in Mr. Wright's front yard were damaged and a buggy belonging to Mrs. McClure, of Hustonville, was in the path of the tree and was considerably damaged.—Danville Advocate.

Mr. Hodges, one of the candidates for Mayor of Fulton, says in a card to the voters that any man possessed of a grain of sense knows that no one is going to pay $500 a year for the privilege of selling temperance drinks in Fulton. The soft drink stands in Futlon are paying $500 license and it is tactily understood that the city government is in league with boot legging. Mr. Hodges says he will put a stop to it if he is elected Mayor. We like that part of his platform.—Clinton Gazette.

Reports from over the county indicate there will be a large crop of blackberries. This is one of the most poular fruits of the day and is sometimes called the "poor man's friend." Last year the crop was short and almost a total failure. The cherry crop was good and most trees yielded well.—Owen Democrat.

A most remarkable cluster of eleven complete little strawberries growing from one stem was shown us yesterday by M. B. C. Vanarsdall. This eleven in one strawberry was grown by Mr. H. C. Scaper. It looked like a strawberry flower.—Harrodsburg Herald

The Breckinridge News says: The ideal dress for a man is a sack coat and a Fedora hat. Why not add a collar and necktie, just for appearance's sake, and a pair of shoes, to keep his feet off the hot pavement these days?—Hartford Herald.

The New Spraying Law

The spray law passed at the last session of the legislature reads as follows:

Section 1. One year from the passage of this act each owner or manager of an orchard shall spray or cause to be sprayed said trees one or more times during the period from November first to April 30th with some suitable preparation for the destruction of San Jose, oyster shell or scurvy scale.

Section 2. Whoever knowingly permits a violation of this act shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each year such spraying is not performed.—Ex.

The above is a law passed by the Ohio legislature and is a good law for Kentucky.

Henderson, Ky.—Socalled night riders have warned the Eastern Star Lodge at Cairo, not to hold an ice cream supper which had been advertised. The note read: "We as friends advise you not to have your dumper ice cream supper Saturday night. Signed, Royal Night Riders. The proceeds were to go to the Masonic Widows and Orphans Home at Louisville. The supper was postponed.—Ex.

Here's The Plumb Bob

It's just another proof that Tubular Cream Separators are just up to the minute—miles ahead of anyother. No other machine has it.

What's It For?

It enables you to level the Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator in a minute—quicker than you could find the spirit level you must use to level all other separators. A glance at the plumb bob, hanging there on the back of the Tubular, will always tell you whether the Tubular remains level. In that way you get the very best work out of the Tubular, for all Separators should be kept level to do their best work.

Tubulars have dozens of exclusive fine points and are sold on the level. Bring the wife in. See how simple, perfect and different from others Tubulars are.

MRS. W. R. GUNTER, of Concord, Va., writes: "My chickens had gapes so bad last summer that I could not raise any until I got this medicine. It is the best poultry remedy I ever used."

MRS. SARAH WELLS, of Lyons, Ind., writes: "It beats anything I ever tried for gapes. I just put it in the feed and drinking water and the chicks get well."

MRS. W. P. BRACEY, of Baskersville, Va., writes: "I have now used this medicine two years and I just could not raise any chickens without it. I have not had a case of gapes since I began using it."

MRS. W. R. VEDDER, of Catskill, New York, writes: "I have not lost a turkey since I began using it. I had fifty and had used most everything else and lost all but thirty when I heard of this remedy."

WHITE HOUSE POULTRY FARM, of Buechel, Ky., writes: "We tried it on roup and gapes and it knocked those diseases out of existence in three days. It gives the chicks life and vigor and pulls them through the critical stage in fine shape."

CROP OUTLOOK.

Todd County.—The wheat harvest is now in progress, and a good yield is promised. Recent good rains have been of great benefit to corn and tobacco, and many acres of the weed have been set.

Adair County.—Rain came in due time and last week was fine growing weather. Harvest time is approaching, and there are some inferior fields of wheat, but the crop throughout the county is good, generally speaking.

Fulton County.—There has not been any rain here for weeks and the whole country is dry and parched. The crops, which have mostly all been plowed once, and much of the acreage plowed twice, have not suffered much yet, but garden truck is suffering from the need of rain.

Henderson County.—The wheat harvest will be on in earnest next week. The grain has headed out well during the past ten days, and is dry enough to begin cutting within a few days. Owing to the drought this year it is thought that the crop will not average as good as last year.

Barren County.—Most of the wheat in this community is good. The oats crop has been damaged greatly. The oat crop was damaged by the dry weather in May. Some of the farmers still have on hand their last year's crop of tobacco. The acreage here will be reduced this year.

Henry County.—The extreme dry weather is having its effects, and water is getting scarce in many places. Wheat is real good, but a small acreage. All kinds of fruit is falling from the trees badly. Farmers report a good crop of lambs and are selling at good prices. Corn is very scarce, and selling at $3 and three fifty a barrel. Poor meadow crop, and extreme dry weather is having a telling effect upon it.

Graves County.—A good portion of Graves county is facing a trying period for want of rain. No general rain since April, and only partial showers in May and June. Prospects for full tobacco crop were never much worse. This condition does not prevail all over the county. Some fields of tobacco planted in May look very well. That part of crop set lately is dead or nearly so. Plants are drying up in beds. About one half crop set so far, with much of it missing. Some farmers are planting over their corn which was ruined by some insects killing the stalks. Some tobacco fields have been planted to corn. Pastures are drying and stock water will be an object soon.

President Wilson and Mexico.

The New Orleans Picayune is so angry with the Wilson administration because of the impending removal of the sugar duties that it looks everywhere for other grievances and fancies that it finds one in the administration's attitude toward Mexico.

The Picayune tells us that during "the long and orderly Diaz administration" things were lovely in Mexico and later when a revolt came President Taft took such precautions to protect American citizens and property that little harm was done.

Under President Wilson, we are informed by way of New Orleans, things are going to be bad in Mexico and the Mexicans are so peeved by Mr. Wilson's refusal "to strengthen the Huerta government by means of a loan" that the property of American citizens in Mexico is being raided and American citizens are being treated with "special hostility."

These are mere assertions. The public will be skeptical about the existence of American citizens who have been mistreated in body or estate, and have not made their complaints public. It stands to reason that if an American citizen loses property because of disorder in Mexico he would put in a claim for recompense while if Americans should suffer violence they or their relatives would be heard from loud and long.

It is no doubt true that things are in a pretty bad shape in Mexico. But they have been so for a long time. There are no acute disturbances now reported from Mexico City, although conditions in the provinces are said to show little improvement. These are problems, however, for President Wilson securing a loan of money for the new Mexican government than for him patrolling the Mexican frontier with troops, thus holding out the threat of armed interference. The Picayune criticises him for not doing both of these things.

Good Times Coming.

An exchange thus paints a picture of "a good time coming:" "The day is fast approaching when the girl who wants a real husband will sidetrack the champion cigarette sucker and the champion golf player, and fall into the arms of the champion corn grower who can make an acre of ground cough up 200 bushels. Likewise, the time is coming when the wise young man will no longer seek a wife from among the ultra-hobbie piano pounders but will cast his eye to the sweetraced maiden who can coax 800 quarts of tomatoes from one-tenth of an acre of ground, put 'em up so they will keep sweet and then cook 'em to a queen's taste by gum."

The crop of Kentucky lambs will be about an average in size, and present indications are that the quality will be excellent. The Kentucky lambs are somewhat backward, the ewes are being bred to lamb later than usual, and the movement from this State will be rather late, the bulk of the good lambs coming for July and August.

HOW TO TELL THE WEATHER.

Peculiar Actions of Many Animals Taken as Sure Indication of Rain, Snow, Wind or Calm.

If a cat sneeze is a sign of rain. The goat utters a peculiar cry before rain.

When the fox barks at night it will storm.

If rats and mice make much noise it indicates rain.

If the dog eats grass in the morning it will surely rain before night.

If the tracks of a bear are seen after the first snow fall, look for a mild winter.

The wind will blow from the point the cat faces when she washes her face, and fair weather follows.

If the bull goes first to pasture, it will rain; if the cows precede him the weather will be uncertain.

It is a sign of rain if the cat washes her head behind the ear. Cats rub against an object before a storm.

Sheep are said to ascend hills and and scatter before clear weather, but if they bleat and seek shelter it will snow.

If the hair of a horse grows long early in the winter will be mild. The hair of a horse becomes rough before rain, and they are frisky before a cold wave, and restless and uneasy before rain.

If cows fall in their milk look for stormy and cold weather. If they bellow in the evenin it will snow before morning, and when a cow stops and shakes her foot there is bad weather behind her.

If cattle lie down early in the day expect rain, also when they lick their fore feet, lie on the right side, scratch against posts, when they refuse to go to pasture in the morning, and when they low and look at the sky.

Keep Milk Records.

Records of the dairy herd at Minnesota University Farm indicate that it is not necessary to weigh or test the milk more often than one day each month in order to secure a very accurate record of what the cow is doing. It is generally believed however, that, while a monthly butterfat test is sufficient, it is good practice on the farm to weigh and record the milk at each milking. This is very easily done if milk scales and record sheets are conveniently arranged. This method not only furnishes an accurate record of each cow's work, but it also enables the dairyman to tell at once if anything is wrong with any cow in the herd. If a cow gives two or three pounds of milk less than usual, it is noted instantly, and an effort can be made to remedy the trouble. There may be several causes for a smaller milk flow, as a poor pasture, exposure to cold or rain, or rough treatment. At any rate, no matter what the cause may be, if the milk is weighed regularly, a drop in the milk flow can be remedied before it has become permanent. It is urged, therefore, that the milk be weighed at each milking, that a sample for the butterfat test be taken about the same time each month, and that this sample be a composite sample from four consecutive milkings.

What Alfalfa Will Do.

Alfalfa enriches the ground.
Alfalfa is a drought resister.
Alfalfa is the best soil doctor.
Alfalfa adds humus to the soil.
Alfalfa increases the milk flow.
Alfalfa is high in feeding value.
Alfalfa balances the corn ration.
Grow your protein—don't buy it.
Alfalfa sod grows larger corn crops.
Alfalfa is the greatest of all subsoilers.
Alfalfa has no equal as a hog pasture.
Alfalfa keeps stock in good condition.
Alfalfa should be grown on every farm.
An alfalfa field is a hog's idea of heaven.
Fox tail is the greatest enemy of alfalfa.
Growing alfalfa is good business farming.
Alfalfa means more money and better homes.
Alfalfa does things and never loafs on the job.
Alfalfa with a fair chance always makes good.
Alfalfa fills the hay mow and pays for the privilege.
Alfalfa is the cheapest and best feed for beef cattle.
Alfalfa insures larger yields from the crops that follow.

Dairy Notes.

Use a covered milk pail.

The heavy milker must also be a heavy eater.

Rubbing witch hazel on a caked udder will often relieve it.

After dirt has once gotten into milk it can never be entirely strained out.

Sympathy goes a long way in getting best results from dairy cows.

The curry comb will do much to help the feed in improving the appearance of the herd.

Milk scales and the tester will be a certain standerd by which the cows may be measured.

The calves should have a good growing ration if they are expected to grow into large cows.

Hurrying the cows when handling or driving them does not stimulate the milk flow but rather has the opposite effect.

The greater the variety and the richer the feed given cows, the more and better manure can be had from the herd.

The cow is a machine and a producer that can be made to do a great deal toward enriching her owner if properly handled.

A gallon of 20 per cent. cream will produce 17 pounds of butter fat. In a gallon of cream testing 30 per cent. there are 2½ pounds of fat.

The feed that is wasted represents a waste of money also. Some people do not realize this, specially if that feed happens to be home grown.

If the buttermilk is not washed out it will furnish abundant food for the bacteria, since they thrive on the casein in the milk.

The very best investment any cow owner can make

That's what more than a million and a half of cow owners the world over have found the World's Standard De Laval Cream Separator to be.

A De Laval Separator costs from $35 to $160—according to capacity. It saves butter-fat and produces cream of a quality decidedly superior to any setting system or any other separator every time it is used—twice a day—730 times a year.

DE LAVAL Cream Separators

involve far less labor than any setting system, and run easier, have greater capacity and last from two to ten times longer than other separators.

That's how a De Laval Separator saves at least its cost the first year, and frequently in a few months, and then goes right along saving money for you year after year.

We have an arrangement whereby you can make a partial payment at time of purchase, and pay the balance on such liberal terms that your machine will more than save its own cost while you are paying for it.

The mercantile establishment of E. P. Northcutt is surrounded by sweetness, at least on the north side. Honey bees recently found a small aparture over the hall door and have taken up their per manent abode within the weatherboarding. Mr. Northcutt will gladly part with them to anyone wishing to take a kindly interest in the bees.

Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Best entertained several of their relatives with a delightful spread at their hospitable home, among which were the following: Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Diers, Walton; Miss Lora Diers and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Treiber, Cincinnati. Mr. Treiber is a brother of Mrs. Diers, and is engaged in the meat packing business in Cincinnati.

Dr. H. C. Black and wife, of Williamstown, are wearing a very broad smile over the arrival of a fine eight pound boy, born Friday morning, June 13, to brighten and cherish their happy home. The young man was named Harry Graham Black. The mother and baby are doing nicely at present they being under the care of Miss Julow Marshall, a trained nurse, of Cincinnati, and Dr. O'Hara, of Williamstown.

W. O. Rouse has sold his interest in the flouring mills at this place to Carl Neumeister and W. F. Dennis, and has retired from the firm. The mill property has a valuation of about $7,000 and Mr. Rouse owned one third interest He has been engaged in the flouring mill business for a long time, starting in with his father A. M. Rouse, and purchasing his interest in 1905. The mill was then operated under the firm name of W. O. Rouse, W. H. Tillman, J. L. Vest and J. G. Tomlin. About a year ago Tillman & Co., sold their interest to Carl Neumeister and W. F. Dennis, the miller. The new firm will be composed of Carl Neumeister and W. F. Dennis, and will be known as The Walton Roller Mills.

H. C. Diers, our energetic nursery man, and Kentucky manager for the Farmers' Nursery Company of Troy, Ohio, reports that he is doing the finest business this season since he has been in the business. His agents on the road are turning in about $1,000 worth of orders weekly. In Bracken county, where he has sold nursery stock for years the business is exceptionally good which is an evidence—that the stock he has been selling there for years is an advertisement in itself as evidenced by the heavy orders coming from that quarter.

The citizens of this community will be given an opportunity to enjoy a fine educational treat tonight (Thursday, June 26th,) at the M. E. church, when Dr. R. B Gilbert, of Louisville, will give a free lecture on "The Prehistoric Animals of Kentucky," how the big animals mastadon and mammoth, came to this country, where they came from, how they lived, where they lived, and why so many of their bones are to be found in Boone county. A large crowd is anticipated as the lecture will be interestingly and immediately connected with this section. Dr. Gilbert, while here, will be the guest of his friend, Dr. B. K. Menefee, who was instrumental in having the doctor favor Walton with this fine free lecture.

The Womens' Missionary Society of the Methodist church held an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. W. O. Rouse, on Friday, June 20. The members began to arrive about 10:30, and the time was passed in pleasant conversation until noon, when a nice lunch was served. The meeting was opened at 2:00 p. m. with prayer by Rev. Geo. D. Prentiss, after which Mrs. R. O. Hughes, of Richwood, who is District Secretary of the Frankfort District, gave a very interesting report of the annual meeting recently held at Mt. Sterling. She spoke of the urgent need of increased missionary effort both at home and in foreign countries, especially Korea, and of the progress made during the last year, by the various districts in the Kentucky conference, and also gave extracts from several sermons and addresses she heard while at the meeting. Her remarks were well chosen and to the point, and rendered the afternoon both pleasant and profitable to all present. It is the purpose of the society in the future to hold one all-day meeting in the last month of each quarter. The next meeting will be held, with Mrs. Lula Hudson, the president of the society in September.

Jackson.—During a terrific thunderstorm in Jackson and Breathitt county the home of Arthur Snowden was struck by lightning and Mr. Snowden was instantly killed, while his wife was so seriously shocked that it is feared she cannot recover.

Dr. A. A. Murat, of Constance, has filed his nomination papers for Coroner.

This is very fine growing weather.

Lightning's Work.

A severe electrical storm prevailed in this and the northern part of the county late last Saturday afternoon, and occasioned a considerable property loss, Esq. E. J. Aylor, of Francesville, being the heaviest loser, the lightning striking and burning his dairy barn and several tons of hay. He had just finished milking and turned his herd out in the pasture when the storm burst.

The building was about the most up-to-date dairy barn in this part of the county and was comparatively new. It was insured for $800 and will not begin to cover the loss.

In the same neighborhood the lightning burned a residence on Dr. R. H. Crisler's farm. It was occupied by a tenant. Numerous buildings were struck across the river in Hamilton county, Ohio, and destroyed.

It is now well known that not more than one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. All that is needed is a free application of Chamberlain's Liniment and massaging the parts at each application. Try it and see how quickly it will relieve the pain and soreness. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

Campbellsville, June 22.—Bert Tucker, a farmer of this vicinity who was knocked insensible by the same bolt of lightning that killed his 14-year old son Friday while they were hauling sheaf oats from a field, died today from burns received when the oats caught fire. The team was killed by the same bolt and the wagon destroyed.

Before sending their nomination petitions to the county clerk the candidates should see that they are properly prepared. The clerk has returned several because they were not signed by the candidates.

NOTICE—I will be in Burlington on Monday with my horse on June 30th and July 7th.

E. J. AYLOR.

All members of Burlington K. of P. Lodge are requested to be present next Saturday night.

Irvin Rue, C. C.

For Sale—16-hand 3 year old mare mule. Apply to F. H. Rouse, Burlington.

The Burlington ball club will play the Erlanger team at Erlanger, Saturday afternoon June 28.

PROCLAMATION.

It appearing that there is a vacancy in the office of Circuit Clerk in Boone County Kentucky, caused by the resignation of J. A. Duncan, the regularly elected clerk, and said vacancy existing three months before the next regular election, at which county officers may be elected for the the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, an election is now ordered to be held in Boone county on the regular election day, for the purpose of electing a clerk to fill said vacancy; and the sheriff of Boone county is now ordered to call said election, and give proper notice thereof by publication as required by law, and to cause the polls to be opened for that purpose.

Given under my hand this 19th day of April, 1913.

J. W. CAMMACK.
Judge of Boone Circuit Court and Fifteenth Judicial District of Kentucky.

Copy Attest.—
CHAS. MAURER, Clerk.

In pursuance of the above order I hereby call an election to fill the vacancy in the office of circuit clerk, which election will be held Tuesday, Nov. 4, 1913.

To the Votere of Boone Co ;

We notice W. W. Grimsley's article in your issue of the 19th and are glad to hear from him in regard to the use of whisky in county elections. We know one man (if not more) that is using whisky and think the names of all such candidates should be scratched off the ballot. The people of Boone county are, we think too intelligent a people and too good a people to sell their vote for a drink of whisky. It should be an insult to any voter for a candidate to offer him whisky during his campaign. It is equivalent to saying "I'll give you a drink of whisky to vote for me." Voters, think before you vote for this kind of a man and vote against him for it stands to reason that if he buys his votes he is not fit for an office holder of your county and State. We truly hope all such candidates are found out and defeated.

Respectfully,
MATTHEW CLEEK.

Believes In Education.

J. E. Ransom, of Verona, and his two interesting and accomplished granddaughters, Misses Fay Hudson and Mary Ransom, were visitors at this office, last Wednesday afternoon, and witnessed the printing of a portion of last week's edition of the Recorder. While in Burlington Mr. Ransom and the two young ladies visited the High School building, and after looking it over they were very much pleased with it, Mr. Ransom saying there ought to be more like it in the county, and that he would be glad to see a good school building in every school district in the county. Mr. Ransom is one of the county's largest taxpayers but does not complain at a reasonable assessment when it is to be applied in behalf of an interest that is of so great importance as that of education. He sees that his county is coming to the front in educational matters and is willing to contribute of his means to help the good work along. In nearly every neighborhood in the State the wealthy men who heretofore have been saying little or nothing in favor of education are now coming to the front and advocating a more rapid advancement in education than has distinguished Kentucky in the past, and their appearance on the scene at this time means much to the State along educational lines.

A. C. Porter, who resides out on Woolper Highlands, is in a fair way of being dispossessed, at least temporarily, of his residence. The contenders with him for possession of the house are a very active and aggressive aggregation composed of two swarms of bees which have been domiciling with him for several days. Porter likes company but has not been used to entertaining such a large number at a time.

It seems that bees are more prolific than common this year and they are having trouble finding places of abode that are to their liking, and in many instances the new colonies are taking to residences and are not particular as to what part. A fine lot of honey is being taking from the hives this season, owing to the unusually fine crop of white clover.

Reuben Hager came up from East Bend last Saturday to take part in the game of ball at Erlanger that afternoon. He began to show the effects of his brief sojourn there since the close of the High School, his engagement in the corn field having given him the appearance of having enjoyed a visit to the seaside. He said that the Bend was badly in need of a good rain, the crops showing the effects of lack of rain.

J M. Eddins has had more than his share of bad lick since last Sunday morning His Son Stanley and some other young men drove one of his horses to Gunpowder sreek, hitching it near the top of the hill When they returned they found the horse dead, it having broken its neck in some way The same day another one of his horses was taken sick and lingered until Monday when it died Sinday a third horse belonging to Mr Eddins was badly cut in a wire fence

If you are a housewife you cannot reasonably hope to be healthy or beautiful by washing dishes, sweeping and doing housework all day, and crawling into bed dead tired at night. You must get out into the open air and sunlight. If you do this every day and keep your stomach and bowels in good order by taking Chamberlain's Tablets when needed, you should become both healthy and beautiful. For sale by J. W. GOOD SEED CORN TEST

"Rag Doll Baby" Pronounced as Greatest of Infants.

Cheapest Tester Which Can Be Made —All That Is Needed Is Few Yards of Sheeting of Good Quality, Torn Into Strips.

The Rag Doll Baby, scientifically known as the rag doll seed corn tester, has been pronounced the greatest infant of recent years. Also the most popular because it has been nursed by a majority of the school children of the United States.

Not only did this pet in its first year make two blades of grass grow for one, but it claims credit for last year's banner corn crop. It is said to have added millions to the crop's value.

This is merely an inexpensive arrangement whereby progressive farmers and their children test seed corn before planting. Half a dozen kernels of corn are taken from each ear of seed corn, the kernels are laid on numbered squares of cloth, the cloth dampened and rolled together and loosely tied. A score or more of "babies" are placed in a pail or tub of lukewarm water and left there for about 12 to 18 hours. Five to eight days later the cloths are carefully unrolled and the kernels examined carefully. In all cases in which all the kernels are not strong in germination the ear should be thrown away, for no farmer can afford to plant seed that will not germinate.

For the rag doll test buy a few yards of sheeting of good quality and tear it into strips 8 inches wide and from three to five feet long. If it is planned to use the strips a number of times, hem the edges, as otherwise the ravelings sometimes disarrange the kernels in unrolling. There is no cheaper, more convenient and accurate method of testing seed corn than by the rag doll tester. A few of its advantages are:

The cheapest tester which can be made.

Anyone can make the tester in a moment's time.

Corn may be placed in the tester and the test read approximately as quickly as any other tester.

If one wishes to use the "water" method, the construction of this tester is well adapted for this. If saturated atmosphere with moist cloth contact is desired, this may be secured by leaving the rolls in the water only long enough to become thoroughly moistened.

Less mold develops in this tester than any other.

May be disinfected for mold most easily.

Very compact, and can be moved from one place to another without difficulty.

All parts of the kernel, roots, shoots, etc., can be readily seen.

Gives an accurate test, as indicated by field results.

Business Methods Needed.

Few owners of the smaller poultry plant know what percentage of profits their flocks do yield. Many of these may know how much they spend for feed during the year, and how many eggs the hens laid within the twelve months, but further than that they cannot give any figures of the cost of production or the actual profits from the sales. Adopt business methods in your poultry plant.

GENERAL FARM NOTES

When the small weeds are killed there will be no big ones.

Give the team many breathing spells during the first weeks of spring work.

Whenever a farmer gets the auto fever he at once becomes a good-road preacher.

That producer is most successful who keeps himself best in the line of the works.

The ground for sweet clover seed should be prepared the same as for alfalfa or clover.

Go slow with the first few days' plowing; the horses are soft, and must be worked in carefully.

In a corn-growing territory cowpeas are mostly grown with corn, sowing broadcast or otherwise.

The clover seed crop depends very largely upon the condition of the ground and the weather.

To kill Canadian thistle in a field put the field in some cultivated crop and keep the weeds down.

Many growers say that weeds are as valuable as fertilisers as clover and cowpeas if they are turned under every year.

Soil taken from a well-established alfalfa field and spread on land to be sown to alfalfa is a very good way to inoculate it.

Rotation of crops is one of the simple, practical methods of increasing the productivity of the farm and distributing labor.

The farmer often makes a mistake by trying to do too much. Till less ground and cultivate it better and there will be more profit in it.

SHEEP REQUIRE MUCH SALT

Best Method Is to Keep Substance Before Animals at All Times—Only Mineral Needed.

Sheep on pasture are often neglected as far as salting is concerned. They are either salted irregularly or not at all. When salt is not supplied to them in sufficient quantities they crave it intensely, and, as has been demonstrated by experiments, will not make the gains nor grow the wool they will if properly salted, says the National Stockman. Salt is often considered a seasoning for the food of animals and not an essential. It is the only mineral which ordinarily needs to be supplied to livestock. No sheep can do its best without enough salt.

Salting every few days is sufficient for the needs of the sheep, but it is not as good a method as keeping salt before the sheep all the time, as when a rush of work comes or a visiting time comes salting the sheep is one of the things neglected. When salt is given after a period of neglect the sheep are so eager for it that they take too much and large quantities of water are needed to wash it out of the system, some of this being drawn from the tissues of the body to the detriment of the sheep.

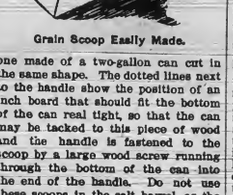
VALUE OF FARMYARD MANURE

There Are Various Losses in Quantity Which Constituents Suffer Before Reaching Fields.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Remember that the constituents of animal excrement are in the condition of greatest value as manure at the time when they leave the animals; after mixing with litter and piled in the barnyard their value is greatly reduced.

During the fermentation of the manure with the straw and refuse of the stable and barnyard, the constituents enter into new combination the ammonia produced, which contains the nitrogen combines with the humic acids formed from the decomposing litter, forming insoluble compounds. Thus they are not so quickly available to the plants as the original excrement.



There are also various losses in quantity which the constituents may suffer before they reach the land. In the yard much urine may run to waste. Ammonia will disappear as gas in the stable during the decomposition of the urine, and further loss of nitrogen may occur in the barnyard.

USEFUL ARTICLES FOR BARN

Scoop Illustrated Made of Old Gallon-Can—Convenient Size for Bran or Mill-feed Bin.

Half-gallon, gallon and two-gallon cans, such as those in which varnish, oils, paints and maple syrup are put up—any of these may be made into useful articles for house or barn.

The scoop illustrated is made of an oil can that holds one gallon. This is a convenient size for the bran or mill-feed bin, but for the oats bin I want one made of a two-gallon can cut in the same shape. The dotted lines next to the handle show the position of an inch board that should fit the bottom of the can real tight, so that the can may be tacked to this piece of wood and the handle is fastened to the scoop by a large wood screw running through the bottom of the can into the end of the handle. Do not use these scoops in the salt barrel, as the salt will soon rust them so they will be unfit for use. For the salt barrel a scoop may be made of wood by nailing four pieces or boards together and cutting to a shape similar to the scoop shown in the drawing.

Grain Scoop Easily Made.

Neglected Artichoke.

This plant which can be grown in almost any garden makes a delicious change in the vegetable dishes for the table. The plant is perennial but declines rapidly and should be reset every three years.

It is propagated from seed and the suckers are set out producing edible heads the second year. The heads are from three to four inches in diameter and are ready to cut for the table just before they open.

For picking the heads are often taken when about half grown. The leaves are sometimes blanched and eaten and these form the salad plants which are seen on the market.

Weaning a Kid.

When one has sale for their goat's milk the kids should be taken from the mother immediately and fed from a bottle because cow's milk is cheaper than goat's milk. Dilute the cow's milk, sweeten slightly and the little fellow will soon learn to like it. Give a kid the bottle six or seven times a day and in four months wean him.

Have Object in Mating.

When mares are bred much will be gained if they are mated with some general object in view—that the colt shall be a draft horse, saddle horse, farm horse or something definite.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy will remain the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,
H. G. COLLINS, Erlanger, Ky.

Mr. Dean is badly burned by the lightning, and the negro is totally deaf from the shock. Mr. Dean was holding a mule, which was killed.

H. P. Summers, editor of the Smith's Grove Times, and his family passed thru Louisville after suffering a peculiar series of accidents. Mr. Summers and his wife and mother attended the Ky. Press Association convention at Olympian Springs, and while taking a trip in a buggy, the buggy overturned, and Mrs. J. P. Summers' arm was broken. The buggy fell on her and was in danger of crushing her, when H. P. Summers lifted it, but was unable to remove it. He was compelled to hold it in position, and she was unable to move from under it for a period of twenty-five minutes. Mr. Summers has two artificial legs as a result of a railroad accident when he was a young man, and the strain of lifting the buggy and holding it for nearly half an hour caused one of them to crack so that yesterday it snapped off, and he was entirely helpless. Mr. Summers was compelled to go this morning to Chicago to have his artificial leg repaired, and his wife and mother proceeded to Smith's Grove. His mother not only suffered a broken arm, but the buggy happened to overturn in a ditch filled with water, and she was compelled to lie in the water for half an hour and suffered a bad cold.—Hart County Herald.

START OF STRAWBERRY

Mostly Staminate or Perfect Blossom Sorts Are Liked.

Several Good Kinds and Every Man Has His Favorite Among Them—Splendid and Senator Dunlap Are Sure to Bear.

(By HENRY FIELD.)

Remember I told you last summer that the time to set strawberries was early in the spring. April is my choice. Just after the leaves start and before the blossoms appear the plants will live with half a show. You can hardly kill them. A month later you can hardly get them to live. Now get ready to set a good bed. For family use at least 300 plants. If you get too many berries it won't do a bit of harm.

I like mostly staminate or perfect blossom sorts. You can set a solid block of one kind of them and they will all bear. If you set pistillate or imperfect blossom sorts you will have to set some of the others with them to furnish pollen, and even then, if it is poor weather you will fail to get a good set of berries.

There are lots of good kinds and every man his favorite among them. I like Splendid and Senator Dunlap best of any, because they are sure to live, grow and spread like weeds, and always bear. They are much alike in many ways and I never had a failure with either one. Both are perfect blossom, have strong, rugged foliage, free from rust, and bear enormously of good sized berries.

Of the pistillates, I like Sample best, but it is more a professional's berry than a farmer's berry. Clyde has such a weak plant that it is hard to get to live and rusts badly. Senator Dunlap or Splendid will almost kill out blue-grass and that is what the average farmer wants in a berry. It must keep hustling, whether it gets the best of care or not.

POULTRY NOTES

Be sure the eggs for hatching are never chilled.

Keep the house free of draughts and keep a good clean litter to scratch in.

There is no need of a male bird if you are keeping hens for eggs alone.

Take good care of the stock you have and you can develop it into good hardy stock.

It is a good plan to occasionally scald the dropping boards and roosts with boiling water.

Give the hens a chopped onion occasionally in the mash. It is excellent as a disease preventative.

If the rooster is old do not have too many hens in the breeding pen if you expect the eggs to hatch.

Study your birds closely and learn their habits. The better you know them the better success you will have.

Soft-shelled eggs are often caused by fowls being confined, becoming overfat, and from lack of mineral matter.

The incubator should be located in a room where the temperature does not vary much during the day or night.

A restless hen will never answer to use as a hatcher early in the season, when steady warmth is an imperative condition of success.

Dust the hen with insect powder before sitting, and twice more while hatching, then chicks will not be full of lice to begin with.

For early hatches it is best to give not more than eleven eggs to a hen, or those on the outer edge may become exposed and chilled.

Clean and sweeten up the poultry house the first warm day. Use a good disinfectant and lice killer about the roosts and dropping boards.

In operating brooders remember that uniform heat should always be maintained. It is better to have a little too much heat than too little.

Fowls should be as humanely treated as possible and should never be unnecessarily frightened. Contentment materially aids egg production.

REPLANTING THE CORN CROP

Objection Is That Young Plant Is So Far Behind in Size to Interfere With Cultivation.

(By WALTER B. LEUTZ.)

I can recall as many as ten seasons in which I have replanted corn, and in only two instances have I found that it paid me to replant. I really believe I would have made more corn without the replanting in several instances.

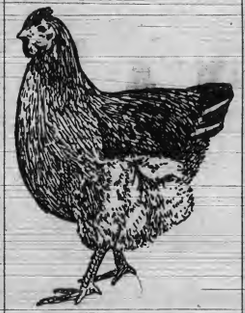
My success during the two years mentioned was due to using an early variety from the north in replanting.

Usually all the corn that is coming up will be up in two weeks, and if one uses an extra early variety for replanting, the crop and replant will silk and tassel, at the same time insuring proper fertilization of both.

If one waits three weeks or longer as is often the case, and then uses the same variety of seed for replanting as was used for the first planting he will likely have fodder, but no corn for his pains.

Some of the greatest objections to replanting are that the young corn is so far behind in size at the second and third cultivation that it not only does not have the proper culture, but interferes with the work of cultivating the larger stalks.

Probably most farmers put too much seed on the ground to begin with, and if one has as much as three-fourths of a stand, it will in many instances make as much as a full stand; if the season should be dry or the land thin, the salks next these missing hills will always be larger and stronger.



As a rule I don't believe replanting, as generally followed, pays, and the farmer should be sure that his seed is good and the land in as good condition as possible before planting; then there will be less complaint of poor stands.

I have replanted corn after the second plowing, but used field peas to supply the missing hills. Planted this way the vines will make a large growth, several bushels of seed may be harvested and the land and corn benefited.

POPULAR BREEDS OF POULTRY

Wyandottes and Plymouth Rocks Head the List, With Rhode Island Reds Closely Following.

Of the entire list of breeds, none meet the demands of Americans so much as do our American varieties, and in this class the most popular are the Wyandottes and the Plymouth Rocks, with Rhode Island Reds closely following. Also our American strain of Light Brahmas and the Leghorns. The Brahmas belong to the Asiatic class as a breed, but the Light Brahma as bred by our people is so different from that bred in England, that one would hardly suppose them to be of the same family. It is also so of the White Leghorns. The Leghorns belong to the Mediterranean class, but there is such a change in the present day Leghorn to the bird introduced years ago, that we feel we own the breed.

Where Flies Propagate.

The manure heap is where flies propagate. The female fly lays about 130 eggs, and these eggs hatch in about one-third of a day. The larval stage is three days, the pupa stage five days, and the fly rounds to the full adult fly in about ten days. There may be twelve broods in a summer. The first thing to do is to see that the manure is well screened, and for this purpose the best material is a light cheesecloth. A shovelful of chlorinated lime should be thickly dusted, quite often, over the manure every day.

Plaiting Trees.

It is not advisable to plant a solid block of 100 trees of one variety unless there are other trees in the immediate vicinity. Some varieties are self-fertile, and will give satisfactory results if planted alone; but it is always safer to provide for cross fertilization. In large orchards every third or fourth row should be of a different variety. Two or three varieties are enough for a commercial orchard, however, and it is seldom advisable to plant more.

Fresh Air and Sunshine.

Fresh air and sunshine are important as well as food. Hens kept in a close, stuffy house without sufficient air and sunshine never lay the maximum number of eggs.

European Beet Culture.

Europe has almost 5,000,000 acres devoted to beet culture. The quantity and quality have greatly increased and improved in ten years.

Education in the Mountains.

Whitesburg.—The spirit of education thruout the Eastern Kentucky mountains, and especially in Letcher county, is on the upward tendency, and this year from $45,000 to $50,000 will be spent in school buildings. Here in Whitesburg the Whitesburg graded school building is being erected at a cost of about $30,000. At Blackey the Women's Christian Temperance union will start at once a college building to cost about $10,000, while Middle Colly, Lester, Line Fork, Upper Rockhouse, and Lower Rockhouse will build new country schools, new district having been recently organized. No other mountain county will spend so much for the improvement of her educational facilities.

PROCLAMATION.

It appearing that there is a vacancy in the office of Circuit Clerk in Boone County Kentucky, caused by the resignation of J. A. Duncan, the regularly elected clerk, and said vacancy existing three months before the next regular election, at which county officers may be elected for the the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, an election is now ordered to be held in Boone county on the regular election day, for the purpose of electing a clerk to fill said vacancy; and the sheriff of Boone county is now ordered to call said election, and give proper notice thereof by publication as required by law, and to cause the polls to be opened for that purpose.

Given under my hand this 19th day of April, 1913.

J. W. CAMMACK.
Judge of Boone Circuit Court and Fifteenth Judicial District of Kentucky.
Copy Attest.—
CHAS. MAURER, Clerk.

In pursuance of the above order I hereby call an election to fill the vacancy in the office of circuit clerk, which election will be held Tuesday, Nov. 4, 1913.

EDUCATION IN BOONE.

Common School Commencement Exercises the Leading Local Event of the Year.

Dr. Melcher and Supt. Riley Deliver Excellent Adrresses.

LARGE CLASS RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

The Common School Commencement exercises at Library Hall, last Wednesday evening, was well attended, many persons coming from quite a distance to witness the exercises. The graduates who participated in the literary fecture acquitted themselves with credit in every instance, their efforts being strong evidence of the progress the common schools in the county are making.

The class address delivered by Dr. C. R. Melcher, of the State University, was interesting and instructive throughout and appropriate. It was scholarly, being the product of a mind trained for profound research, and in line with the times. It was not only beneficial to the graduates but furnished much food for thought on the part of the older persons who listened to it most attentively.

The presentation of the diplomas was preceded by a very practical talk by Superintendent Riley, who was delighted with the interest the public had manifested in the exercises of the evening, the demonstration showing plainly the trend of educational matters in this county. Notwithstanding the excessive heat and the further fact that the exercises were held at night many persons in the audience came from a considerable distance and all appeared to be imbued with the spirit of progress in educational matters that is under way here.

The graduating class numbered sixteen, as follows:

Frank Milner, Constance.
Katie Hodges, Maple Hill.
Rosa Peeno, Constance.
Walter Brown, Burlington.
Alma Dolwick, Pt. Pleasant.
Thos. Milton Riley, Bullittsville.
Floyd Crigler, Hebron.
Fay Hudson, Verona.
Leona Hood, Constance.
Lula Regenbogen, Hebron.
Emma McGlasson, Hebron.
Mary McKenzie Gordon, Hebron.
Galen Kelly, Locust Grove.
Mary Ransom, Verona.
Norma McGlasson, Hebron.

The gold medal which Horace Cleveland will receive from Congressman A. B. Rouse for having made the highest grade, and the set of books which will be presented Miss Mary Ransom for having attained the second place in the grading not having been received by Supt. Riley previous to the commencement exercises they will be forwarded to them as soon as they are received by the Superintendent.

Interest in education in Kentucky has increased considerably in the last few years and recent events in this county show that her people have joined the procession.

The Deciding Game.

The Belleview and Erlanger base ball teams will meet on the diamond at Burlington next Saturday afternoon to play their third game of the season. These teams have played two games this season, each having one victory to its credit, consequently next Saturday's will be a battle royal. The teams will be accompanied by a large number of loyal fans who will make things lively at all times during the progress of the contest. As the teams appear to be pretty evenly matched and each contending for the championship of this part of the State, the result of the meeting next Saturday will be awaited with considerable anxiety on the part of the friends of each. Come out and see the fun.

The Burlington and Erlanger teams met on the ground of the latter, last Saturday, and pulled off a game that was somewhat exciting in the last two innings. The score was two to one in favor of Burlington at the beginning of the eighth inning when she made a rally and increased her lead to four runs and was feeling pretty easy, but Erlanger's counter rally of four runs in the same inning put the result in doubt until the last man was out in the ninth, when the score was 6 to 5 in favor of Burlington.

A CARD.

To the Voters of the Fifteenth Judicial District:

I have received letters from over the district calling attention to various rumors in circulation concerning me. Stories challenging my Democracy, morality, sobriety and decency have been given wide circulation. All of them are so palpably false as to indicate absolutely malicious origin. I am ready and willing for my friends to arrange with those desiring it for a thorough investigation of any of these foundationless charges. I would hereby warn all my friends to pay no attention to such stories except to brand them as false and to challenge the reciter of such rumor to produce his evidence.

I am a member of the Methodist Church, and my parents have been life-long members of the Methodist Church. This statement is made to quiet a rumor to the contrary.

I trust that all in sympathy with my candidacy for Commonwealth's Attorney will turn a deaf ear to such stories and that any opposing me will avoid repeating any idle tale about the truth of which they know nothing.

Sincerely,
JOHN J. HOWE, Candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney Fifteenth Judicial District.

MOONLESS COON HUNT.

Sheriff Hume and Deputy Make a Long and Coonless Trip.

Last Thursday night Sheriff B. B. Hume was called to take charge of a crazy negro. Accompanied by his deputy, Albert Conner, he responded to the summons promptly, going as far as Beaver Lick in his auto. At Beaver horses were secured for the remainder of the journey and they were soon in the vicinity of the place to which they were called, but owing to the extremely bad condition of the creek road the officers got lost in the bushes and weeds that are so thick as to make it almost impossible for a horse to penetrate them. After fighting the bushes, weeds and mosquitoes for some time the officers discovered a house up on the hillside, and they hastened to it seeking information as how to reach their destination, and you can imagine their surprise when they discovered it was the house to which they had been called. No time was lost in asking for the man and the Sheriff came very nearly using language that would not look well in print, when he was informed he had made his escape. After resting a few minutes the officers commenced their return trip to Burlington where they arrived about two o'clock Friday morning, tired and slightly out of humor. It was a long, hard trip, the like of which the Sheriff does not desire to take again soon.

GASOLINE EXPLOSION

W. J. Brell Seriously Injured While Trying to Dry Out a Cistern With Gasoline and Match.

W. J. Brell, an Erlanger contractor, met with a very serious accident one day last week. A cistern which he built for the Citizens Deposit Bank at that place was leaking and he had removed the water for the purpose of repairing the defect. In order to dry the walls he threw gasoline in the cistern, and followed it with a lighted match. An explosion resulted that damaged the cistern badly, while he was blown a considerable distance, and when he was picked up he was more dead than alive, having received numerous bruises and abrasions, his worst injuries being about the head and face, his tongue being split in two. The explosion was followed by a loud report and a pretty thorough shaking of the town which alarmed the citizens, many of them thinking that the next sound would be that of Gabriel's bugel. At last accounts Mr. Brell was getting along very nicely.

OWEN COUNTY.

(Owen County Democrat.)

Indications are for a short crop of tobacco in Owen this year. Crop not all set and conditions bad.

One or two candidates for Magistrate of Owen county have announced in favor of two rock crushers for this county.

Owen county is one of the richest counties in the state. Her wealth consists of her limestone rock, her blue grass and clover. Give your land a show.

Bees are getting thick in the country and if everything holds favorable there will be swarms on every man's farm and honey can be golten from the knot holes in every tree. The Democrat office has had two swarms in the building this season.

Wheat harvest is well under way throughout the county. The yield is expected to be good, probably from fifteen to twenty five bushels per acre. Corn, altho retarded by the cool weather early in June and later by the drought, is coming out well after the heavy rains of Saturday and Sunday. Not more than half a crop of timothy is expected, it having been cut short by the cool dry weather in the early season. Clover and alfalfa are good in most places.—Lawrenceburg Press.

H. S. Caywood, of Bourbon county, buyer for Swift & Co., of Chicago, has bought from Woodford Bros., of Montgomery county, 500 head of cattle which have been fed at a distillery at Mt. Sterling, to be taken immediately. The cattle will weigh about 1,250 pounds each, and brought $7.60 per 100. The deal involves more than $47,000.

LARGE HORSE BARN

Destroyed By Fire and Forty Horses Perish in the Flames.

Lexington, June 29.—The mammoth Tattersall horse sales and training barn, in South Broadway, opposite the entrance to the trotting track, was burned to the ground this afternoon. Forty horses perished in the flames, and Trainer Hunter C. Moody, Trainer W. T. Griffy, who was also superintendent of the barn, and Ed Howard, a negro employe of Trainer R. E. Moreland, were painfully burned while trying to save the horses. There were about seventy horses in the barn, and practically all of them were driven out before the fire reached them, but about half of them, crazed by the terror, rushed back into the flames.

Education and Progress.

Although Horace Greely could not abide college graduates and many successful self made men delight to sneer at them we predict that the great crop turned out this year by colleges and universities may escape the obscure destinies to which the paragraphs unanimously consign them. It is possible for a man to acquire an education out of college but it is hard work. In the age where there is always a line of qualified candidates waiting for every position that offers, the college bred man has far and away the best chance provided he has spent his time wisely. Of coure no college can make a genius out of a dolt but it can furnish ability with the right tools and put industry upon the right path. The progress of the world is in exact proportion to the education of the world. When men who are entrusted with government find this out and use as much wisdom in spending money for education as men like Rockefeller have done the progress of this particular nation will pe greatly accelerated.—Los Angeles Ex.

The stars and stripes first appeared floating over the headquarters of Gen. George Washington, on the heights of Cambridge, near Boston, on January 2, 1776. This is a fact which is not usually impressed upon the minds of the children in our public schools. With that fact the children should also be impressed with the co-ordinate and correlative fact that the flag was made originally under the milltary orders of George Washington; and that it contained in every fold the personal defiance of British rule by George Washington himself.

A man may exhibit a broad flag and still be a poor patriot.

A CARD.

To the Voters of Boone county:

There will appear in the Recorder on Thursday, July 10th, my ideas in reference to Mr. E. C. Riley's questions pertaining to the schools of Boone county. A. M. YEALEY.

Remember the big game of ball at Burlington next Saturday.

The candidates' outing will continue for twenty-five days longer.

There has been great improvment in the meadows the past week.

Clore & Kelsey, of Hebron, have the contract for painting the county house.

The Burlington base ball team is scheduled to play at Lakeland on the 4th inst.

The weather the past week was severe on the horses used with the harvesting machinery.

Several Erlanger parties have gone into camp at the Lonesome Hole down on Gunpowder creek.

Next Monday is county court day and the probability is a pretty good sized crowd will be in Burlington.

Lost in or near Burlington on June 25th Folding Fan. Finder will pease return to E E. Kelly's store and receive reward

The proposition for the county to buy the turnpikes is not feasible there being more county roads than can be kept up.

A stray calf came to my house a few days since which the owner will come after at once and oblige. Carl Rouse, near Commissary.

A quartett of Burlington fishermen visited Gunpowder creek last Friday, leaving town about noon when Old Sol was at his best.

If you have not filed that nomination petition before now you are everlastingly too late to get in the running at the coming August primary election.

The Consolidated Telephone line from Burlington to Florence is receiving an outfit of new poles. In the matter of poles the line was getting in a bad fix.

Green apples and sun-burnt backs are popular with young America at this season of the year. The water in the old swimming hole gets very little rest.

Bert Smith, carrier on R. D. 2, whose arm was broken several days ago, went out on his route last Monday morning, taking one of his boys along to do the driving.

A miniature world's series of base ball will be played at the Burlington park next Saturday afternoon by Belleview and Erlanger. Come out and see the contest.

Dr. Glacken, of Richwood, made a professional visit to this bailiwick, last Friday night, coming in his auto, running blind because of a crippled lighting system on his machine.

O'Neal, Johnson and Brady, candidates for assessor, were among the Recorder's visitors the latter part of last week, and each one seemed to be excessively warm in the cause.

Chas. Fowler has completed the lettering of a large sign for the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co. which will occupy the front of the building purchased recently of G. G. Hughes.

The streets that will be oiled in Burlington this year received their coat the latter part of last week. The work was done by hand and every drop was put where it will do the most good.

Stant Kirtley, colored, has secured a considerable lot of nice hay by mowing several of the streets and alleys about town. He is profited by contributing to the looks of the town.

O. P. Phipps owns the cow that has made the highest test of any from which milk has been sent to the local creamery. She is a three year old Jersey, has had one calf, and is a small individual.

A large crowd attended the picnic at Harvest Home grounds, last Saturday afternoon. The weather was exceedingly hot but that did not interfere with the young people having a most enjoyable afternoon.

At the drawing one day last week to determine the position of district candidates on the ballot at the coming primary election, John W. Howe, candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney in this district, drew first place.

That bright-eyed youth, Walter Brown, who is receiving instructions in the art preservative in the southwest corner of the Recorder's office, was Burlington's only representative in the graduating exercises last Wednesday evening.

It is said that the most popular place at Limaburg is in the immediate vicinity of George Baker's ice water tank in his shop, which is at all times supplied with cooling and refreshing water of which he delights in seeing his friends partake freely.

Wm. Pope, who resides down on Middle creek, was brought home from the sanitarium, last Thursday, it being the opinion of the physicians that they can do nothing for him. His mind has failed.

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station has about demonstrated that it is not necessary to plow your corn in order to make a good crop. Prepare the seed bed well before planting and keep the weeds out while the corn is growing.

Chas. Westbay went fishing one day the past week and caught a pound mud cat, which he thought weighed about twenty pounds before he raised it to the top of the water. During the afternoon he caught 43 fish, 42 of which belonged to the craw variety.

The Recorder is in receipt of a large consignment of plate matter which the Blue Grass fair has had prepared for the purpose of running over the Kentucky country press a lot of free advertising under the guise of reading matter. The Blue Grass fair is certainly able to pay for its advertising.

W. C. Johnson, candidate for assessor, spent one day last week down on Gunpowder creek, since which time he has been annoyed very much with a case of chigres. These little pests prevail by the millions in that territory and make life at this time of the year miserable for the stranger who happens to pass that way.

E. J. Aylor's barn that was struck by lightning and burnt a week or ten days ago, was one of the best equipped dairy barns in this part of the State, and was but recently erected at a cost of $900, the Farmers Insurance Company would insure it for only $400, not allowing him to count in the cost of the structure the cost of concrete foundation, which the fire destroyed.

Ensign Archibald McGlasson detached from the U. S S. Whipple tarpedo boat destroyer to U. S. S. Denver and ordered to China The Whipple made the best record of any ship in the service in target practice and speed runs for the last seven years while on this ship Ensign McGlasson had full charge of the machinery. Ensign McGlasson is a son of Geo. E. McGlasson, of Bullittsville, this county.

Bad luck continues to pursue Bert Smith, carrier on R. D. 2. Last Thursday he was trying to do some plowing notwithstanding his broken arm. He went to get a drink of water, leaving the horse hitched to the plow, and while he was gone a moter cycle came along the pike, frightening the horse which ran until the harness came off, when it stopped, but there was a very ugly hole cut in one of its hips which had come in contact with the plow. If any one knows how to get clear of a jinks he ought to inform Mr. Smith at once.

The Belleview High School presented the drama entitled "The Deacon," at Library Hall, last Friday night. Owing to the excessive heat and the very busy time with the country people the audience was small. The young people acquitted themselves in a most creditable manner, some of them being exceedingly good. The Recorder is sorry that conditions were such that the visitors did not have a better house, which they certainly would have had on a Saturday night, and it hopes they will come again when the weather and time will be more favorable.

Asa McMullen and Hubert McMullen will be ordained deacons of Gunpowder Baptist church today, Thursday. It will be an all-day meeting, and, oh, my, the fried chickens and other good eating that will be served. J. M. Barolw, one of the leading contributors to the feast at the noon hour has given all the candidates a special invitation to eat at his table which will be arranged especially for them. He says it will be impossible for him to accompany them who take the Salt River excursion and he wants to see the entire aggregation at his table at the ordination dinner.

It use to be that local butchers had no trouble in securing animals to kill, but in recent years animals suitable for the country trade have become so scarce that many of the country butchers have been compelled to go out of business or buy their meat in the city. One reason for the scarcity of country butcher stuff is the selling off too close the calves as soon as they will do to veal to secure high prices they have demanded for several years, a calf at the age of six weeks bringing as much as a bullock use to bring. The price of beef is liable to continue high so long as the supply of cattle is kept low by the sale of the calves.

Farmers in Boone county have nothing of which to complain in so far as crop prospects are concerned. Corn is clean and growing nicely while the tobacco, of which there is about an average crop, is showing nice growth and was planted at intervals that ought to make its harvesting easy. A small crop of wheat has been harvested and the quality is very fine. Considerable rye was sowed last fall and much of it has been cut and will make a good yield. A good crop of red clover has been harvested and it will be followed by an abundance of alfalfa if there is favorable weather for saving the last cuttings. Livestock is healthy and thriving and bringing good prices.

TOBACCO WORM DESTROYER.

Discovered and Recommended To Growers By the Department of Agriculture—How to Apply It

Washington.—Growers of dark tobacco in Kentucky and Tennessee have a serious problem in the ever-present tobacco hornworms, which are great chewers of green tobacco. When labor was plentiful and cheap, "hand worming" was an economical and efficient way to combat the pest. For several years labor in these tobacco growing districts has become scarce and also inefficient, so growers have been forced to resort to insecticides. Naturally, paris green was tried and found to be the safest and most efficient of any on the market, but there has always been complaint of frequent and serious burning of tobacco as a result of its use.

For five years employees of the Department of Agriculture have been conducting investigations looking for a safe and effective insecticide, and have determined that di-plumbic arsenic of lead meets all requirements.

A thorough application of this insecticide will kill practically every hornworm within two or three days after being applied and will continue for several days to kill the young worms that hatch, without any injury to the plant. Arsenate of lead costs more than paris green and if the comparative cost were the only question it would be useless to recommend the former; but the first cost is only a secondary consideration.

Arsenate of lead must be mixed with a carrier and applied with a dust gun. Finely sifted, freshly burned wood ashes make the best carrier, and at least a bulk equal to the insecticide should be used.

Apply the mixture when the dew is on the plants and there is no breeze, and make the application thorough.

The dose per acre of the arsenate of lead will vary from 3½ pounds before the plants have begun to lap in the rows to five pounds when the tobacco is full grown. If applied as a spray use three to four pounds in 100 gallons of water.

Those interested in the subject can find detailed information in Entomolog y Circular 173, recently issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, entitled "Arsenate of Lead as an Insecticide against the Tobacco Hornworms," by A. C. Morgan and D. C. Parman, entomological assistants.

PENSION WARRANTS.

Frankfort.—After a conference Attorney General Garnett advised Auditor Bosworth to issue warrants for all pension claims allowed under the Confederate Pension Act which the Court of Appeals declared constitutional. If there is not sufficient money in the State Treasury to meet these warrants, the Attorney General is of the opinion that the decision of the court in the case of State Treasurer Rhea against J. W. Newman, Commissioner of Agriculture, authorizes the treasurer to stamp as interest bearing warrants for appropriations made by the Legislature when there is no money in the State Treasury to pay them. So far 504 pensions have been allowed and there are 2,300 claims pending before the Pension Commission.

To lose flesh exercise vigorously for twenty minutes every morning on rising, and eat no breakfast.

Advantages of Night Schools

FOR years our large cities have recognized the absolute necessity for night schools, and they have become a part of such systems. The rural districts have been slow to understand the great waste in energy that comes through the lack of education in each and every community. Of course a few counties in the past year or two have developed "moonlight" or night schools, but it is merely a beginning.

Naturally one would suppose that a county which had for its county seat a city the size and importance of Louisville would have seen the tremendous advantage of such schools, but such has not been the case. When it has been suggested some wiseacre has remarked sagely: "It ain't any use. Nobody 'll come. If they're too lazy to work they won't come, an' if they're hard at work they'll be too tired at night to come. So there you are."

One day early last spring your correspondent happened to be in the office of the county superintendent at the courthouse at Louisville. While waiting he overheard a rural teacher ask, "If I get a few boys in my neighborhood interested in a night school proposition will you and the board stand by me and furnish light, heat and some new lamps?" Of course the superintendent at once agreed to the proposition, but a farmer who stood by edged a little closer and asked, "Who's goin' to pay for the extra work?"

The teacher flushed for a moment and then managed to stammer, "Why—how—what do you mean?"

"Why," he answered, "you ain't in the school teachin' work for your health, are you? What are you goin' to get for this extra two or three nights' work a week from now until the end of the spring term of school?"

"I'm going to get a big price for the work," she answered, with spirit. "The price is to be my own satisfaction that I am doing my full duty by the good folks that have kept me in one school for ten whole years. Don't you think I owe something to the people who have given me my bread and butter for ten years?"

That conversation made your correspondent vow that he would visit the little schoolhouse before the end of the spring term. He did ride out to the little building that is perched on a steep hillslope to keep it out of the Ohio river during flood times. It was a dreary, rainy night. As he neared the trolley station he felt that there would be no one there for work, but he was mistaken. Four boys out of the eighteen enrolled were on hand and ready for business.

Not one of the four had walked less than a mile in the damp night air, and all of them had been at work all day. Yet there they were, smiling and bright and eager, youngsters who during the time they had been in school as little tots had done practically nothing.

When the teacher said, "I am sorry it's a bad night and there are only four present," your correspondent thought:

"Only four present! But if at this moment each and every schoolhouse in the county had just this number at work it would mean that each year 400 would be caught and held and developed into something better and finer than they would be otherwise. If it could be kept up for ten years it would mean that the county would have 4,000 made over citizens. In a few years it would mean a new state. It is most certainly very much worth while."

MUCH VIRTUE IN GOOD YAWN

Beneficial Exercise, Though it Might Be Well for One to Select the Time and Place.

Yawning may be rude—especially in company—but it is a good thing for you to do.

For one thing, it ventilates the lungs. When you take an ordinary breath the lungs are not completely filled, nor are they thoroughly emptied by an ordinary respiration. There is a certain quantity of air left in the lungs always, which physiologists call "residual air."

This air in time becomes foul and affects the blood, and through the blood the nervous centers. Certain nerves get tickled, as it were, and the result is a yawn, stretching the lungs to their fullest extent, filling them with clean, fresh air and driving the foul air out.

That's one reason why it is good to yawn. For another, yawning opens and stretches and ventilates all the various passages leading to the lungs. You will perhaps be surprised to know that yawning is even beneficial to your hearing.

The cracking sound which you so often hear when giving an extra big yawn is due to the stretching and opening of the eustachian tubes. These tubes communicate between the ear and the back of the throat. If they are congested, which happens when you have a bad cold in the head, people complain of deafness.

If you feel inclined to yawn, then, do so. It is Nature's way of cleaning out your lungs and air passages.

FOUND OUT WHO HAD CORNS

Itinerant Merchant's Method of Doing Business Somewhat Rough, But He Got the Money.

"My stars!" exclaimed a man, pushing someone who stood near him, "you have trod on my corn!"

The fellow snatched out a box of ointment and replied:

"I can relieve you, sir, in a few minutes. Only a quarter. Endorsed by the medical fraternity everywhere. There's no use in suffering. One box? Thank you," he added, as he put the money in his pocket.

"It was an accident you found him," someone remarked to the salve dealer.

"Oh, no, it wasn't. If you ask a man if he's got corns he don't want to talk to you; but when you find out that he's got 'em, the chances of selling him the medicine are good—I advertise my medicine by going into crowds and slyly feeling for corns. Yonder stands a fat fellow. When the crowd gets thicker I'll go over and tap his hoof. Oh, yes, it may be painful, but, my dear sir, the business of this country must be carried on regardless of sentiment."

Playwrights Miss Chance.

It is curious that in none of the patriotic plays now running in Paris, all revolving on theme of the lost provinces, is there any representation of life at La Schlucht.

Its chief feature is its apparently cultivated resemblance to what might be a stage imitation of itself.

Here France and Germany meet in the middle of the main street, and as the boundary line follows a slanting course it is possible for, say, a German and a French soldier to stand side by side in the center of the road between the boundary posts of their respective countries — the German post on one side of the road, the French post on the other—and pose together very amicably for a joint photograph, each soldier of course remaining carefully within his own territory.

From the commercial point of view this is an admirable arrangement—it does much to maintain the staple trade of La Schlucht—the trade in picture post cards representing precisely this incident.—New York Sun.

Knew His Work Well.

Some years ago an ass was employed in the Isle of Wight, in drawing water by a large wheel from a very deep well. When the keeper wanted water, he would say to the ass, "Tom, my boy, I want water, get into the wheel, my good lad," which Thomas immediately performed with promptness that would have done credit to a nobler animal; and no doubt he knew the precise number of times necessary for the wheel to go around on its axis, to complete his labor, because every time he brought the bucket to the surface of the well, he constantly stopped and turned his honest head to observe the moment when his master laid hold of the bucket to draw it towards him, because he then had just one more turn to make to bring the rope to the top. It was pleasing to observe with what steadiness and regularity the poor animal performed his labor.

Undiscovered Interior.

A magazine editor recently returned a story to an aspiring contributor.

Immediately the latter wrote an indignant letter to him, saying that before sending her manuscript she had slightly pasted together several of the inner pages. When the story was returned to her it was in its original condition. She had always suspected editors of neglecting their duties; now she was sure of their carelessness, for her own story had not been read. To all this, the much berated man made reply: "Dear Madam: At breakfast, when I find that an egg is bad, I do not have to eat the whole of it to make sure."—The Sunday Magazine.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

Walton Bank & Trust Co., Guardian, Plaintiff
Against | Equity.
Joseph Glinn, Defendants

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April Term, thereof, 1913, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court-house door in Burlington, Boone Co. Ky., to the highest bidder, at public sale on Monday, 7th day of July, 1913, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabouts, being county court day, upon a credit of six and twelve months, the following described property, to wit:

Four (4) tracts or lots of land lying in a block, numbered, and on surveyor's plat containing the number of acres and fractions thereof, to-wit:

Lot No. one (1) contains 5 1-100 acres.

Lot No. two (2) contains 4 61-100 acres.

Lot No. three (3) contains 10 63-100 acres.

Lot No. four (4) contains 5 14-100 acres.

All of said lots front on the Walton and Verona Turnpike and adjoin the town of Walton, Boone county, Ky., and are all in said county. They are very desirable for building and home purposes, being large enough for truck gardening and small farming. These lots will be offered separately and then the entire tract, of about 25½ acres, as a whole, with the right reserved to accept the highest and best bid or bids.

At the same time and place, I will offer for sale a tract of land containing about 51 acres, adjoining said town of Walton on the East and lying in the State and county aforesaid. Some of this land is now in blue grass, is all desirable for grazing and farming purposes and lays well.

The tract of land first mentioned and embracing said lots, is bounded thus: On the north by the Walton & Verona Turnpike road; on the East by L. & N. Railroad; on the South by the lands of Mrs. J. F. West, and on the West by the Conrad passway and toll-house lot.

The second tract is bounded thus: On the North by the lands of Lulu Hudson and Wm. Hudson, and on the West by the right-of-way of the Cincinnati Southern Railroad. These lands are bargains.

For the purchase price the purchaser with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

School Question Trafficking.

Frankfort, Ky.—Some one has been trafficking in the questions prepared for the state teachers' examinations. How many applicants have secured possession of the questions is not known, but Superintendent of Public Instruction Barksdale Hamlet admitted that he has definite information that at least one person who came to Frankfort to take the examination had seen the questions, and an investigation is being made. Applicants for certificates have the privilege of taking the examination under the county school superintendent at their county seats, instead of coming to Frankfort, if they desire, and the same questions are used in these local examinations. Applicants are required to take an oath before being admitted to the examination, in which they swear they have not seen the questions to be asked, and are liable to prosecution if they swear falsely.

Dr. R. B. Gilbert, of Louisville, very kindly responded to an invitation to deliver one of his interesting lectures at Walton on "Prehistoric Animals in Kentucky" and came here last Thursday and delivered a very interesting discourse at the M. E. church to a good sized audience, and those who were fortunate enough to attend greatly enjoyed the interesting information he imparted. Dr. B. K. Menefee in a very neat and well worded little speech, introduced the lecturer, who held his audience in rapt attention for over an hour, explaining in detail all historical features obtainable of the mastadon and mammoth animals, the buffalo and dinosauria (mammoth lizard). He stated that Boone county is the greatest depository of mastadon and mammoth bones in the world. He spoke of the numerous bone specimens which have been taken from the Big Bone neighborhood, of which there is a record kept by the historians. One of the finest exhibits is a large specimen in the great London, England, musseum, sent there by Benj. Finnell over three quarters of a century ago. The lecture throughout was highly instructive and greatly enjoyed by all. Dr. Gilbert was ably assisted by Prof. Otto A. Rothert, historian of Louisville, who is also an enthusiast on this interesting and instructive subject—the research of historical facts and data relative to the prehistoric age. Our citizens should and do appreciate the fact that this lecture which incured considerable expense was borne by Dr. Gilbert himself, not a cent being asked of anyone to defray expenses. Dr. Gilbert in company of Rev. R. B. Baird, paid a visit to the famous Big Bone Springs to obtain if possible specimens and information. The doctor enjoys a very lucrative practice in Louisville and stands high in the medical profession of that city.

At a meeting of the Burley Tobacco Society, held at Lexington, at which delegates from twenty-four out of thirty Burley Tobacco growing counties were in attendance, each member of the District Board, as his name was called, was asked to give a report of crop conditions in his county, particularly relative to Tobacco. It was the consensus of opinion that the crop this year will be only about an average one, although in some counties there was a different opinion. In Franklin county, for instance, Scott Brown stated that more Tobacco will be raised than during any year within the last ten. Some of the counties reported a slight falling off on account of lateness of getting out the Tobacco. From 50 to 75 per cent. of the Tobacco was reported set out.

Campaign Against Hook Worm.

Louisville, Ky.—Dr. W. M. Steele of the State Board of Health conducted a campaign of ten weeks against the hook worm in McCreary county. Of 5,230 people examined 57 per cent were found to be infected with the malignant parasite. This percentage is pronounced to be unusually large. The campaign was one of unusual interest, as practically every citizen in the county cooperated with the health authorities. Much success was experienced by the workers in effecting relief. The campaign was one of the most success ful yet conducted in the state.

Superintendent—A. M. Yeatley.
Jailer—Chas. P. Robinson.
Justices of the Peace—Charles Wilson, H. O. Adams.

The drawing was conducted as follows: For each office the candidates' names were type written on slips of white paper of the same size by the deputy county clerk, Miss Lizzie Rogers. Each slip of paper containing a candidate's name was rolled and placed in one of the tin tubes used in drawing jurors. The tubes containing the names of the several candidates for an office were placed in a hat and shaken, after which, by agreement of the candidates present and the representatives of those absent Thomas Fowler drew from the hat one tube at a time from which he took the slip of paper and announced the name thereon, handing the slip to S. W. Tolin who verified the announcement, when the deputy county clerk Miss Lizzie Rogers made a record of the drawing, which is as follows:

Base Ball.

The game of ball played here last Saturday afternoon by the Belleview and Erlanger teams was very disappointing in that it was so entirely one sided, the score being 10 to 3 in favor of Belleview. There was very little sensational playing on the part of either team. Edward Rogers was in the box for the Belleview team and had his opponents completely at his mercy striking out 20 of them. He was caught by Willard Clore who did excellent work.

At only one time in the game did Erlanger threaten trouble. One man was down and three men were on the bases when the batter made a fierce drive towards left field that looked good for at least two sacks, but Robert Brady, playing short, went up like a skyrocket, caught the ball in his mit and hurled it to second in time to complete a double play that took all the vim out of Erlanger.

Harve Smith and Dico Louden hit the ball hard, Smith excelling himself in that line.

Harry Shearer's, Erlanger's first baseman, made a drive that would have been a home run had it not been for his disabled ankle. He reached third and called for a substitute.

The Belleview ball team is now carrying two good sized chips on its shoulders, and wants to find in Boone county nine players who can entertain it on the diamond. They can't be found.

BUTCHER BIRD'S DIET

Eastern Variety Consumes Nothing But Animal Matter.

Consumption of Grasshoppers Far Outweighs Harm Done to Other Birds and Beetles—Capable of Doing Much Good.

(By F. E. L. BEAL.)

The southern butcher bird in some of its numerous forms, is found over much of the United States, and is especially common on the Pacific coast. All the forms retire southward at the approach of winter and in many localities are replaced during the cold season by the northern butcher bird, which comes down from the north and winters in the United States.

The butcher bird resembles a bird of prey in form of beak and to a certain extent in food habits, but it has no talons such as enable the true birds of prey to seize their victim and hold it while tearing it to pieces.

For the investigation of the food of the southern butcher bird 124 stomachs of the western sub-species were examined and 88 of the eastern. The western bird showed 2.5 per cent. of vegetable substances in their stomachs but the eastern ones contained nothing but animal matter. The animal portion of the food of western butcher birds consists of 83 per cent. spiders and a few snails, 2 per cent. and vertebrated 12 per cent. The stomachs of the eastern forms show 68 per cent., spiders 4 per cent., and vertebrates 28 per cent.

The difference is undoubtedly due to climate, the western bird being able to find insects all the year round, while the eastern one gets very few during the winter.

While the southern butcher bird eats a few birds and some useful insects, its diet is on the whole very much in its favor, as the consumption of grasshoppers far outweighs the harm to birds and beetles. As a feature of the landscape, and as lending animation to rural scenes, the shrike, or butcher bird, in California is a pronounced success, and, while not so numerous in the east, it is just as attractive and is doing the same good by its food habits.

DAIRY NOTES

A cow has a peculiarly sensitive and delicate organization.

Regularity should be the keynote of every successful dairy system.

Make a study of foods, and feed a balanced ration. This will save waste.

When cut in the milk and cured, the oat and pea hay is most palatable and nutritious.

A good dairy cow should have all the feed she will eat and digest, and keep in good health.

Successful dairying depends entirely on right methods in breeding, feeding and management.

The dairymen who are not successful do not apply ordinary business principles to their calling.

Success in dairy farming depends not only on good stock, but also on good common sense work.

Stir the cream twice a day, using a long-handled spoon which will reach to the bottom of the cream jar.

With good cows, good food, good stables, all profits can be wiped out by an ignorant or cruel stable man.

There may be occasional bad luck in the dairy business, but it almost invariably follows bad management.

An exposed or an abused cow will give less milk, and that milk of a poorer quality, than one well cared for.

It is a well known fact that the cow that makes the largest profit is given the best care and most comfortable shelter.

Heifers require a larger amount of feed for the production of a certain amount of milk than do older cows. They have to grow.

The man with the hammer really is engaged in a process of slow suicide. And it isn't a happy death he is treating himself to, either.

The demands of a cow are imperative. The dairyman who consults his own convenience, and disregards the comfort of his dairy herd, suffers loss.

PECULIAR FORM OF BANKING

Entire Profits of German Institution Are Devoted to Enterprises of Public Utility.

The Savings bank at Bremen, Germany, is one of the most peculiar institutions in the world. It is in the nature of a private savings and loan bank, conducted for the exclusive benefit of its depositors. It was instituted in 1825 by eighty prominent citizens, for the purpose of offering an inducement for saving to the poorer classes and a safe opportunity for investment and a profitable return.

It was also provided by law that none of the profits should ever be divided among the members, but that they should be distributed among enterprises of public utility.

For twenty years the business was transacted by members of the society without remuneration, but later the work was turned over to salaried clerks. But up to this day no member of the society, and no director, has received any share of the profits, and they have no claim on the property.

The bank has made many public donations, the first being $1,000 in 1840. Since then it has given $75,000 for a public bath; $57,000 for a public museum, $32,000 for educational purposes, and numerous other gifts to hospitals, orphan asylums, libraries, reading rooms, schools, homes for old and young, etc.

In 1830 the bank had 3,751 depositors with $260,160 deposited. Now it has 39,864 depositors and $7,940,528 deposits. On opening an account a deposit book is given, and at the end of the year the accrued interest is added to the amount deposited.

There are also school savings cards and home savings boxes, the receipts of the latter in 1911 being $30,690.

NEW EMPIRE FOR THE TURK

Driven From Europe, There Are Vast Stretches of Fertile Land Awaiting Him in Asia.

With the impending curtailment of the power and extent of the Turkish empire comes the hope of a new Mohammedan empire, the empire of Arabia, the natural boundaries of which would extend from the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates to the Isthmus of Suez, and from the Mediterranean sea to the Sea of Oman. The present villayet of the Hedjaz, with the territory of Medina, would probably form an independent state of which the sovereign would be a religious caliph, the father of all Mohammedans. This Arabian empire should include the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates, Syria, the valleys of Oronte and Leontes, Palestine, central Arabia, with its five territorial divisions, the Djwof, the Djebel-Schomer, the Kheybard, the Kasin, the Teyona, Nedjed, Oman, Hadramant, Yemen and Hedjaz. If this should come to pass a part of the world's geography that is little known should come to the front to the distress of the cable man and the telegraph editor. It is hardly possible that the new empire should include Palestine. When the power of the Turk is broken there is a sentiment that will result in taking the Holy Land from the hands of the infidel, and after many centuries the impassioned but fruitless hope of the Crusaders will be realized and meet the old cry of "God wills it!"—Paris correspondence Bresil Economique.

This Ship's Cat Was Saved.

About twenty years ago, when I was resident in North China, the British squadron then in far-eastern waters was steaming out of the port of Chefoo when a little black cat fell overboard from H. M. S. Wanderer, writes a correspondent of the London Spectator. At once the ship stopped, signaled to her consorts "Cat overboard," and the entire squadron came to a standstill. A boat put off from the Wanderer and rescued puss, who was swimming for dear life after the ship.

The officer who told me the story said the sailors would have been furious if the little cat had not been saved, for not only was she a great pet, but they firmly believed that disaster would follow if a black cat was allowed to drown.

Outward and Inward Change.
